Edmonton, Alberta. Fifteen American buffalo, believed to be part of a large herd, were stampeded by John Ladue, a French Canadian trapper, said to be the first white man to penetrate the Hay river country, in the hinterland of Alberta. He has come to Edmonton with a two years' catch from the territory several hundred miles beyond the Arctic Circle. Ladue's finding ground of the buffalo is said to be as wild as the western plains between the Rocky mountains and the Mackenzie river. The discovery of the animals in that region confirms the theory of hunters of their existence in the Rocky mountains.

Candidate For County Commission

I offer to the people of Pocahontas County my candidacy for the office of County Commissioner. I am qualified to perform the duties of this office in a satisfactory manner. For the past four or five years I have written in this paper my position on what I think government should be. I will continue to say and think that we must work to solve problems at the local level, as hardly any two problems are the same. Government should help, not make laws, rules and regulations then dictate all conditions. A democracy is supposed to be of the people, by the people and for the people. People in Charleston and Washington are finally coming to the sober conclusions that spending piles of the tax payers money doesn't solve ton are finally coming to the sober conclusions that spending piles of the tax payers money doesn't solve people's problems. We need a solid firm program addressed to local needs. Right now, people who study economic and financial conditions are saying if we start right now with a drastic program to turn things around, it will take 6—8 years to make any progress, so it means that everything has to come back down to earth. Common sense must prevail once again or we go down the drain.

As a means of offering a small initiative to communities and things to improve communications and conditions in the County—from the salary of the office, if elected, I pledge the following donations yearly to these facilities.

THE MIDDLE GROUND

By Lincoln C. Burner

The Middle Ground is a very exciting book which gives you accurate information of Civil War events taking place in Pocahontas County. Lincoln C. Burner, the author, adds adventure to the story by using fictional characters. Each fictional character contributes his or her own personality, which is in some way affected by the happenings of the Civil War. This adds excitement and reality to the history and fact we would otherwise be bored with.

Kane Tyler seemed to have a dull character as the novel opened. His main goal in life was just to get married and settle down. He had no wish to take part in the Civil War, and he didn't have many goals in life. Unintentionally he does get involved in the war. At the same time he gets involved with two other women, aside from the one he was going to marry. This leaves him confused and uncertain throughout the story.

Claire Sommers was the girl Kane wanted to marry. She was very pretty, vigor- come to her. Kane was uncertain about Jane because she was younger than he was, and seemed still a young girl to him. But she also had a generous loving quality Claire could not compete with. Coming home from the war, Kane sees a big change in Jane he didn't expect to find.

Then there was Alice Kyne. She was a barmaid who was also a spy for the Confederates. Kane was a scout, getting information for General Jackson when he met her. She was an experienced fun-loving person, who took each day as it came and enjoyed it.

At one time or another Kane believed he wanted to marry each one of these women. When Kane was accused of being a Crutchfield raider, by Jim Sloan, he was deserted by Claire, who made plans later to marry Jim Sloan. Alice's experience with men, and her beauty fascinated Kane. But he was uncertain about her background. Kane was unsure about Jane. Her age seemed to bother him most. But in the midst of all the others, it was Jane who stayed in his mind.

Depnty United States Marshal Walter Summers was here yesterday after William Moss and "Devil" Sam Gay, who are in the Pocahontas county jail doing time for trafficing in mean whiskey. This morning he took them to the Kanawha county jail thus giving them a change of quarters. We doubt if the change will be a good one for them. Moss is from North Carolina originally, but has been here some time. He doggedly contends that this is tne first time he has been convicted for this offense but it is learned that he has served time in Summers county for the same thing, and if this can be shown he will likely make another change of quarters after his trial is over. I think it would be great for each middle school, and the high school in Pocahontas County to have "The Middle Ground" in their library. It is a good book for students to read who want to learn more about the Civil War in Pocahontas County.

ANDREW M. CACKLEY.

Andrew M. Cackley was born in Pocahontas County, West Virginia, May 28, 1849, and died in Roanoke, Va., April 28, 1913.

When he was a lad his father moved to Greenbrier County, W. Va., and there he grew to manhood. He was converted at an early age and so clear was his conversion that people who were present said that he would be a preacher. Not long after that happy event God called him into the ministry. He was licensed to preach by the late Rev. W. G. Coe, then presiding elder of the Lewisburg District. He united with the Baltimore Conference in the year 1875.

He was happily married to Miss Annie Moomaw, of Petersburg, W. Va., who preceeded him to the heavenly home in the year 1901. Dr. Cackley

He was happily married to Miss Annie Moomaw, of Petersburg, W. Va., who preceeded him to the heavenly home in the year 1901. Dr. Cackley was one of the clearest expounders of the distinctive doctrines of Methodism the Conference has ever had. His own faith was so clear and the evidence of his own acceptance so unmistakable that he could but preach to others the eternal verities of his own experience. We have had greater preachers, as the world counts preaching, but am sure no one has ever more clearly illustrated in his life the doctrines he preached to others, or lived a more self-sacrificing life, for the sake of the things he preached, than he.

He gave minute directions concerning his funeral and then calmly waited, counting the slowly passing days before his Father came to take him to the home he so longed to enter.

His abiding faith and only hope for salvation was in the atonement of his Lord in which he trusted implicitly. As the hour sped by his Lord came nearer and nearer to him. Often upon his lips were the words of the hymn of which he was very fond, "My hope is on nothing less than Jesus' blood and righteousness." Like his Lord he suffered the awful pains of the dread disease without taking an opiate of any kind. He desired to die possessed of all his reasoning faculties. The end came while surrounded by his brethren of the ministry whom he loved, and the members of his household.

Brief services were held at the parsonage in Roanoke and his remains taken to Falls Church, Va.,

IN MEMORY

In Memory of Johnny G. Sharp, on his birthday, April 11.

Happy Birthday, Johnny,
It is sweet to breathe your name.
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
Often we think of you
And our hearts are sad with pain;
On, this would be a heaven,
If only we could hear your voice again.
You are gone but not forgotten,
Never shall your memory fade,
Sweetest thought shall always linger
Around your grave where you are laid.
If all the world was mine to give,
I'd give it, yes, and more,
To see you walking through our door.
We thank God for the life and love
You lived among us,
For in our hearts you are not gone,
Your memory will always be with us.
Now you are in God's care.

[Political History]
How We Came To Be In Pocahontas County

I sometimes think of and compare this remote section of Pochontas, the Upper Greenbrier, or Traveller's Repose, to an orphan. An orphan child is without natural parents, often has more than a normal number of adoptive parents, is tossed about from pillar to post, and is sometimes allowed by the courts to make its own decision as to where it will go.

We began as part of Orange County, Virginia. When Orange was divided in the fall session of the Virginia Legislature in 1738, it was split into Frederick and Augusta. Augusta became that part extending 240 miles along the crest of the Blue Ridge Mountain (running North and South) and then West to the Mississippi. Augusta has been called the mother of Counties. Out of Augusta was carved four states, a considerable portion of Virginia, as she now is, and thirty-three coun-this spring on Methodist Church in the Hill Country. The first work will be to level the building, pour concrete footers, and install a natural stone foundation. Robert Gillespie will be doing this work.

It is also hoped to be able to remove the siding that is now on the building to expose the original logs.
Chinking and other work will be done on the cemetery this summer.

The amount of work that is accomplished will depend upon the amount of money that is available.
The foundation work will cost about $1900. An amount of about $1100 is presently on hand. This money was raised by the ladies of the Mt. Zion Home Demonstration Club.
Donations for repair work on the church can be sent to Mrs. Moore, Trustee,
1 Second Avenue, Mar-

At present the church is being used for regular worship services but is the site of the annual homecoming.

Out of Augusta was carved four states, a considerable portion of Virginia, as she now is, and thirty-three counties southeast of the Ohio River, beginning with Botetourt in 1769.

Rockingham was carved from Augusta in 1778. In 1787 the German settlement north of "The Divide," that part of Rockingham west of the Shenandoah mountains, plus slices from Hardy and old Augusta was made the county of Pendleton. Scarcely two years later Bath was stricken off from Augusta and parts of Botetourt and Greenbrier. It took in that section west of the Shenandoah range and as far north as "The Divide," the whole upper James River Basin.

In 1796 the southern line of Pendleton was pushed southward a varying distance of four to twelve miles for no apparent reason. In that year also both Bath and Pendleton were enlarged by being made to take in the Upper Greenbrier Valley.

Thus, their west borders were changed from the crest of the main Alleghany to Back Alleghany. He has a very keen mind, reads a lot and is a very interesting person to listen to. In his late years he works on his scrap books, photograph albums, stamp collections and still works on the farm. A broken leg, a few years back, has slowed him down but he still loves to travel to different sites in West Virginia and go shopping. A family reunion held at the farm once a year is enjoyed by all. Six of his seven children are living—Dale, Belington; Noyle, Baltimore; Glade, at home; Veda, of Hinckley, Ohio; Stan, of Laurel, Maryland; and Madge, of Akron, Ohio. A daughter, Velma, died in 1977. Steven Hunter, Prosecuting Attorney of Pocahontas County, who soon after taking office informally announced that he would seek re-election some three and one half years later, has now formally announced that he is seeking re-election as a Democrat nominee for Prosecuting Attorney of Pocahontas County, West Virginia.

In addition to actively participating in criminal prosecution in both Magistrate and Circuit Courts, he has served as legal advisor to the Pocahontas County Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees and the Pocahontas County Board of Education, and as the Pocahontas County Commission Representative on the Region IV Planning and Development Council, having served two years as Chairman of that five-county organization. TO: The Citizens of Pocahontas County

I'm Johnny Beard and would like to introduce myself as the upcoming candidate for the Sheriff of Pocahontas County. I am a native of Pocahontas County and seeking your support in this Democrat Primary Election. I stand for fair and just treatment for all citizens of this county. Too many times the criminal has broken the law and justice is never served. Several constituents of this county have been abused, their homes broken into or their lives or property has been threatened or destroyed. I am elected the criminal element will pay their debt to society. Now is the time for a change in this county. No longer will the criminal element be able to "roam" the county at will. Please support me in the upcoming primary for law and order.
Thank you for your consideration and please register and vote to make your voice heard once again.

Clinton Forge? Can the Hospital be saved with our tax dollars alone? Why do we lose so many good doctors?

Our Hospital needs more than just a bandaid - more than it is now getting from the County Commission and the Hospital Board.

Here is my prescription for our Hospital:

1. New nominations to the Hospital Board for new ideas.

2. Combine the Hospital, in some way, with Denmar or another facility such as Memorial General at Elkins. Plans for both of these are under consideration and should be pursued more vigorously.

3. Add the Mental Health Center to the Hospital.

4. Encourage the use of the Hospital by all physicians in our County. Using the Hospital more will improve it.

5. Have a pharmacy in the Hospital. Those profits should go to the Hospital.

6. Provide public health programs through the Hospital, such as the medical services provided by ECD and the Public Health Nurse.

7. Continue present support by the County Commission.

8. Encourage local members of the Clergy to regularly visit patients and establish a chapel.

These are just a few suggestions. The County Commission should spend less time paving parking lots at the Court House and more time paving the way to a better Hospital and better health care for all of us.

R. T. Payne, of Warm Springs, has improved physically to such an extent that he is expected home the 26th. He will be accompanied by Dr. Warren, of Hot Springs, a trained nurse and his daughter, Mrs. W. J. Pritchard. Mr. Payne's mind is in a bad condition since the operation and the doctors think a change will be beneficial.

M. F. Herold has finished the outside work on his pretty house. Wonder if he will give us a dance when he brings the bird in.

B. F. Sharp took a load of wheat to the Dunmore mill Monday and returned the same day with his flour. He says that beats going to Millpoint and spending three days. The Dunmore roller mill is quite a convenience for this end of the county.

Family Planning Services

Family Planning Services, which have been offered for years through each of the states fifty-five county health departments, are now available more easily to an even wider spectrum of people at the Memorial General Hospital's satellite clinics offering everything from free advice to free vasectomies.

"They are free to everyone regardless of income," says Memorial General's satellite clinic director, Jim Zoller.

Free family planning services will be offered in Pocahontas County at the Green Bank Clinic in addition to the County Health Department.

Services offered are in four basic areas, including counseling, physical examinations, lab tests and actual distribution of contraceptives.

Counseling basically takes the form of distribution of literature plus personal contact with the person needing help with deciding how large their family should be and how to keep it the size they want it.

Physical examinations are used to determine what kind of contraceptive method is best for the patient, but may also discover any hidden problems that the patient may have.

Laboratory tests run the gamut from pap smears to detect cancer, to pregnancy and blood tests and tests for the presence of venereal diseases.

Finally, contraceptive methods available include birth control pills, diaphragms, interuterine devices (I. U. D. S.), foam, condoms and can even include vasectomies, sterilizations and tubal ligations. Funding for the project is from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare through the West Virginia State Family Planning Project, the same agencies which provide funds for the program conducted in the county health departments.

IRISHMEN CAPTURE EACH OTHER

In 1864 Gen. Wm. L. Jackson's brigade was in Pocahontas county, and the Federals in Randolph county, and only scouting parties occupied the considerable territory that lay between the opposing commands. Among the men of Jackson's cavalry was an Irishman by name of John Baker, who was fond of whiskey. One day he went to a still house in neutral territory to get his canteen filled, and when he came out there was a Yankee with his gun ready to fire, who told him to surrender. "Certainly," said Johny, and handed over his gun. They started off together, each on his own horse, and hadn't gone far before Baker discovered that his captor was also an Irishman. "What's the use quarreling over this thing," said Johnny, "we're both from the same country. Have a drink." The Yankee was agreeable, took the canteen and turned it up for a long drink. If people want to hump up and snooze, why not stay home and not waste fuel coming to a meeting. If you come, why not express yourselves. Instead of looking down your nose at me when I ask questions that I feel are pertinent, ASK SOME YOURSELF! If you'll talk, I'll listen and if no one can say something constructive I'll go home. Thanks for the letters, cards, phone calls and greetings on the street. At least, I think you know that I stand for something and I'm always ready to "mouth off" about it.

Arbovale, W. Va., Nov. 26, 1913 —We appreciate this fine weather after the recent snow and rain. The roads are good, and the telephone lines are in working order once more.

Postmasters have been informed by a special letter from the First Assistant Postmaster Geneaal, that the words, "not to be opened until Christmas," may now be written on parcels sent through the mails.

The same letter advises early shipment of Christmas parcels to insure their delivery on or before Christmas day.

The mails are always very heavy about Christmas times and it will relieve the usual congested conditions very much if those who can conveniently do so will mail their Christmas packages early and thus contribute to the possibility of having them delivered in due time.

Your Pocahontas Memorial Hospital

As readers of this paper and anyone who is not totally isolated know, the Pocahontas Memorial Hospital is a common topic of conversation. Unfortunately, most of these conversations seem to concern either the problems facing the Hospital or various criticisms of the Hospital and its staff.

Although there are problems, most of them financial, with the Hospital, that does not alter the fact that it and its employees provide good medical care to their patients. In addition, a number of improvements have been made in the Hospital physical plant and equipment in the past year or so.

To give our readers an idea of what improvements have been made to the

On Hallowe'en eve it was suggested that the High School class have a masquerade party. Those who live in the country remained, and about eight o'clock the members of the class were masked and assembled at A. B. McCombs. From there they visited the stores and then proceeded to Henry McComb's, where, after a period of guessing, they were delightfully entertained until it was time to return home. They then returned to their starting place where the company dispersed, each returning to their own homes. All greatly enjoyed the occasion.

HILLSBORO GRADED AND HIGH SCHOOL

Following is the honor roll for the second month. It shows a marked improvement over that of the first month, and I wish to thank those teachers and parents whose efforts and cooperation have brought about this improvement.

I hope all notice carefully the per-cent of attendance for the different rooms; and let me suggest that we have a vigorous competition between rooms for the highest average per cent, and also between the boys and girls of each room for the highest per cent of attendance. We can do better this third month. Remember "there is plenty of room at the top." We shall not feel crowded if we have 100 per cent attendance from each department. Perfect attendance means good and well connected work, better interest and a fuller enjoyment of school life. H. D. Rohn.

This game bird is being introduced in the State and is protected by law the whole year, the penalty for killing one being a fine of $25. Elmore had never seen nor heard of this fine game bird and when one them got up before him all of a sudden, almost as large as a small turkey and as gaudy as a pea cock, he shot and killed it. The matter was taken up by State Game Warden Viquesney, who investigated thoroughly and decided that this was not a case to be prosecuted, as the young man had not intentionally violated the game law.

The bird killed was one of a number liberated on the preserve of the Allegheny Sportsmen's Association, ten miles from the place it was killed. The game warden will have it mounted. This specimen would weigh about three pounds, has a tail eighteen inches long, and beautifully colored.

It is thought the Mongolian pheasant will thrive here, and that the country is well adapted to it. A number of years since a dozen or so pairs were liberated in the State of Oregon, and for a number of years rigidly protected. Last season it is estimated that no less than 50,000 were killed.

Political Adv. Paid by Candidate.

ANNOUNCEMENT

An effort is being made to determine if there is enough interest among the citizens of Pocahontas County to form a local chapter of the L5 Society.

The L5 Society, headquartered in Tucson, Arizona, is an organization whose sole reason for being is to prompt, to inspire, the human family to move towards its reasonable destiny. That destiny, we feel, lies "out there" among the stars. For, we are certain, earth alone is not big enough to answer life's full potential. Though not a religious group, the L5 Society is concerned for man's salvation. Though not a political movement, it is concerned for man's achievement of world unity and brotherhood. Though espousing no particular economic philosophy, it is concerned for man's material surfeit.

The great divisions along religious, political, and economic lines have brought humankind to the threshold of extinction, to the crisis of self-annihilation. It is so because we still live in the past. We still cling to ancien tforms. We have a universe to conquer, yet retarded souls can only think of conquering their fellowman for communism or capitalism, or Islam, or Protestantism, or Catholicism, or mother country. Let us throw those rusty old chains away. They are causing our brothers and sisters to die. Nationalism - no more. Constrictive ideologies, of whatever kind - never again. The time for synthesis has come. The day of transcendence is here. We are one race, homo sapiens, terra firma. We have one hope, to live forever; to grasp the boundless reaches of the great beyond; to achieve a glorious fulfillment.

On to the stars! If you are interested write or call:

Washington, Nov. 10.—Virginia won the preliminary skirmish in the Supreme Court today in an effort to obtain a final settlement of the old debt controversy with West Virgsnia. Chief Justice White fixed April 13 as the date for final hearing of the case, which had been set at the head of the calendar of that date.

The Supreme Court in a decision a year or so ago, fixed the amount of principal which West Virginia shall pay the holders of the old Virginia bonds as its share of that indebtedness. The court did not fix the amount of interest, but suggested that the two States appoint commissions to decide upon the amount.

The commissioners could not agree and the Virginians a month ago asked the Supreme Court to adjudicate the interest controversy. West Virginia objected on the ground that with more time that question may be settled.

All-County Instrumentalist of the Year

Receiving a perfect score on her All-County Band try-outs, performing as an outstanding musician in her own Middle School Band of Marlinton, Miss Gina Moore has been selected as the All-County Instrumentalist of 1980.

Gina is an eighth grade student at the Marlinton Middle School. She began playing the Alto Saxophone in the sixth grade and has performed in instrumental music events such as the Region IV Solo and Ensemble Festival, and numerous school and public concerts.

Over 40 instrumentalists auditioned for positions in this year's All-County Band, and it was no easy task to come up with a perfect score and receive the trophy inscribed "1980 All-County Instrumentalist." Congratulations to Gina Moore!!

Suzy battled for five rounds with the two top spellers before misspelling "sapphire."

Jill Hardenburg, of Kanawha County, was champion, winning over Cathy Smith, of Nicholas County, who won the past two years. The two students dueled for eight rounds, with both girls misspelling the words "hibachi" and "amaryllis." Finally, Miss Smith missed "medallion," and Miss Hardenburg cor-

HOUSE WARMING

The opening of the clubhouse of the Allegheny Sportsmen's Association at Minnehaha Springs last week could not well have been more auspicious. The occasion was the seventh annual meeting of the West Virginia Forest, Fish and Game Protective Association. Some forty odd members from out of the county were in attendance, and on Thursday night more than three hundred persons gathered in the big lobby of the clubhouse before the large open fire place to doar the speeches and listen to the fine music by the Marlinton Orchestra.

Among those who addressed the association were the Rev. Dr. Hammond, of St. Marys; Hon. J. A. Viquesney, of Belington; Hon. A. D. Williams, of Morgantown; Dr. T. S. Palmer, of Washington, D. C.; Judge Dice, H. M. Lockridge, and Hon. T. M. Schil-

Smith missed "medallion," and Miss Hardenburg correctly spelled that word and then took the title by spelling "narcolepsy."

All the regional contestants were given a copy of The American Heritage Collegiate Dictionary. Suzy also received her $50 bond as county winner and as third place winner Allan Carpenter's book, West Virginia. Following the Spelling Bee the contestants and their parents were entertained with lunch at the Charleston House Holiday Inn. Mrs. James Fleming and Mrs. Richard Newkirk accompanied the girls to Charleston. The Pocahontas Times sponsored the local Spelling Bee.

M. J. Walters and J. B. Peters of the United States Geological Survey were in town this week to measure the amount of water flowing down Greenbrier River. They would measure the width of the stream, the depth of the water, and then with an instrument ascertain the speed of the current per second. In one day over three hundred of these measurements were taken. For many months daily readings of a water guage on Campbell's bridge have been recorded. With these measurements and the yearly record of the water guage, the amount of water carried by the river at any stage can be ascertained with a reasonable degree of accurrcy.

X Vote For Lynn D. Jo

The GOALS of C. C. BECK for Sheriff of Pocahontas County, if elected.

[1] Have men available at all times for service to the public. To have an ample office staff to take care of the public. I believe that the sheriff should be in the field as much as possible.

[2] I believe, with 25 years of police experience and training, that I can train the deputies and any other police departments in the county with the help of the prosecuting attorney's office. I believe that this can save the county, in a round about way, $9,000. This training could take place during a deputy's duty hours so if needed the deputies can be available for their duties.

[3] I believe that the county would have better enforcement if the State Police, City Police, Game Wardens, and Sheriff's Office would work together to exchange information and views; that drunks and pot users should be taken out of taverns, streets and highways before they get in a vehicle and kill someone; also a lot of crimes can be prevented by increased patrol and activities. Law begins in the home and schools. If the home and schools do not have the backbone to guide, train and correct there is not much chance for the law to succeed. Parents that say they don't know what their children are doing and what they are into are kidding themselves. Remember, the law is just as good as the people it is trying to serve.

[4] Would like to organize a Sheriff's Posse [all volunteer] to be used in rescue and search parties, traffic control such as Pioneer Days, sporting events, to get the family and community interested in community affairs, to show how the law works, in what you can do to help. Would like to form a mounted horse Sheriff's Posse. Can you see our people in a parade representing the county?

I'd Rather Be Tired Than Lonely

A few years ago when my children were small
And I had so much to do
I'd often wonder at the close of the day
If my work would ever be through.

There was washing and ironing and mending
And work of every kind
Till sometimes I grew tired and weary
Both in body and mind.

There were little hands and faces to be washed
Little hungry mouths to feed
And a thousand other duties kept me busy
Till it was time to go to bed.

Sometimes my footsteps were heavy
And I wished that I might slip away
And rest my weary self
For just a single day

Now the years have passed so quickly
All my little ones are grown
Not a single one is with me

Cass To Receive Additional Engine

Chessie System Railroads and the Cass Scenic Railroad have jointly announced that the largest and last Shay steam locomotice ever built will be leased for 10 years of operation from the B&O Railroad Museum to the State of West Virginia.

Western Maryland Railway Shay No. 6, a three-truck, coal-fired, 162-ton steamer erected by the Lima (Ohio) Locomotive Works in 1945 as the very last of its type, is expected to move to Cass later this year from its location for the last 26 years—Chesie's own world-famous B&O Railroad Museum in downtown Baltimore.

The announcement of Chessie's offer was made during the spring meeting of the Tourist Railway Association, Inc., the national organization of owners and operators of America's tourist railroads, in session at Cass last weekend.

Because No. 6 was used for only eight years on ists beginning in 1981 up the 12 twisting miles of tract to the top of Cheat Mountain.

In return for the lease of WM No. 6 for 10 years of operation, Cass will lease two of its steam locomotives to the B&O for display. No. 1, a 1905 Shay that is too old to rebuild, and No. 714, a former U. S. Government O-4-O saddletank engine built in 1950 as the last steamer erected by the Porter Locomotive Works of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, will join two dozen locomotives already exhibited on the site of America's first depot.

Governor Rockefeller expressed his appreciation to the Chessie System and Chessie Chairman Hays T. Watkins, who approved the exchange, said they were glad to be able to help their friends in West Virginia.

Cass will operate No. 6 with "WESTERN MARYLAND" painted in bold letters on the sides of her coal and water tender. The tourist line also will attach a

The announcement of Chessie's offer was made during the spring meeting of the Tourist Railway Association, Inc., the national organization of owners and operators of America's tourist railroads, in session at Cass last weekend.

Because No. 6 was used for only eight years on Western Maryland's steep, three-mile coal mine branch from Chaffee, West Virginia, to Vindex, Maryland, and has been displayed indoors at the B&O Museum's huge roundhouse since her retirement, Cass officials believe only minor refurbishing will be necessary to operate her under steam once again.

Plans are for Cass shop people to overhaul No. 6 this winter in time for hauling thousands of tour-

Governor Rockefeller expressed his appreciation to the Chessie System and Chessie Chairman Hays T. Watkins, who approved the exchange, said they were glad to be able to help their friends in West Virginia.

Cass will operate No. 6 with "WESTERN MARYLAND" painted in bold letters on the sides of her coal and water tender. The tourist line also will attach a bronze plaque to No. 6's tender, signifying her loan from the B&O Museum's collection.

Before her transfer to Baltimore, Cass will letter its Shay No. 1 "Greenbrier Cheat & Elk," one of the names under which she ran in log-train service years ago, connecting with branch lines of both Chesapeake and Ohio and Western Maryland railways, now Chessie subsidiaries. Chessie has agreed to transfer the three locomotives.

Shays are designed for low-speed service, seldom running above 12 m.p.h., but are powerful, specially-geared locomotives that were invented and patented by Ephraim Shay, a Michigan lumberman and mechanical genius. Shay designed his awkward-looking engines to pull loads of logs over grades too steep and rough too uneven for ordinary rod-driven steam locomotives.

Shays were used very successfully in logging and similar unglamorous service for almost 100 years until the last few were retired in the 1960's. They operated—usually in remote areas—in many parts of the world, in most of the United States, and ran quite extensively in West Virginia.

The first of only 2,770 Shays was built in 1878 in the Michigan backwoods. The last one was this Western Maryland No. 6, completed at Lima on May 14, 1945.

County Court.

A special session of the county court was held Tuesday, October 28th, with commissioners N. R. Price, B. M. Arbogast and James Darnell present.

Road and other bills examined by the court and ordered paid, and the final report of Road Engineer Kramer received and approved, Mr. Kramer having served two years and one month as road engineer for the county.

The court then took up the matter of the appointment of a road engineer. The written application of James C. Ayers, of Cass, was received for the position. Mr. Ayers is the son of Dr. Ayres, of Cass and is at present associated with the Ohio State Road Bureau, at Cincinnati. R. S. Hickman, late member of the county court, addressed the commissioners in the interest of Mr. Ayres and unqualifiedly recommended him for the position. By a vote of two to one the court decided to discontinue the office of road engineer, Messrs Arbogast and Darnell voting to discontinue and Dr. N. R. Price opposing the motion. An order to that effect was entered. While there are a number of taxpayers in the county who were in favor of discontinuing the office, there were others who wanted to see it continued. In the Levels a petition was gotten up favoring it and this was

Traveller's Repose
(Topography)

A Civil War soldier encamped at Traveller's Repose in 1861 took a look at his surroundings and noted in his diary that what he saw was a huge bowl resembling an amphitheater, a narrow valley surrounded on all sides by high hills and mountains.

If the soldier was encamped, and he most likely was, on the hill back of my house he could not see the Dunlevie, Winterburn area (Thornwood). A ridge that juts down into the valley from Frank Mountain obstructs the view. Papa always referred to that hill and pasture as the Joshua-way clearin'.

Nor could the soldier have seen present day Durbin, because the mountains seem to come together below Frank be-

Nor could the soldier have seen present day Durbin, because the mountains seem to come together below Frank before one enters Durbin from the East. This narrowing of the valley at that point has always been referred to by the old timers as "the Narrows." It was here that the Jacob Gillispie Slaven built their attractive home that became widely known and was frequented by Stonewall Jackson, Joe Johnson and many other famous people. It is said too, that Henry Clay had a hunting camp at the Narrows.

Approximately five miles long, from Winterburn to Durbin, the valley varies in width from a few hundred feet at the Narrows to perhaps a half or three quarters of a mile at Bartow. Below the Narrows the valley widens briefly again to permit the main street of Durbin and the

This north section of Pocahontas is a part of the high region where nearly every river system of Virginia finds its head springs; hence the designation, "Birthplace of Rivers." The Greenbrier rises in the north highlands and flows the entire length of the County, almost bisecting it. It is fed during its trek through this valley by Little River and runs by the names of Five Mile, Gum Cabin, Reservoir, John's, Bens, Selmon, and other small brooks. of the Cass Road district.

According to State Police, Kevin Weatherholt, of Marlinton, driving a 1978 Chevette, crossed the center line and hit a 1979 Chevrolet pickup driven by Pamela Bennett, of Dunmore.

Responding to the accident were ambulances from Cass and the Observatory and a fire truck from Durbin. Also responding were equipment and men from the Marlinton Rescue Squad, but they were not needed.

Ms. Bennett was not injured. A passenger with her, Brenda Cook, of Dunmore, Mr. Weatherholt, and his passenger, Laura Crist, of Arbovale, were taken to Memorial General Hospital at Elkins, after treatment at the Green Bank Clinic. Our information is that the girls were not seriously hurt but Mr. Weatherholt suffered cuts and possibly a bruised ring.

The Chevette was totaled and the pickup received moderate damage.

If it were possible for it to pursue its straight course, just below Durbin it would flow through Millston Mountain. However, after accepting the waters of the West Fork, perhaps a quarter of a mile below Durbin, the Greenbrier is forced by the Brand Ford Point Mountain on its left and Millstone in front to make an almost ninety degree turn to the left, whereupon it assumes a southerly course and flows through Nottingham, Hosterman, Cass, Clover Lick, Marlinton,

Since the dawn of creation in all the world we do not believe there was ever such a case just like this. Its a case of locking up a cow's tits so she couldn't be milked. As impossible as it would seem at first thought the feat was occomplished in an ingenious manner the other day by Warden Waugh, who lives near Edray, Pocahontas county. It all came about in this way. Last March Waugh contracted to clear up some ground for Elmer Poage, a neighbor, for which he was to receive a pig and $48 cash. Before he completed his contract he made another to clear up some more land for which he was to get a cow and $25 in money. The second contract was made sometime last June. The mountain constantly in view is Burner Mountain, unquestionably named for the pioneer family who owned at least part of it and lived on its foothill. The top, minus the crater, and its western slope particularly resemble that sacred mountain of Japan, the climbing of which in 1969 with my family is a very special memory. On Burner's top is Chestnut Flats, acres and acres of flat land. After it was timbered we grazed sheep up there in the summers of the 1920's, and made a weekly trip up the west slope by horseback to salt, and check on bear activity. Now, the Forest Service radio tower and "Red" Kane's TV antenna are up there, and they go up by Jeep.

That Poage might not milk the cow while it was still in his posession or until he could complete his job and lead her home as his own property, Waugh conceived a brilliant scheme and he hastened to Marlinton bright and early Sunday morning to consult a lawyer as to the legality of the act that he was in the notion of committing. The lawyer thought the thing an impossibility and told his client if he could do such a thing he (the lawyer) would see him (the client) through with it. Then Waugh went home, got a gunny sack and fastened it around the cows udder in such a manner with ropes and padlocks and wire that it would have required the service of a handcuff artist, himself, to undo the thing. However the case was adjusted amicably Monday by compromise, and in due time it is to be hoped that Waugh will finish the job and get lawful possession of the bovine. In the meantime he will be permitted to milk the cow by Poage provided he does it in daylight.

In the far distance from Traveller's Repose, three miles to the West, is a most respected mountain. Whether seeking inspiration, a clue to the day's weather, or a glimpse of pure majestic beauty, viewing Cheat from a West window has been a morning ritual for as long as I can remember.

No one adjective or noun could describe the many moods of Cheat. Whoever named her Cheat could possibly have done no better. Even in this day of modern roads and transportation she restricts our comings and goings. She may let us cross her, but quite possibly not let us return exactly when we choose. She is a hunter's paradise, but in her vast wilderness he may find his way home or he may not. Only a few have chosen to brave her rugged terrain and live on her slopes. She is deceptive, capricious, formidable!

Try as I may, I could never describe her like my

Some time ago "Bill Fisher, of Huntersville, was on James Shisler's farm at Huntersville and saw two dead deer, and feathers from a wild turkey. He saw a varmint at a distance of 250 feet or so. He says it was a light tan colored animal, long body and tail. From time to time three other people reported seeing a varmint in the Brushy Mountain area. Before I knew any of this, a number of deer had been coming into my field every day, now all of a sudden the deer don't show up. The fact that it has been seen over a two year period by different people at different places serves to take this out of the tall story club. We do know mountain lions have been killed in the County. This varmint is very likely to stay in this area because of the supply of deer and turkey population. It will end up killing more game animals and driving others out of the area. If any one happens to see this varmint, please report it so something can be done to stop the destruction of game animals.

Greenbrier River Trail Park
State Parks Chief Don Andrews and Monongahela National Forest Supervisor Ralph Mumme and members of their staff last Friday toured the newest Park in West Virginia — the Greenbrier River Trail. It is 75 miles long and as wide as the railroad right of way, an ideal scenic trail for hiking and biking.

The 1980 Legislature purchased the section of usable railroad with ties and rails from Cass to Durbin, for use by the Cass Railroad, and the Chessie System will donate the remaining 75 miles of right of way.

Although some owners feel the land should revert to them, the attorney general has ruled that the abandonment provisions called for holding the grade in case a railroad should be needed in future years and the right of way would be held intact.

Although the State won't get possession until July, the Chessie system has given permission to enter and erect signs and barricades barring motorized travel. The trail will be damaged if vehicles travel it and the law prohibits it.

Social Security
Farm Labor Coverage
Explained

This is the time of year that many area farmers are hiring summer workers, and they should know the rules concerning social security coverage, Jim Swaim, social security field representative in Covington, said recently.

It is important that farm employers keep the proper records and report their employee's earnings for social security purposes. Employers should record their employee's name, address, social security number, wages paid, and their own employer identification number. This information is needed, Swaim said, so that if reports are required, they can be made promptly and accurately.

If the workers' wages are covered, then social security taxes must be withheld. Agricultural wages are covered if the employee is paid $150 or more in cash wages during the year.

Also, if an employee is paid on a time basis—by the hour, day, week, or month—all of his or her wages are covered when the employee works on 20 or more days during the year.

Wages covered by social security should be reported by the farm employer after the end of the year

All live in this county except the first named who lives in Highland. Another son, Brown, preceded him to the grave just on month to the day. Deceased was a member of the Presbyterian church for a number of years. A large concourse of sorrowing friends and relatives were present to witness the last sad rites. All Day Meeting.

An all day meeting was held at the Huntersville Methodist church last Sunday. The occasion was a talk in the morning by Miss Sadie Rexrode, of Highland county, who labored for five years among the savage tribes of Africa as a missionary. In the afternoon Rev. J. H. Dinner in abundance was served in the church yard, nearly all of the families nearby in attendance furnishing sufficient to feed the immense crowd that was present. None went away hungry. LYNN JORDAN
Republican Candidate for ASSESSOR
Asks For Your VOTE and SUPPORT

TO THE CITIZENS OF POCAHONTAS COUNTY I feel that there are several very important issues concerning our County and the needs of our people.

I pledge that if elected I will:

[1] Work to establish assessments on an equal level so that all individuals are treated equally.

[2] Devote extra time and effort to our citizens. I will not be an absentee Assessor.

[3] Seek out all out-of-County landowners and make sure that they pay their fair share.

[4] Stand up for our County by supporting any efforts to help get more Industry for jobs for our people.

[5] Not use the Assessors office for personal gain. I feel that politics and personal friendships should not enter my service to the people.

[6] Get qualified Deputy Assessors regardless of political status or personal friendships.

My major emphasis for Pocahontas County will be to work for the people. We in Pocahontas are rich in highly skilled, hard working people. We must SERVE THEM BETTER in order to give our younger generation a chance to stay in our County.

As a farmer and land owner, I know how hard our people work for their living. I feel that we must treat every person as an individual. I pledge and promise to work HONESTLY for our citizens and ask your support on June 3.

To The Citizens Of Pocahontas County:

DO YOU FEEL that the Board of Education has assumed its full share of responsibility for the administration of Pocahontas County schools?

DOES THE SUPERINTENDENT ask for, or even tolerate, points of view or solutions that vary from his own?

DOES HE ATTEMPT to surround himself with "yes" people?

DO MANY TEACHERS feel that the superintendent's office considers their teaching ability of less importance than their dedication to the superintendent?

DO SOME PRINCIPALS, teachers, and other employees feel intimidated, harassed, and threatened?

TEACHERS PAY their own dues to professional associations to which they belong. Should the Board of Education pay the personal dues of an official to his or her professional organization?

IS THE MORALE of many school employees at a low ebb?

On Tuesday night, September, 9th, the slaughter house belonging to Dudley & Kramer, at Thornwood, was burned. The fire occurred between 8 and 9 o'clock. There is little doubt that the fire was the work of an incendiary, for when discovered the flames flashed up to a great height, showing that oil or gasoline was first applied before setting the match to it. Suspects are under surveillance. The loss is estimated at $500 and included besides the building, a stove, a large kettle and a number of hides. There was no insurance.

the Commonwealth of Virginia to permit the passage of horseback riders and wagons.

By 1790 this pioneer road was known as the Riffle Road by extending as it did from the Crabbottom to the home of Francis Riffle, an early settler of Tygarts Valley, whose house was at the foot of Cheat Mountain on the Randolph side. Note markers as you cross the mountain now of Riffle Creek and Riffle Creek Road.

In 1826 when Virginia was embarking upon an extensive program of road building, the Assembly ordered the County Commissioners of the Counties of Pendleton, Pocahontas, Randolph, Lewis and Wood to meet at the mouth of Riffle Creek to determine the location and extension of the road from there to Beverly and on to Weston and the Ohio River.

Foreigners Strike.

Last Thursday a gang of Italians working for the Spruce people on the railroad grade on Elk went on a strike for shorter hours. In true strike style they tried to prevent others of their race from working and in the melee which followed several Italians were done up pretty badly. Fifteen of the strikers were arrested by Sheriff Cochran, and brought to Marlinton Friday. With their packs and baggage they looked like a party of emigrants just arriving on American soil as they were marched through town. Three of the ring leaders were fined $10 each by Justice Smith.

TO THE VOTERS OF POCAHONTAS COUNTY:

In March of this year we offered for your consideration a proposed bond issue which, if approved by the voters, would have provided three new middle schools at a cost to the average taxpayer of a 30% increase in his property tax. Only 37.5% of those voting favored this solution to the problem of deteriorating middle school facilities. The bond failed; the problem remains. In Hillsboro and Green Bank we have old buildings that are running down. In Marlinton we have temporary buildings that, after 12 years, have just about outlived their usefulness. We feel it is our duty to continue to seek a solution to this problem which will meet the needs of students and teachers while satisfying the desires of you, the taxpayers.

After the March election, we talked to people around the county in an attempt to find out what they wanted done about the middle school situation. In the proposed bond to be presented at the election on June 3 we have made the following changes:

Hillsboro: We propose to renovate the existing building, instead of putting up a new one.

Marlinton: The same building as proposed before, with the addition of 250 seats in the gym and an enlargement of that gym.

Green Bank: The same building as proposed before, with the addition of a separate cateferia. The first plan called for a combined cafeteria/gym.

In addition all proposed will be heated electrically as opposed to oil.

These added features, together with inflation, will raise the overall cost of the project to $3.7 million, up $400,000. However, an increase of some $9,000,000 plus in the county's property tax base this year will

THE PEARIS FAMILY

The ancestors of this family were Huguenots, who fled from France, stopping temporarily in Barbadoes, thence about 1710, to South Carolina, locating on an island about five miles from Port Royal, to which they gave the name "Paris Island." This name is sometimes spelled "Pearris," again "Pearis"; and "Paris" the modern spelling being Pearis. The settler was Alexander Pearis (Parris), who became quite a distinguished man in the early days of the history of South Carolina.

Judge McGrady, in his History of South Carolina under the Proprietary Government, 1670-1719, gives considerable prominence to Col. Alexander Pearis, whom he shows to have been Commissioner of Free Schools, Commissioner for Building Churches, Member of House of Commons, of which Col. Wm. Rhett was Speaker; as a military officer and one of the Judges to try pirates, and as commander of militia in the Revolution of 1719. Col Alexander Pearis has a son, Alexander Pearis, Jr., had a son, John Alexander, who likewise had a son, John Alexander, as shown by his will probated August 1752. The last mentioned John Alexander had a son, Robert, who spelled his name as did his father, John Alexander "Pearis." This Robert Pearis died about 1761; he had a daughter, Malinda, who married Samuel Pepper, who removed to the New River Valley prior to 1770, and located at the place where, about 1780, he established a ferry, and which place has since been known as Peppers. His two brothers-in-law, George and Robert Alexander Pearis, sons of the preceding Robert, came with him, or about the same time. At the date of the coming of Pepper and the Pearises, in fact before that date, there lived in the neighborhood where Pepper located, a gentleman by the name of Joseph Howe, who had some pretty daughters, and it did not take long for these young Huguenots to fall in love with these girls, at least with two of them. An examination of the Pearis Bible discloses that George Pearis was born February 16, 1745, and was married to Eleanor Howe February 26th, 1771. Robert Alexander Pearis was probably two years younger than his brother, George. He married also a daughter of Joseph Howe, and about 1790 removed with his family to Kentucky and settled in what is now Bourbon County, and from whom it is said the town of Paris, in that county, is named. He had a son who in the early history of that state was a member of its Legislature. George Pearis remained in the vicinity of Pepper's Ferry until the spring of 1782; prior to this time he had been made a Captain of one of the militia companies of the County of Montgomery.

On the advance of the British army into the Carolinas, in the fall of 1780, there was a Tory uprising in Surry County, North Carolinia, of such formidable proportion as to impel Gen. Martin Armstrong, comanding that military district, to call on Major Joseph Cloyd of Montgomery County militia, to aid in its suppression. About the last day of October, 1780, Major Cloyd with three companies of mounted men, one of which was commanded by Capt. George Pearis, marched to the State of North Carolina, where he was joined by some of the militia of that state, augmenting his force to about 160 men, with which he on the 14th day of the month, attacted the Tories at Shallow Ford of the Yodkin, defeating them with a loss of fifteen killed and a number wounded; Maj. Cloyd had one killed and a few wounded, among them Capt. Pearis, severely, through the shoulder. This fight cleared the way for the crossing of Gen. Green's army at this f[illegible] which the Tories were seeking to obstruct. Capt. Pearis returned home wou[illegible] and in addition to his suffering from his wound he had the misfortune to l[illegible] his wife by death in a few days after his return, she dying on November 1[illegible] Capt. His two brothers-in-law, George and Robert Alexander Pearis, sons of the preceding Robert, came with him, or about the same time. At the date of the coming of Pepper and the Pearises, in fact before that date, there lived in the neighborhood where Pepper located, a gentleman by the name of Joseph Howe, who had some pretty daughters, and it did not take long for these young Huguenots to fall in love with these girls, at least with two of them. An examination of the Pearis Bible discloses that George Pearis was born February 16, 1745, and was married to Eleanor Howe February 26th, 1771. Robert Alexander Pearis was probably two years younger than his brother, George. He married also a daughter of Joseph Howe, and about 1790 removed with his family to Kentucky and settled in what is now Bourbon County, and from whom it is said the town of Paris, in that county, is named. He had a son who in the early history of that state was a member of its Legislature. George Pearis remained in the vicinity of Pepper's Ferry until the spring of 1782; prior to this time he had been made a Captain of one of the militia companies of the County of Montgomery.

About the last day of October, 1780, Major Cloyd with three companies of mounted men, one of which was commanded by Capt. George Pearis, marched to the State of North Carolina, where he was joined by some of the militia of that state, augmenting his force to about 160 men, with which he on the 14th day of the month, attacted the Tories at Shallow Ford of the Yodkin, defeating them with a loss of fifteen killed and a number wounded; Maj. Cloyd had one killed and a few wounded, among them Capt. Pearis, severely, through the shoulder. This fight cleared the way for the crossing of Gen. These added features, together with inflation, will raise the overall cost of the project to $3.7 million, up $400,000. However, an increase of some $9,000,000 plus in the county's property tax base this year will mean that the impact on the average taxpayer will be only slightly higher than the previous proposal.

We realize that in inflation-ridden times such as these there's a great temptation to vote against school bond issues, if only because it's the only part of our sky-rocketing cost of living the average person has any control over. Nevertheless, something has to be done about our middle schools, and the longer we wait the more it will cost to get the job done. All Pocahontas Countians can agree that our children deserve first class schools; we hope you will take the time before Election Day to visit the middle school in your community to see for yourself just why we think it's so important to upgrade these facilities.

Naturally, we'd be pleased to see the 37.5% "yes" vote we got last time jumped to the 60% needed to pass the bond. But we're not going to tell you the world will come to an end if it doesn't pass this time. All we can say is, we've done our best to come up with a sensible plan, and we hope you'll approve of it. If you don't, we pledge ourselves to keep on until we can come up with a plan that meets with your approval. If we just gave up, we'd be failing in our most important duty as members of the Board of Education—our duty to the children.

THE PEARIS FAMILY

The ancestors of this family were Huguenots, who fled from France, stopping temporarily in Barbadoes, thence about 1710, to South Carolina, locating on an island about five miles from Port Royal, to which they gave the name "Paris Island." This name is sometimes spelled "Pearris," again "Pearis"; and "Paris" the modern spelling being Pearis. The settler was Alexander Pearis (Parris), who became quite a distinguished man in the early days of the history of South Carolina.

Judge McGrady, in his History of South Carolina under the Proprietary Government, 1679-1719, gives considerable prominence to Col. Alexander Pearis, whom he shows to have been Commissioner of Free Schools, Commissioner for Building Churches, Member of House of Commons, of which Col. Wm. Rhett was Speaker; as a military officer and one of the Judges to try pirates, and as commander of militia in the Revolution of 1719. Col Alexander Pearis has a son, Alexander Pearis, Jr., had a son, John Alexander, who likewise had a son, John Alexander, as shown by his will probated August 1752. The last mentioned John Alexander had a son, Robert, who spelled his name as did his father, John Alexander "Pearis." This Robert Pearis died about 1781; he had a daughter, Malinda, who married Samuel Pepper, who removed to the New River Valley prior to 1770, and located at the place where, about 1780, he established a ferry, and which place has since been known as Peppers. His two brothers-in-law, George and Robert Alexander Pearis, sons of the preceding Robert, came with him, or about the same time. At the date of the coming of Pepper and the Pearises, in fact before that date, there lived in the neighborhood where Pepper located, a gentleman by the name of Joseph Howe, who had some pretty daughters, and it did not take long for these young Huguenots to fall in love with these girls, at least with two of them. Hoge Tyler, late Governor of Virginia, who is a direct descendant to the Joseph Howe, a sketch of whose family here follows:

The Howe family, not unlike the Hoge family, with which it is so nearly related, also commences with a little romantic episode in the lives of the first American representatives. Joseph Howe, and English gentlemen, first cousin of Lord Howe and General Wayne of Revolutionary fame, came to America in 1737. On board the vessel that brought him over was a beautiful and captivating girl by the name of Eleanor Dunbar, the tow young people fell in love with each other on the voyage and married soon after landing and settled near Boston, Mass.; from which point they drifted soughward and finally settled in the rugged regions of southwestern Virginia when the country was quite a trackless wilderness. They made their home on Back Creek as nearly as can be established, in 1757 or 1758, and this old homestead, the scene of many pleasant revelries and charming reunions, is still in possession of one of the representative of the family, Mrs. Agnes Howe DeJarnette, a great-granddaughter of its founder. Joseph Howe had three sons, Joseph, John, and Daniel; of Joseph there is nothing know, he having left home in early life; John seems to have left no family.

Daniel was an officer in the Revolutionary war, was a man of strong mind and hight character. He married Nancy Haven and had three sons, Joseph H.; John Dunbar, and William H.; and seven daughters, Ruth, Julia, Eleanor, Elizabeth, Lucretia, Nancy and Luemma. Joseph married Margaret Freely; John D. married Sarah Sheppard; William married Mary Fisher; Ruth married Thomas Kirk, and removed to Missouri; Julia married Zecharia Cecil; Eleanor married General James Hoge; Elizabeth married Colonel George Neeley Fearis; Lucretia married Colonel William Thomas; Nancy married Honorable Harvey Deskins; and Luemma married Dr. Jackson.

The children of Joseph Howe and Margaret Feeley were: Eleanor, who married Reuben Sawyers; Lucretia, who married Colonel William J. Jordan; Eliza, who married _____ Massan; Brown, who married William G. Farris; Ollie, who married S. F. Watson; Sue, who never married.

The children of John Dunbar Howe and Sarah, his wife, are as follows: Margaret, who married George Shannon; Susan, who married J. M. Thomas; Eliza A., who married Charles J. Matthews; Ellen Mary, who married J. G. Kent; John F., who married Sallie DeJarnette; Samuel S., who died a prisoner of war at Point Lookout; Haven D., who married Captain E. G. DeJarnette and lived at the old place.

THE HOWE

There are difficulties in the way of tracing back this family to its English origin. Tradition has to be largely relied upon, and this, as presented by different branches of the family, differs as to the first of the family that crossed the Atlantic, and as to the place of first settlement. One statement is that a Joseph How, belonged to a family of that name long domiciled in the state of Massachusetts, enlisted and served a a soldire in the French and Indian war in which he was supposed to have been lost, but afterward found in the New River Valley, where later he added the letter "e" to the name, the original spelling of the name being How, afterwards Howe. How much of this statement is correct cannot be determined. The author has chosen to follow copies of the "Howe MSS," furnished him by Hon. J. Hoge Tyler, late Governor of Virginia, who is a direct descendant to the Joseph Howe, a sketch of whose family here follows:

THE PEARIS FAMILY

The ancestors of this family were Huguenots, who fled from France, stopping temporarily in Barbadoes, thence about 1710, to South Carolina, locating on an island about five miles from Port Royal, to which they gave the name "Paris Island." This name is sometimes spelled "Pearris," again "Pearis"; and "Paris" the modern spelling being Pearis. The settler was Alexander Pearis (Harris), who became quite a distinguished man in the early days of the history of South Carolina.

Judge McGrady, in his History of South Carolina under the Proprietary Government, 1670-1719, gives considerable prominence to Col. Alexander Pearis, whom he shows to have been Commissioner of Free Schools, Commissioner for Building Churches, Member of House of Commons, of which Col. Wm. Rhett was Speaker; as a military officer and one of the Judges to try pirates, and as commander of militia in the Revolution of 1719. Col Alexander Pearis had a son, Alexander Pearis, Jr., had a son, John Alexander, who likewise had a son, John Alexander, as shown by his will probated August 1792. The last mentioned John Alexander had a son, Robert, who spelled his name as did his father, John Alexander "Pearis." This Robert Pearis died about 1761; he had a daughter, Rolinda, who married Samuel Pepper, who removed to the New River Valley prior to 1770, and located at the place where, about 1780, he established a ferry, and which place has since been known as Peppers. His two brothers-in-law, George and Robert Alexander Pearis, sons of the preceding Robert, came with him, or about the same time. At the date of the coming of Pepper and the Pearises, in fact before that date, there lived in the neighborhood where Pepper located, a gentleman by the name of Joseph Howe, who had some pretty daughters, and it did not take long for these young Huguenots to fall in love with these girls, at least with two of them. An examination of the Pearis Bible discloses that George Pearis was born February 10, 1745, and was married to Eleanor Howe February 26th, 1771. Robert Alexander Pearis was probably two years younger than his brother, George. He married also a daughter of Joseph Howe, and about 1790 removed with his family to Kentucky and settled in what is now Bourbon County, and from whose it is said the town of Paris, in that county, is named. He had a son who in the early history of that state was a member of its legislature. George Pearis remained in the vicinity of Pepper's Ferry until the spring of 1762; prior to this time he had been made a Captain of one of the militia companies of the County of Montgomery.

In the absence of the British army into the Carolinas, in the fall of 1780, there was a Tory uprising in Surry County, North Carolinia, of such formidable proportion as to impel Gen. Martin Armstrong, commanding that military district, to call on Major Joseph Cloyd of Montgomery County militia, to aid in its suppression. About the last day of October, 1780, Major Cloyd with three companies of mounted men, one of which was commanded by Capt. George Pearis, marched to the State of North Carolina, where he was joined by some of the militia of that state, augmenting his force to about 180 men, with which he on the 14th day of the month, attacked the Tories at Shallow Ford of the Yadkin, defeating them with a loss of fifteen killed and a number wounded; Maj. Cloyd had one killed and a few wounded, among them Capt. Pearis, severely, through the shoulder. This fight cleared the way for the crossing of Gen. Green's army at this ford, which the Tories were seeking to obstruct. Capt. Pearis returned home wounded, and in addition to his suffering from his wound he had the misfortune to lose his wife by death in a few days after his return, she dying on November 14th. Capt. Pearis's wound disabled him from performing further military service.

George Pearis, marched to the State of North Carolina, where he was joined by some of the militia of that state, augmenting his force to about 160 men, with which he on the 14th day of the month, attacted the Tories at Shallow Ford of the Yodkin, defeating them with a loss of fifteen killed and a number wounded; Maj. Cloyd had one killed and a few wounded, among them Capt. Pearis, severely, through the shoulder. This fight cleared the way for the crossing of Gen. Green's army at this ford, which the Tories were seeking to obstruct. Capt. Pearis returned home wounded, and in addition to his suffering from his wound he had the misfortune to lose his wife by death in a few days after his return, she dying on November 14th. Capt. Pearis's wound disabled him from performing further military service,

THE HOWES

There are difficulties in the way of tracing back this family to its English origin. Tradition has to be largely relied upon, and this, as presented by different branches of the family, differs as to the first of the family that crossed the Atlantic, and as to the place of first settlement. One statement is that a Joseph Howe, belonged to a family of that name long domiciled in the state of Massachusetts, enlisted and served as a soldier in the French and Indian war in which he was supposed to have been lost, but afterwards found in the New River Valley, where later he added the letter "e" to the name, the original spelling of the name being How, afterwards Howe. How much of this statement is correct cannot be determined. The author has chosen to follow copies of the "Howe MSS," furnished him by Hon. J. Hoge Tyler, late Governor of Virginia, who is a direct descendant to the Joseph Howe, a sketch of whose family here follows:

The Howe family, not unlike the Hoge family, with which it is so nearly related, also commences with a little romantic episode in the lives of the first American representatives. Joseph Howe, an English gentleman, first cousin of Lord Howe and General Wayne of Revolutionary fame, came to America in 1737. On board the vessel that brought him over was a beautiful and captivating girl by the name of Eleanor Dunbar; the two young people fell in love with each other on the voyage and married soon after landing and settled near Boston, Mass.; from which point they drifted southward and finally settled in the rugged regions of southwestern Virginia when the country was quite a treeless wilderness. They made their home on Back Creek as nearly as can be established, in 1737 or 1738, and this old homestead, the scene of many pleasant revelries and charming reunions, is still in possession of one of the representatives of the family, Mrs. Agnes Howe DeJarnette, a great-granddaughter of its founder. Joseph Howe had three sons, Joseph, John, and Daniel; of Joseph there is nothing known, he having left home in early life; John seems to have left no family.

Daniel was an officer in the Revolutionary war, was a man of strong mind and high character. He married Nancy Haven and had three sons, Joseph H.; John Dunbar, and William H.; and seven daughters, Ruth, Julia, Eleanor, Elizabeth, Lucretia, Nancy and Luanna. Joseph married Margaret Peely; John D. married Sarah Sheppard; William married Mary Fisher; Ruth married Thomas Kirk, and removed to Missouri; Julia married Zecharia Cecil; Eleanor married General James Hoge; Elizabeth married Colonel George Beeley Pearis; Lucretia married Colonel William Thomas; Nancy married Honorable Harvey Deskins; and Luanna married Dr. Jackson.

The children of Joseph Howe and Margaret Peely were: Eleanor, who married Reuben Revere; Lucretia, who married Colonel William J. Jordan; Eliza, who married ---------- Wasson; Brown, who married William G. Farris; Ollie, who married B. F. Watson; Sue, who never married.

The children of John Dunbar Howe and Sarah, his wife, are as follows: Margaret, who married George Shannon; Susan, who married J. M. Thomas; Eliza Jane, who married Charles J. Matthews; Ellen Mary, who married J. C. Kent; John T., who married Sallie DeJarnette; Samuel D., who died a prisoner of war at Point Lookout; Haven H., who married Captain H. C. DeJarnette and lived at the old place.

NOTICE TO CITIZENS OF POCAHONTAS COUNTY

In reference to our present Prosecuting Attorney, Mr. J. Steven Hunter:

The County Commission was and is responsible for the budget of the office of Prosecuting Attorney. An assistant prosecuting was hired by the County Commission for $400 per month, a small fee for an attorney, that we felt was a need for a brief period of time. Attorney Hunter has had no part in moving the County Commission office in any way. He had no part in hiring DeEtta King Hunter to administer the HUD program at Frank, Durbin and Bartow. She was hired on her past experience in this type of work and qualifications in competition with others. She has done an excellent job.

He has made his services available at practically all regular and special meetings of the County Commission as well as many meetings outside of the Court House on County business.

In the six years I have worked with Attorney Hunter I have found him to be a very dedicated and hard working public servant and deserves another term at least as Prosecuting Attorney.

Dear Republican Voter,

For the past few weeks, I'm sure that you have met, talked with [or more likely listened to] and read about more Republican candidates seeking office in the Primary than ever before in Pocahontas County.

I am inclined to think that any of our Party's candidates, if nominated to represent the Republican Party in November, will prove to be viable candidates for whatever office they seek. We are, however, interested in the nomination of the "most" viable, "most electable" candidates.

This is especially true of our candidates for the office of Sheriff. In this race, we have three qualified individuals, each with a wealth of experience, training and ability in either fiscal matters, law enforcement or both.

We have presented our credentials, our ideas and ourselves for your consideration and your valued vote on June 3rd. Naturally, each of us feels that he or she is the best candidate for the office, regardless of party affiliation and as I have said, each is well qualified in at least one area of the Sheriff's primary responsibility.

Unfortunately, only one candidate for Sheriff can carry the Republican banner into the General Election in November. That candidate, in order to best serve Pocahontas County and its citizens, must possess the most well-rounded combination of experience, training and ability and must have the desire to learn more about our county, its people and its problems. Additionally, he or she must be capable of the common sense, patience and understanding necessary for providing needed leadership within the department. The qualities of friendliness and popularity would have to be a "plus" for any candidate but must be secondary to experience, training and proven ability.

Although it is shared by some, the opinion that is the most viable, electable candidate in the race for Sheriff is "my" opinion ---- the proof is "your" vote June 3rd.

Whatever the outcome, I thank you for your consideration and urge you to vote ---- C. L. "CHUCK" CAMPER for SHERIFF.

James W. Carpenter

For Steve Hunter

As secretary for four years to the incumbent Prosecuting Attorney, J. Steven Hunter, I feel personally capable to address certain issues concerning the Prosecuting Attorney's Office that have been recently placed before the people of Pocahontas County.

The office maintained by Mr. Hunter in the County Courthouse is and has always been first and foremost a Prosecutor's Office. All criminal matters which have come to the attention of this office have always obtained the highest priority. Never has Mr. Hunter attended to his private or civil matters to the detriment or exclusion of his duties to the people as Prosecuting Attorney for Pocahontas County.

By virtue of the fact that this is the only office maintained by Mr. Hunter for the convenience of the citizens of Pocahontas County, he has been and remains faithfully available to public officials as well as the public at large. When not attending to certain responsibilities of the Prosecuting Attorney which require his presence elsewhere, as they sometimes do, Mr. Hunter can always be immediately located through this office, not through an office in Greenbrier County, and certainly not at the wheel of a farm tractor baling hay.

As to the recent commentary concerning the purchase of a typewriter for the office, due to the condition of the typewriter previously used, the office was ill-equipped and a new typewriter was a necessary expense.

The minimal memory features of the new typewriter has allowed for expeditious handling of the formerly time consuming Circuit Court forms and orders, not only for the benefit of the Prosecuting Attorney, but also for the benefit of the Circuit Court Judges.

As one who has been in a position to observe Mr. Hunter in the performance of the duties of the Office of Prosecuting Attorney, I urge the citizens of Pocahontas County not to be misled by inaccurate allegations and the promises of hopefuls which a public record shows have been unfulfilled in the past.

TO ALL FRIENDS IN POCAHONTAS COUNTY WHO COOPERATED WITH ME AND HAVE SUPPORTED ME 100 PER CENT:

I would like to take this opportunity to announce my whole hearted endorsement of J. Steven Hunter for Prosecuting Attorney for Pocahontas County in the June 3rd Democratic Primary.

Since assuming the duties of Chief of Police of Marlinton, I have had full and complete cooperation from Mr. Hunter as Prosecutor in any and all matters concerning police activities. As needs have arisen, I have contacted Mr. Hunter at all hours of the day and night and have always found him willing and able to assist me, in fact he has gone out of his way repeatedly to help me in all law enforcement matters.

Regarding a recent drug arrest at the Pocahontas County Jail, that arrest stemmed from information which was given to me alone in confidence. Based on that information, I placed two of my personal officers at the jail and those officers acted under my direction only.

Friends, I am not a politician, I am first a public servant, but just as importantly, I am a concerned citizen of Pocahontas County. I can truthfully say that I have always known J. Steven Hunter to be a fair, just, and honest man, a man who has earned our support, faith, and confidence. Please join me in giving him that support on June 3, 1980.

RE-ELECT E. G. "June" HEROLD

As the famous Democrat Al Smith once said, "Let's look at the record." Facts and the truth—let us reason together.

FACTS

The Magistrate Court of Pocahontas County has handled 5,061 (as of May 1, 1980) cases, and many hundreds of cases that were never recorded as they were settled by intelligent and professional counseling. The cases include felonies, misdemeanors, civil, traffic, worthless checks, and Dept. of Natural Resources.

Magistrate business can no longer be conducted in a Magistrate's home or any place belonging to him. Each Magistrate is provided a fully equipped office to perform the necessary business.

Justice is served best tempered with mercy. If you don't know the people and circumstances with whom you are dealing how can you possibly give a fair decision?

RECORD

Experience, dedication, knowledge, education, ability, honesty, reliability and availability at all hours, 7 days a week.

I have judicial qualifications that are essential, necessary trial experiences which include ruling on a variety of civil, criminal, juvenile cases and domestic problems.

A record of fairness in serving the people of Pocahontas County. I have completed the required courses of instruction in the rudimentary principles of law and procedure.

Why not RE-ELECT a Magistrate who has attended the American Academy of Judicial Education Orientation Class and yearly training courses at W. Va. University College of Law Magistrate Training Conferences?

The total cost of this required schooling is approximately $100,000 every 4 years. Why should the tax payer pay this enormous amount every 4 years? It doesn't make sense not to re-elect an already trained Magistrate. Think about it! I have been your judge for 4 years, it's your turn to judge me on my record.

Peter Thomas Hohl [Hull]

Progenitor of the Pocahontas Arbogasts, Burners, and Yeagers.

The history of the Palatinate from whence Peter Thomas Hohl came is exceedingly interesting. The country along the Rhine and Neckar Rivers was the garden spot of Europe, so fertile that it was coveted by all its neighbors. One war followed another until by 1697, when peace finally came, the population had been reduced from 500,000 to 50,000.

About this time an enthusiastic young Englishman, whose mother was German, was making pilgrimages up and down the Rhine and Neckar Rivers soliciting converts to his

Having heard about William Penn and the endless opportunities in America and already disenchanted with conditions in the Palatinate, Peter Thomas Hohl, a son of a Lutheran minister, a widower with two children, joined the exodus. It was the year 1741 when he came to Philadelphia from the port of Rotterdam on the ship Frances and Ann, Thomas Coatan, shipmaster. He arrived May 30, 1741, and like many other Germans, located in Lancaster County. Records of Trinity Lutheran Church there show that "Peter Thomas Hohl, a widower and a miller, on the Susquehanna River, and Susannah Margaretha Diffenbach, a single person, have been published several Sundays, and are joined, in wedlock, 25th of November 1750."

Two years later, Peter Thomas Hohl, his bride and his two sons of his previous marriage were on the trail toward the Valley of Virginia. They settled on Cub's Run, now Rockingham County, Virginia. There several of their children were born.

In 1965 the Cub Run lands were sold and land was purchased in Crab Apple Bottom, Augusta County, the garden spot of what is now Highland County. By the time of his death in 1776, Peter Thomas Hohl was the largest land owner in the whole Crabbottom Valley.

Peter Thomas Hohl died the year the colonies secured their independence from the mother country, England. He made his will a few months previously with his neighbors Bernard Lantz, Leonard Simon and Peter Flesher as witnesses. It was written in German and recorded March 19, 1776, in Will Book 5, page 407, Augusta County, Virginia. It was translated into English and certified as an exact copy translation by John William Lee. It is quite typical of wills of this period, so I include it in this sketch.

Some of our relatives have visited the graves of the parents of Peter Thomas Hohl in a Lutheran Church cemetery in Worms, Germany. His father was Peter Thomas also and his mother was Anastasia. He named his oldest son Peter Thomas and one of his daughters Phoebe Anastasia.

So, this ancestor of so many Pocahontas Countians who left the garden spot of Europe died in another, the Crabbottom, in the spring of 1776, a few months before we became a nation. Exactly two hundred years later, the year of our bicentennial, in the spring, my only grandson, Daniel William Leister, a 9th generation direct descendant of Peter Thomas Hohl was born—in Germany!

Pocahontas Belle

Lolla Gray Hiner (Mrs. Robert) has been chosen by Pocahontas County Extension Homemakers to represent the county at the West Virginia State Folk Festival at Glenville, June 19-22, 1980, as Pocahontas County Belle.

Mrs. Hiner was a New Year baby, born January 1, 1904. There were no gifts in those days for January 1 babies, so the best gift was having parents like Henry H. and Ada V. Grimes.

Early schooling was at the Glade Hill School which is now part of the Governor Rockefeller Estate. Later the family moved to Dunmore and the rest of the grades were finished at Dunmore Grade School. To get a high school education, one had to board away from home, so part of high school was at Green Bank, then graduation at Marlinton. She then attended

On October 3, 1925, Lolla Gray became the bride of Robert M. Hiner. The early years of married life were devoted to homemaking and doing church and community work. She was 4-H assistant leader, MYF leader, and a volunteer worker in just about every drive which needed help. She is a Charter Member of the Dunmore Extension Homemakers Club, one of the first ones organized in Pocahontas County, which was then the Farm Woman's Club. She is a member of Methodist Church and U.M.W. and has held and worked in about every office of all of these organizations.

JOHN YEAGER
Pioneer of the Upper Greenbrier

In his 1901 history of Pocahontas County, William L. Price says that John Yeager, the pioneer, was "a noted hunter, an industrious, laborious farmer, a person of great physical endurance."

The name Yeager, in German, means hunter. On one occasion Adam Arbogast, neighbor of John Yeager, had treed a panther and called upon Yeager for help. Price says: "John Yeager was a famous and fearless climber of forest trees. A panther had been driven by dogs up a very lofty, densely branched hemlock, at night. A torch of pine was prepared, and the fearless, agile man ascended the tree, torch in hand, until he could locate the game. Upon doing this

Like his father-in-law, Peter Thomas Hull, John Yeager came from the German settlement around Lancaster, Pennsylvania. He was born there October 5, 1762, of parents who had previously been a part of the mass exodus of Germans from the Rhine to the new world. He came as a young, unwed adventurer to the German settlements around Brandywine, Sugar Grove, and the Crabbottom. At this time the Commonwealth of Virginia was permitting serious settlers to patent land, a parceling out of the public domain to individuals much in the same way the West was parceled by the Homestead Law. A land hunter would choose a tract and have it surveyed, this being the basis on which a patent on land grant was issued after a number of years, usually one to twelve. Fees for the patent and the land were small. The patent required at least six percent of the entry to be reduced to tillage within a limited time.

John Yeager's patent was granted on the basis of a Land Office Treasury Warrant #13,744, issued August 8, 1782. The survey was made and entered April 8, 1794. The patent was completed and signed by Governor Robert Brook October 6, 1796. It calls for 100 acres lying and being in the County of Bath, the south side of the Greenbrier River, joining his own land. Two previous grants once in our possession were lent to a surveyor and never returned. We know that John Yeager was in this valley selecting and laying claim to land prior to 1782.

A cabin and a two story log house were built on the exact site of the large white barn on the left after leaving the intersection at Traveller's Repose, going south on Route 250. Thanks to Eldridge Young, who was thoughtful enough to save it for me, I have one of the logs from the house. Be-

Thanks to Eldridge Young, who was thoughtful enough to save it for me, I have one of the logs from the house. Behind the house site there is a never-go-dry spring boiling out of the ground. It forms a stream of its own, and within a few hundred feet empties into the Greenbrier. It is beside the old Indian path from the Crabbottom to the Tygart Valley, later the Riffle Road.

Undoubtedly, he coined the name Traveller's Repose, a name that later embraced the whole area from Winterburn to Durbin, and was the name of the first post office in what is now Pocahontas.

Maps of the Battle of Greenbrier River (1861) show the mill race and location of the old mill built by John Yeager. The course of the mill race is still visible. Also, there are four of the original sugar maples left from the sugar orchard.

"KAT"—the head cook is about to retire,
Much happiness to you, Kat, is our sincere desire.
The Cafeteria at Pocahontas County High School, will never be the same
Without that witty, smiling, hard working dame.

Back when Kat started, things were quite different it's true
Wages were low and there was so much to do.
The pay got better as the years flew by,
There were happy times, busy times, even times to cry.

It all began at Cass with Grace Gaylor at her side,
They made quite a team, a fact that can't be denied.
As she watched the kids grow up, she loved every one,
Now they are scattered to the ends of the sun.

She remembers them all, with a heart full of pride
Knowing each had at least one good meal a day
God knows she tried!
Her life will be different now, away from the crew,
No more teachers, no more kids, no more cooking
What will she do?

Just take good care of Walt, and often remember
The days when your whole life revolved around September
The beginning of school, and the long winter days ahead,
Then eat a good breakfast, and go back to bed.

Cheat Mountain

About the year of 1912 Governor Rockefeller's grandfather and some friends were visiting on Cheat Mountain and staying at the Cheat Mountain Club which is a mile above the Cheat Bridge.

They were at our house talking to my father and my brother, Bob, was standing near. Mr. Rockefeller laid his hand on Bob's shoulder and said, "You are a lucky boy, you are too young for this war and will be too old for the next one."

As it turned out he was right.

Bob lived about a half mile up the river from our house and one evening an animal came into our cow lot and started chasing the cows around in circles, then it took off across the river and up on the other side and into my brother, Bob's chicken house. Of course he got his gun and shot it. We all thought it was a wolf and had it hanging up in front of the house and people were coming along and looking at it when one of them said, "Oh, my beautiful dog." He had been camping out the road and his dog wandered off.

Thursday was our last but what a turnout! There were 24 playgroupers, 10 little brothers and sisters, 19 Moms and Dads for our Picnic. All the children made their own picnic lunch of peanut butter and jelly or bologna. We saw a film "The Very Merry Cricket."

Playgroup will begin again this fall with the first day of school and is open to all pre-school children.

Some how or other the subject turned to panthers the other day when I happened in at a ware house store for to hear how the weather temperature was holding on higher ground. An old timer then related the following interesting experience as told him by the late Pete Hammonds, of Bug Run, down Three Forks way.

He was hunting up on the Middle Fork and just before dark he found himself some miles from home. He heard a panther scream on his side of the stream, so he primed his old muzzle loading rifle for action. Just then another panther answered with a scream from the opposite mountain side.

Making his way to the foot log across the Midle Fork, the hunter made out in the failing light of evening, no less than seven head of panthers near and around the far end of the foot log he was aiming to cross on. It was no contented place for a man armed only with a muzzle loader.

Full of the lore of the woods, Uncle Pete recalled he had always heard that a painter would not jump on a man as long as he was in a stream of water. So he gets into Middle Fork and wades the cold waters of the Creek for three long miles. For most of the way the panthers kept pace with him on both sides of the stream.

A Sharp Family

Charles H. Sharp of the Army, writes in from Provo, Utah, for me to give him his family line. As what I may write for him, may be of interest to his many kin people. I will publish it.

To begin with there are two lines of descent in the family name of Sharp, William of Huntersville, and that of John Sharp, the pioneer of Frost. John Sharp, native of North Ireland, who came here about 1790. There is unconfirmed tradition that John was a nephew of William. It is the William line that the young soldier is interested in.

William Sharp came to Huntersville prior to the Revolution, about 1773. He probably was from Augusta County, near Staunton. His wife was Mary Meeks Sharp. He was a scout and a soldier. One of their sons, William Jr., married Elizabeth Waddell of near Mill Point. They settled in Verdant Valley. Edray District, near Fairview.

One of their sons was John who married Sally Johnson, who lived on Jerico Road, the old Ewing place, present home of Loy Sharp.

One of their sons was Ewing, who married Ann Malcomb.

One of their sons was Warwick

the soldier who married Harris, and who writes me from Utah for to give him his line of decent from William, the pioneer and Revolutionary soldier.

There is the romantic tradition that William, Jr. met Elizabeth Waddell at the home of Thomas Drinnen, who lived at Edray. She was there spinning flax. A preacher came along, probably Bishop Asbury, who can well be accounted the fonnder of the Methodist Church in America. Thomas drummed up a congregation, and one of the worshippers was William Jr., who came dressed in a coonskin cap.

When the young lady had returned home she made some funny remarks about the homely young man she had seen at the meeting and his furry cap. Her mother remonstrated, and said the young chap would probably be calling around the first thing she knew.

Sure enough he did come soon and on a busy wash day. He found the young lady resting up, performing on the spinning wheel in short petticoat, chemise and bare footed. It was love at first sight, and they became engaged that very day.

William the pioneer had his home near the junction of the Browns Creek and Huntersville Roads. He went with Augusta troops in the fall of 1774 to Pt. BACK OUR FIGHTING MEN

(Written by Emerson Akers, of Mt Clare, Harrison County, nine years since. It's fine sentiment of patriotism is especially timely once again.)

Our boys have crossed the o'cean
To fight the Germans and the Japs,
They must have ammunition
For their stomachs and their gats.
So send along the food stuff,
They surely must be fed,
Send wholesome food abundant,
And keep them fit to fight.
We sent them over the ocean,
And we must treat them right.

The boys who are in the trenches,
The boys who are on the sea,
Are there to fight our battle,
To fight for you and me.
Uncle Sam has made selection,
The best ones of his fold;
Every lad is a hero
And worth his weight in gold.
Are you content like colts in clover,
Or a king upon his throne,
And allow boys in the trenches
To live like a dog with a bone.
Don't pull back in the harness,
But keep the tugs pulled tight,
For we must pull together,
For those we have sent to fight.

I am back here in the mountains,
Where Hitler would like to be,
But no West Virginia mountaineer
Would set such tyrant free.

'Twas on a fateful morning,
Ere the sun rose in the sky,
The Japs struck Pearl Harbor—
They'll be punished by and by.

I often wonder what Hitler and Togo will do,
When they find they can't destroy
The good old Red, White and Blue.

Mrs. Lowell Grimes, of Akron, Ohio, sends in the following letter received by her mother and her from Sgt. Elward A. Long, of T K. Co., 31st Inf. Regt., in Korea:

November 12, 1951.

Dear Grandmother and Aunt Ann

I just received your letter this morning, of November 2nd. I was really shocked to hear of Uncle Lowell's death. I had to read the letter over twice, but still it seemed like I just could not believe it. I do not know how to write this letter or how to express my sympathy to you all, but I know you will understand what I am trying to say. I just can't put it in words, but I do wish to express my deepest sympathy to Aunt Ann and you from my close buddie and I.

Uncle Lowell was one of my favorite uncles and I always looked forward for he and Aunt Ann's visits to our house.

Well, Grandma, I just spent five days in Japan for a much needed rest and I had a wonderful time. Japan is just about like Stateside now. I had some big pictures made and will try to send you one when I get them. I sent some things home from there but things are really high.

Grandma, I am a tank commander now, and I hope I make out O. K. I have a swell crew My gunner is from Cleveland, Ohio, and he is a nice kid. Have you heard of Heartbreak Ridge? Well, that is where we have been for the past month and we have Grandma, about the package, do not go to much trouble to send me anything. It is O. K. to send "say like" canned things that will not spoil, and candy, cookies and cheese. Also self-sealing envelopes is something I can always use. But don't go to any trouble thank you.

We get plenty candy, but it is mostly molded or something Aunt Betty can tell you about how the things are we get over here.

Tell Virginia, Betty and Frank that I think of them often, but here lately we have not had time to eat sometimes. I will try to write to them all when I get time. I try to write to "Mom" every chance I get. I know she worries and that isn't good for anybody. I hope she stays well; she has had enough sickness. I am saving my money as I want to get a new car when I get out, so I can take her around to see all of her folks because I have always wanted too.

Well, again I wish to express my sincerest sympathy to Aunt Ann. Take good care of yourselves and do not worry too much. I hope to see you all by January, or maybe before.

With much love to you both,
Your grandson and nephew,

Senator Fred Allen Korth Nottingham and Ward Hudson went to Charleston on Tuesday to attend the meeting of the West Virginia Association of Fairs. The Senator is president of this Association.

In commenting on the value of Fairs, the Charleston Gazette says in its editorial column:

The meeting in Charleston of the West Virginia Association of Fairs recalls to mind this summertime event that is as American as apple pie, be it local, County or State.

"We think that fairs are helpful especially in their work with young people. We want to commend the unselfish folks who work and worry with them annually.

"We want to congratulate the dean of Fair people, State Senator from the Twelfth District and operator of the Pocahontas County Fair both on his fair and the work of his Association."

The Governor

Attorney General Marland is running for Governor. What counts most in his favor is that his candidacy is endorsed by Governor Patteson. Our State has never had a better governor than Governor Patteson has proven to be. Every ticklish, controversial measure coming up, he has demonstrated courage, foresight and wisdom. He has never dodged nor side tracked an issue.

As head of his State, as head of his party, as a citizen, he has the perfect right and the responsibillty of having preference as the one who is to succeed him, and of expressing his choice too, if he has a mind to do so.

Whether he recommends the one I would prefer is beside the mark, What is important is that of the field he has let the world know, in an above board way, the one he would prefer to succeed him as Governor of our State and as head of our party. No fair thinker and fair player and fair dealer could deny the Governor rights he himself exercises as citizen or public servant; as party leader or high private in the rear rank.

I try to calm ruffled feelings by reciting to the brethren the fact that the Democratic Party is the dominant party of West Virginia for the past twenty years; that only parties out of power without responsibility to people or partisans can afford to indulge in high

I try to calm ruffled feelings by reciting to the brethren the fact that the Democratic Party is the dominant party of West Virginia for the past twenty years; that only parties out of power without responsibility to people or partisans can afford to indulge in high jinks and family fusses and factional squables.

Let me recite again the fact our West Virginia has not yet taken the proper step to safe guard our general primary elec tions by providing run off elections between the two high men in case no candidate receives a majority of the votes cast. Lack of such a run off election merely leaves the gap down for the choos ing of minority, pressure group candidates by the two major parties.

Such a tragic occurrence through multiplicity of candidates for a major office happened in our own State some years back. A pressure group got behind the weakest of the lot. He got the nomination though he only received about twenty percent of the vote cast. It is beside the mark to say that no one was more dissatisfied with the record in office of this particular minority candidate than the well organized group which put him over.

Do not get me wrong, I am for the good democratic system which allows every man and his wife and their neighbors to enter in any primary election for governor or ceived about twenty percent of the vote cast. It is beside the mark to say that no one was more dissatisfied with the record in office of this particular minority candidate than the well organized group which put him over.

Do not get me wrong, I am for the good democratic system which allows every man and his wife and their neighbors to enter in any primary election for governor or what not. I am equally in earnest in favor of our two party American system, having read of the mess minority government by splinter parties make of things in France for instance.

So, I am heartily in favor of run off elections, so the will of the majority may not be thawarted through too much division of the vote by reason of a multiplicity of candidates.

I hazard the guess that if our Governor Patteson had not with forthright courage stepped into the breach and declared his personal preference as to the candidate to succeed him as head of State and party, the woods would now be full of candidates, running more or less wild.

The Candidates

This paper carries the announcement of Norman H. Alderman, of Huntersville District as a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff of Pocahontas County. He is a native, son of George F. Alderman; his mother was a Kellison. He is a farmer by occupation but can and does work at the carpenter trade in off seasons. This is his first try at public office. I can recommend my friend as one who would fill the high office of sheriff with credit. Mr. Alderman will announce his deputies later.

As I had hoped and expected June McElwee is a candidate to succeed himself in the House of Delegates from Pocahontas County. Further, I am happy to say, he will have no opposition for the nomination by his party. This is no year to send a new hand to the legislature. Take the matter of State Aid to Schools in rural counties. The centers of population do not take kindly to the matter of equal educational opportunities in all parts of the State. They object to help paying the cost. Any man offering for the Legislature from this County will be for our interest. However the point is good intentions to be effective for public good must be backed by experience and proven ability. Mr. McElwee has these three.

In this paper appears the announcement of Elmer McLaughlin for the important office of Member of the County Court. He is a progressive farmer, and a good business man. He is not a novice in public service. For years he was a member of the district board of education, when it took contriving to maintain public schools at the highest possible level, and stay in the budget, and not let taxes go to the point of confiscation of property. Then under the county unit system, he had experience, too, with more adequate means to carry on. Mr. McLaughlin has proven his qualifications as a safe and progressive public servant.

An Old Paper

Squire W. R. Pierson brings in a relic of interest. It is Number 1 of Volume 1 of the Public Ledger of Philadelphia. The date is Friday, March 25, 1836. The publishers are Swain, Abell and Simmons. There are four pages of four short columns each. The price is one cent per copy. The price to subscribers is six cents a week, payable at the expiration of the week. There are no display advertisements. The rate per inch for advertising space was about half what present day country weeklies have to charge.

One half the issue was taken up with advertisements, all small. There were sailing ships for England; Norfolk, Petersburg and points South. There were railroad, stage coach and canal advertisements. The Good Intent Stage Co. respectfully informs the public they have established a line of first rate post coaches direct to Wheeling. Those taking the 5 p. m. coach will have one night to rest at Chambersburg. One line advertises elapsed time between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh at 50

The temperance note is — "Brandy and water and cigars; a fast trotting horse, a pocket book with bank notes, gaming and late hours are the rocks on which are shipwrecked many bright hopes and alluring prospects; the fond anticipation of parents and the realization of anxiously desired blessings."

Police court news takes up near ly a third of the reading columns. The cases reported were mostly drunks.

The announcement is made that the paper has secured the services of a police reporter and a collector of news.

Announcement is also made that publication of the Ledger will be continued for one year at least.

The Master Mechanics advertised a meeting with Master Carpenters and other branches for to meet forthwith. No reason stated; increase in wage scale is good guessing.

The Journeymen House Carpenters Association had held a meeting. They had resolved that their feelings toward their employees were as they formerly were; that their employers were needlessly excited over rumors in circulation that should their business become brisk the ensuing summer, they would ask further advance in wages; that if employers accede to their demands, the Journeymen would not ask for further advance of wages that season.

There were four daily coaches between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh; yet there was so much travel between the places that the names of passengers had to be booked from one to two weeks in advance to secure seats.

Log Drivers

James Workman brought to this office a photograph of the crew which manned the first and last drive of barkwood in Greenbrier River. The year is 1894. The timber was cut on Island Lick and Rock Runs the summer before, and peeled. In spite of seasoning out, the oak and chestnut logs floated a bit low, as compared with white pine and hemlock. With an occasional poplar, oak, chestnut, white pine and hemlock logs made up the drive. The late William Overholt, then of Hillsboro, was the operator.

The drive consisted of about a million feet, according to the recollection of Mr. Workman. They had a small ark; the late Henry Overholt was the foreman; the boy, James Workman, was boatman.

The timber was to be manufactured by the St. Lawrence Boom Company, so when the smaller drive overtook the larger drive of Smith & Whiting's white pine logs, the outfit merged and all went into the boom at Ronceverte together.

Here are the names of the men in the picture, the majority of whom have passed over the River and now rest in the shade:

Curry - Hertig

Miss Evelyn Sue Hertig, daughter of Mrs. John Patterson, of Covington, Virginia, and Oscar M. Hertig, of Cass, was married on Saturday, July 12, 1952, in the First Methodist Church in Huntington, to Samuel Robert Curry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Curry; of Hamlin. Prior to the double ring service, read by Dr. J. M. Helm, district superintendent of the Methodist Church, selections were sung by Miss Nancy Lee Sloan, of Williamson.

A scalloped ruffle embroidered with seed pearls edged the tulle yoke of the bride's satin gown, which had a full skirt ending in a cathedral train. A pearl edged satin bonnet held her fingertip veil and she carried a prayerbook covered with white delphinium and an orchid.

Frocks of net and iridescent taffeta in shades of green, yellow and pink were worn by her attendants, Mrs John H. Neale, the Misses Margaret Lindley and Kathleen King. Their nosegays were of assorted flowers. Clark Curry, Jr, was best man and ushers were Frank Eaton, Jr., and Kyle McMullen.

After a reception at the church, Mr. and Mrs. Curry left for a honeymoon in Atlantic City, her traveling costume being a gray and white suit, black accessories and orchid corsage.

Young Mrs. Curry is a junior at Marshall College, belonging to the Fourth Estate, German and Madrigal Clubs. Her husband has a degree in accounting from the same school and was a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha Fraternity and the Accounting Club. He is serving in the Navy on the USS Palau.

Kramer Reunion

The annual reunion of the Kramer family was held at the farm home of W. C. Kramer on Alleghany Mountain on Sunday, July 27. More than 100 persons were present. The chairman was Mrs. Marion Kramer Simmons, of Durbin. The speaker was Dr. George F. Hull. The oldest person present was I. B. Bussard, of Gainesville, Florida, aged 74 years. The youngest, Jeffry Scott Kramer, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Kramer, of Elkins. The center piece for the big dinner was a beautifully decorated cake, inscribed "Kramer Reunion 1952." Thanks to God Almighty for his bounty were duly and reverently voiced by D. N. Kramer, of Monterey.

W. C. Kramer welcomed one and all to his bospitable, high mountain home and its broad acres. The chair appointed various committees for the 1953 reunion to be held at Watoga State Park the last Sunday in July.

This solid, substantial family

This solid, substantial family relationship descends from Conrad Kramer, of Frankford, on Rhine. He was son of a soldier and a professional highway builder. After the defeat of Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte, at Waterloo, Colonel Claude Crozet, engineer without peer, was employed by the Commonwealth of Virginia to head up projects of public improvements and developments. This program included highways, canals, public buildings and what all. It would be a big and progressive one even in this day of bigger things.

Claude Crozet is credited with being the genius who brought the Emperor and the remnant of his army back from Moscow after his disastrous invasion of Russia.

Conrad Kramer was one of Engineer Crozet's road builders, and he brought him to America. The engineer was busy with extensive planning of highways all over the state; canals to bring products and trade from the Ohio Valley and the Middle West to the sea board, and thus make New York at the mouth of the James. Also, he had to plan the jetties which to this day protects New Orleans from the Mississippi; the aqueduct which carries sippi; the aqueduct which carries drinking water to Washington, So he had efficient men like Conrad Kramer to do the intensive work of actual building on each of the various projects.

It was Mr. Kramer's lot to build on the Staunton and Parkersburg Turnpike. He lived his life time on this highway.

It has always been a matter of interest to me that his sextant and other engineering instruments have descended to grandson, William, who too is a highway builder in his own right. It may be of interest to note that his Alleghany Mountain Homestead lies on the old pike his grandfather built so well more than a century since. A generation back, the then young Bill was sent to Europe as a soldier to help straighten the tangle another would be world conqueror got Europe into.

Dr. C. S. Kramer, of Marlinton, is a grandson of Conrad. Here is his line. I earnestly suggest to other Kramers they work out their lines and write them down and preserve them.

Veteran Henry W. McNeel is going regularly over to Clarksburg for to receive treatment at the Veterans Administration Hospital. He is enthusiastic over the careful, considerate, most efficient and modern treatment he is receiving at the skilled hands of physicians and technicians. However, there is also what I would call the personal touch in this matter of doctoring, which has Veteran Henry's feelings astir. This is the sympathetic, fellow feeling of the personnel of the place which the patient is just naturally made to feel. What Henry got over to me and what I am trying to give expression to is that this great public institution of healing has all the efficiency of the production line plus the understanding human touch of the kind old family physician.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harvey, daughters Jean and Thelma, and grandson Robert Helm, of Lenox, Iowa, were here several days last week. They stayed at Droop Mountain Park. They were checking up on family lines.

Signs

The inquiry comes that the writer knows for a fact that brush cut in the light of the August moon will not sprout if the sign is in the heart. His grandfather had told him so. However, he would like to know the exact days this August so he could get busy.

Well, to begin with, the moons are running just a bit behind the sun seasons this year. The August moon is new on the 20th. The change is in the sign of the lion heart.

So, on Thursday and Friday, August 20 and 21, cut your brush, even hickory and buckeye, with a clear conscience, strong in the faith there will be no more bother.

In one of our families there is the tradition about grandpa striking his ax into a good sized thrifty wild cherry tree one afternoon. By the next eventide, the big tree had withered leaves and it went into a decline.

Sure, these signs are just a hang over from the long dark ages of the sun and moon worship of our heathen ancestors.

THURSDAY, FEB. 14, 1952

One of my public appearances last week was up at Campbelltown for the monthly meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association. The occasion was the observation of the fifty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the organization. The small part I was to fill on the program was to tell something of school which preceded the present two crowded rooms.

To begin with, there is record of a school on the Drennen plantation as early as 1784. That was the year of an Indian raid. The house and stockade was somewhere about the division fence between the fair grounds and the Newman farm. The teacher's name was Baker. At the time of the raid, Richard Hill was at the Drennons doing some carpenter work. Just about day break Baker and Hill went to the river for to wash. Indians were in ambush. In going back, Baker took time to climb the fence and was shot. Hill in a hurry jumped the fence and so escaped the bullet intended for him. The Indians pried up the rail fence, pulled the dead body of Baker into dead body of Baker into reach and took his scalp.

To this day there is sign of a grave near the sheep barn on the Fair Grounds, and it is reasonable to suppose his body was laid to rest near the spot where he was done to death by the Indians.

You know it is reasonable to suppose that some school boys, being what they are, in the six generations since the passing of School Master Baker, might have had on occasions the sinful longing for Indians to come along and attend to teachers they were not getting along too well with.

No one ever told me where the school house was located on the Drennen plantation. However one of the fields on this place was known as the School House Meadow. It is just across Stony Creek from Campbelltown. There used to be a pile of chimney rocks at the edge of the woods just outside the fence. The Johnson and the Drennen lines interlocked here, and I never was told whether this was the Johnson or Drennen school house. All I know it was called the School House meadow in my young days. The school house of a hundred years ago was at the Saw Mill Meadow. This was on the Price farm, just below Riverside. Route 219 now takes the site of the old school house. My father taught a term or two there in the late 1840's,

My father taught a term or two there in the late 1840's, before he went to Washington College—now Washington and Lee University.

Another old school house was at the Kee place, near the present residence of Waldo Waugh on Price Hill.

Nearly fifty years ago the Campbell Lumber Company came down from Western Pennslyvania. They builded their sawmill and mill town at Campbelltown for to manufacture the lumber on ten thousand acres on Williams River. They asked for a big school house but the district board compromised on a one room building. I was used for a single term, and the present three room house was erected. The first one was not wasted. Enlarged, it became the Church of the community.

The school is now crowded into two rooms, since the seventh and eighth grades are brought to the junior high in Marlinton. The third room and the coal room have been changed into as nice and neat kitchen and lunch room as are to be found anywhere. The patrons, through the Parent Teachers' Association, have provided those extra touches in furnishings so necessary to mark the difference between chuck rooms and civilized surroundings. I refer to curtains, frills, furbelows drapes, carpets and pictures on the wall.

Just a line or two here to emphasize the difference between the small log cabin schools of pioneer days and the teeming rooms of the modern community school. As for teachers, then most any field hand did the sorry best he could as a teacher. Fortunate indeed was the school which could have the service of a bright young man headed for the ministry, law or medicine who took to teaching as stepping stone to his calling. Now it is professional teachers, men and women.

Times have changed with the centuries. The good Apostle Paul allowed the women to preach but not to teach. Nowadays we are none too favorably inclined to the woman preacher, but have just about turned the job of instruction into the capable hands and heads of the ladies. And it is all to the good too.

In this connection let me quote the old saying that to make a gentleman out of a man, you must begin with his grandma.

Maple Sugar

These February days remind this scribe of days long gone by. I was born in a log house on Deer Creek, Green Bank District, Pocahontas County, where father and mother first began to cut out a small farm from hard maple, oak, birch, beech, and hemlock, with some rhododendron mixed in. My very earliest recollection tells me that our best supply of sugar came from a large orchard of the hard maple. And here from the maple trees we made the syrup for the buckwheat cakes we ate through the winter.

In those days spiles were made from young sumac, troughs were hewn from yellow linn, or bass wood. After hard freezing, and the warmer days of February arrived, the maples would be opened and the water gathered, and boiled down to a syrup, or made in sugar. No boy who ever went through the experience will ever forget sugar making time. Sometimes when there was an especially good "run" of the early sap, the water had to be gathered into es and eat them with salt, the while telling stories and having a good time.

One of the tributaries to Deer Creek was named Sutton Run after one of the early Sutton settlers made a sugar camp up there. I remember the old boiling place, and the grassy spot cleared out by these sugar makers. A hollow on the right was named Sheet's Hollow where some of the Sutton neighbors had a camp, and a hollow on the left called Tallman hollow. And when I was yet a young fellow the old leading troughs were there which were used by the Tallman sugar makers and their camp. A good story for Brother Calvin's column was to the effect that one night the Sheets boys thought to scare the Tallman outfit, and went up against the mountain, and began to howl like wolves, when all of a sudden howling barks began to be heard on the opposite side of that ravine. The Sheets boys came into the Tallman camp forthwith for it was a bad night to be out scaring other folk.

While a boy of fourteen my father and older brother were running a white pine lumber camp at Gladehill, just above Dunmore. I was left at home to running a white pine lumber camp at Gladehill, just above Dunmore. I was left at home to feed the stock, cut fire wood, and do all the chores. Came near the middle of February, weather had been freezing, some bright warm days arrived, and on the 12th of the month I opened thirty-five of those good maples, and the early sap ran fine. A boyish fault to leave the water till next morning to gather, and morning found a light rain falling. The old grubbing hoe got busy digging angle worms from the old chip pile, and then up the creek a ways to try the luck with early fishing. In a short while I had thirty-two nice hungry trout. Home again and gathered in the sugar water to reduce to six quarts of good maple syrup.

Say, dear reader, did you ever learn how to boil down two or three gallons of good maple syrup into a mass of steaming sugar?

And when I think of those dear majestic Maples, my heart wants to rise in holy wrath and say to the destroyer:

"Woodman, spare that tree;
Touch not a single bow;

SAVE OUR RED CROSS CHAPTER

An Appeal to the People of Pocahontas County by Mrs T. R. McClure, County Chairman

March 1st another Red Cross Fund will be started. We must reach our quota of $2322. Otherwise we will lose our Pocahontas County Chapter.

At present, only Home Service is functioning. It is under the efficient direction of Mrs Lillian Shiffler. Surplus money left over from war years has been used to supplement contributions since the war to carry on this work. The fund is exhausted. Meeting the quota will mean nearly a dollar from each person's pocket in Pochontas County. We need our County Chapter. Benefits from the program are—

1. Benefits to servicemen and their families

2 Benefits from the much talked about Bloodmobile. This we cannot have without a Red Cross Chapter. It is our patriotic privilege to support the Bloodmobile through our Red Cross dollars, and our donated pints of blood

3 Home Service as we know it

4 Other benefits we can have in the coming year if we meet our quota—

Disaster Program is closely allied to our new defense program. Some of the disasters to which we are vulnerable, which might mean tragedy to our people, are school bus wrecks; industrial accidents; fires in schools; floods and toroadoes; plane, train and auto wrecks, and many more.

Other benefits we hope to have are Home Nursing and First Aid classes and Water Safety programs. These go band in hand with Civilian Defense Program.

There is far too much to lose and everything to gain by supporting our Red Cross. This is an important, urgent matter I lay before you. Remember, we, the people, are the Red Cross.

Slapped Down By Bear

Last Monday night, Henry Wilfong, aged nine years of Stamping Creek, had the horrible and most unusual experience of being slapped down and run over by a bear. He carries marks and bruises and sore places but no serious injury.

Henry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wilfong, of Stamping Creek, at the Blue Lick. The mother was ill in the Pocahontas Memorial Hospital. He was suffering with the toothache. The father had to attend the two younger children, so Henry lit the lantern, and went to the home of his Uncle Dennis Wilfong to get some toothache drops.

As Henry went under an apple tree by the path, he heard a noise like something stirring, but paid no mind. On his way back something big and black did come dropping out of that same tree. The boy was slapped down with a blow on his cheek. The lantern was flung away in the fall

The boy was slapped down with a blow on his cheek. The lantern was flung away in the fall and went out. As he tried to get up he was knocked down again, and run over.

Henry's screams brought his father to come running. He found his young son pretty well wrought up, but not seriously hurt.

The sign showed that a chunk of a bear had been up the tree for the frozen apples which still stuck to the branches. When the boy came under the tree, the bear had dropped out, almost on top of him; slapped him down, ran over him, and went away in the night.

Deaths

MAX POSCOVER

Max Poscover, aged 51 years, died at his home in Mooseheart, Illinois, on Saturday, December 29, 1951, of a heart attack. On Wednesday afternoon his remains will be laid to rest in the family plot in Arbovale cemetery. The service will be conducted from Durbin Methodist Church.

For many years Mr. Poscover was principal of the big public school at Durbin. He was an outstanding, public spirited citizen, who took a leading place in the educational work of the county, and civic endeavors of his community. Thus is noted the passing of an outstanding citizen.

Last year he was called to Mooseheart to the position of dean of boys in the large school of the Moose fraternity. He was making good in every particular in this large and important field in the proper training of young lives.

The deceased is survived by his wife, Mrs. Virginia Hull Poscover and their two children, Benjamin and Mary Catherine.

He was a native of Indiana; a graduate of Davis and Elkins College and a noted athlete.

45 Years Ago

This winter, 45 years ago, in 1907, the snow fell and laid until spring. They shovelled snow from Mace to Woods Dilleys, on Clover Creek. This was necessary for Martin Crummitt to get the mail horseback through from Mingo to Clover Lick. Some times he would leave his horse and walk the rest of the way. The snow was three to four feet deep.

Corn

C. J. Little was down this week from Fredonia, Pennsylvania, with a truck load of corn, and to take back a load of local produce. Such return loads may consist of pigs, chickens, cattle or lumber. He has built up a big business with our farmers in corn. He said I could quote him in print that his venture of one dollar in a sale advertisement in The Pocahontas Times had brought him a sales volume of four thousand bushels of corn, with inquiries still coming in. And of course I was honest enough to tell him that when our people wanted corn, they wanted corn; while the best advertising medium ever is The Times, it has actually happened that advertisers of horses, for instance, sometimes did not get their bait back.

In my search for truth I asked Mr. Little about his experience with the European corn borer.

that when our people wanted corn, they wanted corn; while the best advertising medium ever is The Times, it has actually happened that advertisers of horses, for instance, sometimes did not get their bait back.

In my search for truth I asked Mr. Little about his experience with the European corn borer. He said in his large fields he would guess there was one borer to every one hundred stalks; down here he had been told the ratio was nearer one hundred borers to one stalk.

Then Farmer Little suggested that it might serve a useful purpose to say in the paper the difference lay in the disposal of corn stalks. He plowed all his stalks under; down here so much of the corn fodder is fed out on the pasture lands.

Clyde Given Bussard was here Washington, D. C., during the holidays.

Methodist Report

A total of 730 local Methodist congregations were actively engaged in a cooperative evangelistic mission in the 11 districts of the West Virginia annual conference in two phases in September and October of 1951.

Reports from the conference executive chairman of the program showed that a total of 10,881 persons had joined Methodist churches.

The grand total attendance was 354,015, which included the 21,508 people at the victory rallies, and the 6,948 at the Saturday night youth mass meetings.

Conference reports there were 53,783 inactive members last June or 24 4 percent of the total conference membership.

One of the fine social occasions of the year is the big dinner by the State Road Workers of Pocahontas County. This year was no exception. However, the attendance was down about one third. The very good reason was the absentees had been out clearing snow clogged roads for about three nights in succession. It was bed time for them.

I am ever ready to maintain our County has the best and most efficient road servicing force in the whole State. Asleep or awake, drunk or sober, on snowy nights of winter, the motor traveler knows the instand he crosses our County line. The boundaries of State and divisions are spoken of as imaginary lines, but it feels like the real thing, to bounce off an ice rutted trail onto a smooth, cleaned highway.

Among those to speak with feelings of appreciation of Verle Pyles and his crew was Assistant County Superintendent of Schools Mack Brooks. If there are any who appreciate safets on the highways it is none other than school officers who have official responsibility and feel a personal responsibility for the well being of the thousands of school children transported daily over the roads of our County. Mack spoke from hi-thousands of school children transported daily over the roads of our County. Mack spoke from his heart in voicing his appreciation of highways which allow his busses literally by the score, filled with loads of precious young lives, to travel daily between home and school in comparative safety.

Then there was Bus Smith, of the Pocahontas Memorial Hospital, to speak his piece. In the name of suffering humanity, did ee voice appreciative sentiment. Patient after patient had been carried to the hospital for treatment over roads blocked by deep snows, until scraped open in the dark hours of night by faithful public servants. The passing of the weak and aged, who came to the end of their ways, was eased; the borning of babies, where welfare of mother and child was safeguarded.

Of course, I know about prescribed duties of public servants, but the Bible syeaks of goidg the unspecified second mile. And this is what counts.

Then a man from the ranks spoke up to say the spirit of the corbs was helped up immeasurably by the realization that no matter how hard or distasteful the chore, every man on the force knows he will never be asked to do anything the superintendent and his foremen would back off from.

Under the heading of "Salisbury Woman, 90, Fixes Meals for Family Every Day," a Baltimore paper, of November 29, 1951, publishes the following article about a native of Pocahontas County. The lady is Mrs. W. K. Jackson, of Salisbury, Maryland She is a daughter of the late Captain George W. Siple, of Deer Creek. Her brother is Joe Siple now of Elkhart, Indiana. She is the widow of W. K. Jackson. Incidentally, Colonel Jackson was the last surviving man whom I knew who had a son in the Confederate Army, the late Veteran John Jackson. The piece was directed to me in the band writing of the lady, and here it is—

Mrs. W. K. Jackson of 1912 N. Division St., put up 70 jars of jelly and preserves last summer.

She does the breakfast dishes and fixes supper for her son and daughter every day.

Hearing of all these activities, one would never guess that Anna Jackson will celebrate her 90th birthday today.

Another daughter, Mrs. Ruth Fuhrman of Elkins, W. Va., is here and has been baking cookies by the dozens for the party.

Mrs. Jackson hopes her other daughter, Mrs. Mary Larry of Elkins, will be able to come. Her youngest son, Paul, is a meat cutter for the A & P store here, so, of course, he will be there.

Born in 1861 in Deer Creek, West Virginia., Mrs. Jackson lived there until she married. She and her husband, a farmer, lived in several other West Virginia towns before moving to Salisbury 21 years ago. Mr. Jackson died in 1937.

Mrs. Jackson says she had a doctor only twice in her life--- both times in recent years for minor ailments. All of her children were born at home without a doctor. She is in good health today, except for arthritis in her fingers which keeps her from sewing and crocheting as she used to.

Mrs. Jackson has read the Bible through five times and the New Testament 11 times. She calls "The Lord is my shepherd" her favorite passage. Formerly a member of Trinity Methodis

Mrs. Jackson has read the Bible through five times and the New Testament 11 times. She calls "The Lord is my shepherd" her favorite passage. Formerly a member of Trinity Methodist Church, she doesn't go any longer because she has no transportation. But she's a faithful listener to two Sunday morning radio church programs.

Mrs. Jackson's hair is only a bout half gray and has never been cut in her life. It falls to her waist in back when taken down She wears it in a bun on top of her head.

The other evening at the dinner table, Mrs. Jackson told her family that she wasn't going to fry any more chicken or bake any more pies after today. "Ninety is old enough to retire," she said. The unit participated in the see saw battles across the Naktong river and following the Inchon invasion in September 1950, linked up with the 7th Infantry Division to climax a spectacular northern drive.

Cutlip, assistant squad leader, has been in Korea, since March 25, 1951. A member of the 7th Cavalry Regiment's Company A, he wears the Korea Service Ribbon with two campaign stars, Combat Infantry Badge, and the Purple Heart.

Philippine Islands.

Hello Abbie:

I received your and Dad's letters yesterday and was glad to hear from you and to know you were all O. K. The weather is hotter than hot here, and that is for sure. When the thermometer goes to 112, you know it is hot We sure had a nice voyage coming across 10,000 miles of water to the Islands. I really saw some beautiful sights. I saw the volcanoes of Monta Loa and Monta Kea, in the Hawaiin Islands; also the beautiful city of Honolulu and Pearl Harbor, where the Japanese attacked the United States in 1941. Things are all built back there now. I would like to move to the Hawaiin Islands when I get back home. You have also read in school books about the Island of Guam. I was on that Island for about six hours. Lots of coconut trees there, also bananas. From there we went to Kwajalien Atoll, also held by the Japanese during the war. It is so small it is pitiful. ha ha.

From Guam we came here to Manila and Cavite. Saw the Island of Corregidor and the

From Guam we came here to Manila and Cavite. Saw the Island of Corregidor and the Bataan Peninsula, where General MacArthur and Wainright made their great stand against the Japanese. That is where the death march took place. We saw the Japanese ships in the harbor destroyed by American warships and planes. There are also some of our ships there. As I sit here today I can see the once powerful Jap Fleet lying in ruins here in the bay area.

There are lots of women here where I am and cute, too. I might bring one back with me. ha ha

I knew I was coming across alright, but I just did not have the heart to tell you all. I think it was better to lie a little then to come straight out and tell you. This is not Korea though. A few soldiers have been killed here by the "Huks." These are the Communist guerillas here on the Islands trying to overthrow the Philippine government.

We do not carry rifles here and we can wear civilian clothes on off duty hours. We did not come here to fight; we are here to work with the Filipinos and to survey their land and to make up-to date maps of the Islands. We are here to prove our friendship with the people of the Philippine Islands. This is a very important job we have here too.

We are not here as soldiers, in one sense of the word. We are embassadors of Good Will, and that means a lot. Most Filipinos speak English now. They like the U. S. A. They hate the Japs and I cannot blame them. Most of Manila has been rebuilt since the war and they have the most modern of buildings there now.

I am going to be in the field most of the time so you will not hear much from me, maybe for six months at a time.

I wish you all could make the trip over here some time. It is very nice here. I saw some shark and other fish when I came across. I was on the water 21 days.

Do you know if they are going to pay the bonus or not?

Mrs. Betty Thomas Jacobs of Barre, Vermont, writes that her mother, Mrs. Frank Thomas, aged 77 years, still reads the Times and is interested in her friends and relatives back here in her native county of Pocahontas. She is an invalid, confined to bed and wheel chair. However, she says she has lots to be thankful for, with her children around her and pretty things to see.

Frost—At a well attended meeting of farmers and sportsmen last Wednesday night, a predator control club was organized, with Frank Deputy as president and Lester Tennant as secretary. A bounty will be paid on foxes and wild cats killed within a given boundary. The books are open to enroll members—both regular and associate.

Identification

Identify the children's tooth brushes by writing the name on the handle and covering with celloingly fishy. As for the gravy, in the dark, you could not have told it from cod liver oil.

During the recent snow, Lewis Taylor, of Dunmore, took his hounds and went over into Peters Mountain, in spite of a crippled foot mashed last summer, to serve his country by chasing and killing some of the foxes which infest the country side. Soon the dogs had a varment up and going and Lewis figured there soon would be a fox coming by the stand he had taken on an open road way. A varment did come from under the ice ladened forest cover to leap across the road. It was all too quick for any shooting to be done. From size, color and general appearance, Mr. Taylor put the varment down as a canadian lynx or catamount. The zoology book bore him out too.

Once in a long while a canada lynx is killed in this region.

Our forest area has too many bob cats—the bay lynx. It is much smaller than the catamount. A sure way to tell the difference between a big bay lynx and a small canada lynx is the black tip catamount this black cap goes all the way around; with the wild cat, there is a thin white line to divide it.

Yes, the small c is right when spelling canada lynx. It merely means the north country; virginia, as applied to white tail deer means the middle country and carolinian the flora and fauna of the upper south country.

The catamount is a notorious deer and sheep killer. Farmers around Peters Mountain were short some forty head of lambs last season. They blamed the foxes for this depredation. It might so be, this canada lynx got his big share of these lambs.

Speaking about foxes eating lambs, Dan Beverage of Bucks Mountain, lost three lambs of upwards of 40 pounds each in weight He knows foxes got these, for he found the tails of these lambs at a fox den. He knows those and other foxes are not denning in those rocks again these season.

The word comes from Durbin that one of the Nottinghams killed four foxes which had ganged up on a milk cow.

Under the over shot water wheel at the Municipal water works plant is a favorite gathering place for fish, particularly during the winter season. Some weeks ago, Cecil Curry, the plant superintendent, discovered dead and half eaten fish scattered around. Then he saw a mink. Before he could get his rifle, the mink made off under the plant. Then a couple of traps were put at the right place, and before long a good sized mink was caught. Its pelt sold for $18. A count of fish the mink had caught showed about a dozen---bass and rock bass. A couple of bass were a foot long.

fish the mink had caught showed about a dozen---bass and rock bass. A couple of bass were a foot long.

My friend Dove Ryder is badly crippled in the legs. He goes on a pair of crutches, and when I say goes, I mean he goes, too. He is a fireman for stationary saw mill engine boilers and he keeps steam pressure up and poppin with the green slab wood as it comes off the saw and over the cut off. Such sleight of hand is an accomplishment not given to the ordinary run of us mortals. Dove likes to travel the woods and in spite of his noisy going by reason of his handicap he sees more deer and gets closer to the wary creatures than any of ten derfeet, who step more softly.

This brings to mind the assertion of Robert McComb the bull dozer operator, that from the number of deer which are attracted by the noise of his big machine, he believes the best thing to hunt deer from would be a big bull dozer, running at top speed.

Durbin, with full military honors.

From California

Dear Cal—

Sure enjoy reading The Times. It does not matter how far away you get, or where you live, you still enjoy reading about your home State—especially Pocahontas County.

What's wrong out there? No panther stories. The last time I heard from Dad, over in Bollers Draft, over in Bath County, he said your friend and mine, Judge Gathright, had seen a big one.

Next time you see Vernon Dean tell him I saw his dog chasing the fox that Frank Deputy had branded. The dog had run so far he was just about gone. He was so poor you could park a bicycle between his ribs.

Roy Rogers, the movie cowbow has gone into greyhound racing business. If he could catch that one, he sure would make a stack of money.

Well, Cal, again I thank you kindly for the Times and pray that you live to write many more, and I know that all your readers, including myself, sure enjoy reading them.

Getting back to our dog again, he sure must have been a Democrat; he never gave up.

Sincerely, a friend,

Troy Workman,
San Fernando Valley, California

The Candidates

This paper carries the announcement of Cecil Dilley, of Hunters ville, as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Sheriff of Pocahontas County. He will announce his list of deputies later. He is a good man. He will be a strong candidat,e and he is well qualified for the office.

Mr Dilley is the son of the late Jasper Dilley, of Huntersville District. He was a soldier in the first world war. After the war, he entered the State Police service. After serving the full alloted time, he retired with an honorable discharge, and moved back to his native county.

Richard McNeel, of the Levels, first world war. After the war, he entered the State Police service. After serving the full alloted time, he retired with an honorable discharge, and moved back to his native county.

Richard McNeel, of the Levels, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for member of the County Court. This good businessman and big farmer has outstanding qualifications for the office. Serving on the County Court seems to be a tradition in his family. To go no farther back, Dick's father, J. Lanty, and his grandfather, Squire Isaac, sat on this court. His own public service has been that of Circuit Court Clerk—both by appointment and election He made good but unforseen changes in personal business affairs required more time on the farm than the daily duties of Circuit Clerk would allow.

al business affairs required more time on the farm than the daily duties of Circuit Clerk would allow.

This week Senator Fred C. Allen makes formal announcement of his candidacy for re-election to the office of State Senator from this the Twelfth District, subject to the will of the Democratic voters in the general primary election on Tuesday, May 13th

For successive terms, Senator Allen has represented our district now composed of the counties of Braxton, Nicholas, Pendleton, Pocahontas, Randolph and Webster. No one in the Senate has a longer, more efficient, more honorable record of service.

Though encouraged to seek higher offices, Senator Allen has ever felt he could best serve the interest of his people in the upper house of the legislature.

Search his long and honorable record, and it shows how consist-higher offices, Senator Allen has ever felt he could best serve the interest of his people in the upper house of the legislature.

Search his long and honorable record, and it shows how consistently Senator Allen has stood for the best interests and rights of the farmer, the small business man, the veteran, the teacher. He has always been fair to labor. Roads and schools have profited by his support, and the cause of conservation has been advanced.

By reason of his long service Senator Allen is assured of placement on the more important committees. Incidentally, for a number of terms he served as president pro tempore of the Senate.

His experience as a boy on the farm, a teacher of public schools, a soldier in the army, a business man and banker, a hunter and a fisher, mayor of his town, four terms in the Senate—all adds up to first hand knowledge of how to efficiently represent the people of his district.

Senator Allen will as usual conduct a vigorous campaign. It is his purpose to visit each county of the district in the next few weeks; to see and confer with as many voters as time and distance will allow.

"Why We Fight
On Foreign Soil"

From the Great Atlantic Ocean
To the Broad Pacific Shore,
Americans have joined to fight a War.

To keep America, and our families free,
Our forces have chosen to cross the sea.

Take heed, dear people of America, and try to understand,
What destruction it would be to our Great Land!

Because the Communists want to destroy our Democratic Way,
Soldiers of the Free World, have decided it must stay.

So with God's help and our great toil,
Let us keep the enemy from the American soil.

So when these "brutal beasts"
Make their last "great thrust"
Remember "Free People"
"IN GOD WE TRUST."

95 Years Ago

(by W. H. Cackley)

In the West Virginia News of Saturday, March 10, 1917

"Backward, turn, oh, time in your flight,
Make me a child again, just for tonight."

Some one has said never look back, but always look forward, toward the future, entertaining bright hopes of what may come, and letting the past be forgotten. The youth of the present time may be enabled to do this this to a greater degree than the aged. My experience is, having passed the meridian of life, we are inclined to look back, as well as forward; to think and meditate on the past, as well as hope for a peaceful future.

Sixty years ago this winter, 1856 7, the writer, then a boy in his 12th year of age, was at the others but I do not recall them at this date.

Virginia, at the time of his death a few years ago. The winter of 1856-7 was a very hard one; much snow and hard freezing weather; thick ice on the Greenbrier river and its tributaries. In attendance at this school, (it was a pay school, no free schools in Virginia in those days), from the Levels and other sections of Pocahontas County were several boarders — David, Sam'l, James and Patrick Ruckman, from the Levels; Calvin Price from Marlin's Bottom; and Charlie Herold, from near Huntersville. As to the others, memory fails to recall their names. All those mentioned above have passed over the river, so far as I know. I can only recall the names of two pupils now living, who were in that school, viz; Mrs. Nannie Arbogast Moomau, wife of Dr. Moomau, for many years a physician of Green Bank, and Mrs. Ellen Slaven Brown, wife of William L Brown, Esquire, who was of the firm of Wooddell and Brown, only merchants in Green Bank or in that end of the county, sixty years ago. There may have been others but I do not recall them at this date.

The first letter I ever received by mail was written by my grand mother Moore, and is now in possession of my daughter, Mrs. Homer Thompson, of Alderson. The mail service of those days was quite different from now. The mail route then was from Lewisburg to Huntersville and back once a week; from Warm Springs to Huntersville and back once a week; from Huntersville to Traveler's Repose once a week on horseback—up on Sunday and back on Monday. There were only two post offices between Huntersville and Traveler's Repose, a distance of 30 miles. But few newspapers passed through the mails. Perhaps a few Staunton Spectators, or Rockingham Registers and I think a paper was published at Lewisburg, either the Independent or Chronicle. No daflies; and no paper published in Pocahontas County until about the year, 1876. No banks doing business in the county at that time. A way-bill was attached or tied to each letter sent out from the post office. No postage stamps were in use; letters could be prepaid or sent collect from sender to the recipient, and I do not think postage was less than 5 cents on any letter and from that amount up to 15, 20 and 25 cents, as to the distance it had to travel.

There was no bank nearer than Staunton, Virginia, and I remember my father owed some money to a party in Ohio and in sending it he cut a bank note in the middle and mailed one-half, and when he got notice it was received he mailed the other half.

No mowing machines; hay all cut with grass scythes and raked mostly by hand, or a home made one-horse double-headed rake, that you could flop over when the rake was full. No reapers or binders; grain all cut with a cradle or reap hook and threshed in a majority of cases, with flail Along about this time a four-horse threshing machine, called a "chaff piler," came into use; it threshed the grain but did not separate it from the chaff. In those days many farmers used the home-made woodden fork for handling hay and straw. Very

Along about this time a four-horse threshing machine, called a "chaff piler," came into use; it threshed the grain but did not separate it from the chaff. In those days many farmers used the home-made woodden fork for handling hay and straw. Very few farmers had any shelter for their cows or stock in the winter. No de-horning; a cow without horns was called a "muley" and was looked upon as a scrub or inferior breed. If a cow, by accident, got a born knocked off, it was put back and tied on and it would often grow fast again. Many cows had a disease called "hollow horn," and "wolf in the tail." For hollow horn the remedy was to bore the horn with a gimlet and for wolf in the tail, split the tail and put salt and pepper in it and tie it up with a rag.

The nearest railroad then was east of the Blue Ridge mountains. All the store goods brought to that section, was hauled on wagons from either Scottsville or Richmond. A merchant would buy and have hauled in on a big Newtown, 4 or 6 horse wagon, in the fall of the year, enough of Newtown, 4 or 6 horse wagon, in the fall of the year, enough of general merchandise to last until spring, and in the late spring he would stock up with spring and summer goods to last till fall.

No canned goods were in the stores in those days; no granulated sugar; a small amount of loaf sugar and crushed sugar was kept by some merchants, and purchased by those who felt able to have a little "store tea," to sweeten the drink. Sassafras and spicewood, in the spring of the year, was used more than now, and if sweetened at all, either home made maple sugar or New Orleans brown sugar was used—not only for teas and coffee, but for stewed fruits and all other purposes in cooking when a sweetening was needed.

Cattle was kept then until 3 to 5 years old before being sold to the cattle buyers, and were driven in droves of 100 to 150 on foot, mostly to Pennsylvania.

Horses were purchased and gathered by horseman into lots of 10 to 20 in late winter and fattened and slicked up and taken to Lynchburg and eastern markets and sold. Sometimes a trad-

5 years old before being sold to the cattle buyers, and were driven in droves of 100 to 150 on foot, mostly to Pennsylvania.

Horses were purchased and gathered by horseman into lots of 10 to 20 in late winter and fattened and slicked up and taken to Lynchburg and eastern markets and sold. Sometimes a trader would trade a horse for "manufactured" tobacco.

Deer were plentiful in those days, and some hunters made good money from the sale of their venison and deer skins, killed in the fall season. No hunter's license was required in those days.

Paper money in circulation sixty years ago was issued by the state banks; any amount less than $5.00 was gold, in $2 50 and $1.00 pieces; silver 6 1-4 cents, 12 1-2 cents, 16 2 3 cents, 22 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. The old copper cent was about the size of the 25 cents in silver, now in use.

¶A majority of the facts set forth in this article are statements o incidents and circumstances exist in Pocahontas County sixty years ago, but the same experiences and conditions are applicable to the surrounding sections of this part of West Virginia and adjoining territory of Old Virginia.

Just think of it! Sixty years ago: Mail once a week; but few newspapers; no railroad within 100 miles or more; no telephone nor telegraph line; passengers carried over the Staunton and Parkersburg Pike, Lewisburg and Kanawha Pike, Warm Springs Pike, in stage coaches drawn by four or six horses; no mowing machines, no reapers, no binders; most of the wheat, rye and oats threshed with flail; no roller mills; wheat was ground on a burr stone; flour dark, but it made excellent bread, and no doubt was more nutritious than now; mush and milk for supper; hog and hominy for breakfast; boiled cabbage, beans, etc., for dinner; honey, often secured from a bee-tree found in the dense forests; maple syrup and New Orleans molasses were the principal sweets found on table.

When we look back 60 years and note the wonderful inventions and changes that have taken place; then look to the future 60 years, we believe without doubt that more wonderful inventions will [illegible] than in the last sixty years.

FIELD NOTES

One snowy morning last week, over on the head of Little Creek, John Trainer and Lee Wade heard a lamb cry out in terror. A big red fox had gotten hold of him. Following the tracks of the fox in the light snow, the men trailed it to its den. They dug out two foxes, and identified the remains of no less than five lambs.

Graham LaRue makes a report of mocking birds wintering at Hillsboro. Some years since a fine cock mocking bird wintered in Marlinton Both sexes were at Hillsboro this winter.

The report comes of finding a small deer which had been killed by a wild cat on Beaver Lick Mountain.

Jesse McNeill came in to tell me that they have just about got the foxes cleaned out of the Key Flat once more. That is, until others come in.

Some years ago, he and George Duncan set out on the public welfare chore of cleaning up foxes in this naturally good pheasant, rabbit and wild turkey cover. The first season netted upwards of twenty fox pelts. Since then, the seasons kill has averaged Flat once more. That is, until others come in.

Some years ago, he and George Duncan set out on the public welfare chore of cleaning up foxes in this naturally good pheasant, rabbit and wild turkey cover. The first season netted upwards of twenty fox pelts. Since then, the seasons kill has averaged around six to eight. It is pretty well established these foxes were ranging visitors rather than residents born on the Flat. Naturally grouse and rabbits are increasing in number. However, Jesse reports the presence of too many great horned owls to give small game a reasonable chance to come back.

William Crigger speaks down to me from his high station in the fire tower on the Beaver Lick. He said the ruffed grouse is drumming like nobodys business, in greater number than for ten years. No turkey gobbling heard as yet However, William is not sitting these frosty mornings with windows open, 90 feet in the air, on top of a four thousand foot mountain. He is stationed there to see and not to hear anythign but his telephone ring.

He reports little deer signs on the mountain, but plenty in the low grounds of the valleys; and in mentioning valleys, I still like the graphic expression, "Troughs of the Alleghanies," used by the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt as he wrote of the end on end valleys of this region. A good example is the stretch from the head of Greenbrier, down Deer Creek, Sitlington Creek, Browns Creek, up Beaver Creek, down Little Creek, Anthony Creek, up Indian Draft, down Indian Creek, up Blue Stone, and wherever.

To the Voters of Pocahontas County:

Dr George F. Hull, of Durbin, is a candidate for member of the Non-partisan Board of Education. He possesses some of the best qualities for this position that could be found in any candidate.

He was born in the year 1880 at High town, Virginia, son of Joe and Manda Beverage Hull. He attended the public schools of Highland County and attended and graduated from Kenmore High School at Amhurst Court House. Then for four years he attended Randolph Macon College; graduating with Bachelor of Science degree. At college he played football for all four years.

Dr Hull entered the Virginia Medical School, from which he graduated in 1905. Here he again played football, and he was captain of the team of 1903. He interned at the world famous Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., and the Bellevue Hospital in New York.

In the year 1908, Dr Hull began his practice in Durbin, where he has continuously maintained an office to this day. He has been prominent in public affairs, and fully knows the responsibility connected with holding public office. He was a member of the West Virginia House of Delegates, 1926-30. He served his people well, always remembering that he represented all the people of his district and no special group. He has served as Mayor of Durbin; member of council; and was County Health Officer during the small pox epidemic. He is one of the oldest Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Surgeons, having served since 1910.

Dr Hull married Mona Hetzel. She has been most active in church and young peoples' work. They are the parents of two children: Virginia, now associated with the Illinois School System; George, interning in medicine at the University of Richmond.

It is felt that these qualifications should be presented to you for your consideration in the forthcoming election.

Very sincerely yours,
FRIENDS OF Dr. HULL

In Memoriam

In memory of our Father and Husband, Abraham Waugh Pritt, who departed this life one year ago, June 23.

How often our thoughts do wander
To the grave not far away
Where we laid our darling daddy
One year ago today.

Gone, dear Father, gone forever
How we miss your smiling face
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.

A happy home was once enjoyed
How sweet the memory still
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.

From our chain this link is broken
In the east the stars have set
But engraved on memory's table
Is the name we shall never forget.

Big Bear

Neighbors got the big bear of the head of Shavers Cheat last Tuesday. Since the woods have become dark with the new growth of leaves, the old bear has been coming in to kill and eat sheep for the Wooddells, Wares and others on Big Spring Branch of Elk, Wares Ridge, Spruce Glade and around. His raid last week was on the Wooddells—a ewe and four lambs. At present market, this was a loss of $150, come selling time this fall.

When the hunt was organized the bear dogs of Carl and Keith Wooddell and those of June Galford, of Galfords Creek, were laid on. Not too much trailing had to be done before the bear was jumped up and got going Then followed a chase of perhaps ten miles around the head of Shavers Fork through as thick a jungle of briers and brambles and second growth in general as to be well inpenetrable.

Along the Western Maryland Railroad there is the Big Cut and the Little Cut. Both places are notorious bear crossings.

In any well organized bear huut, on head of Shavers Cheat, marksmen are placed as standers in each. Amon Tracy was the stander in the Little Cut. Finally he heard the dogs, and then he saw the bear. He was coming straight to him, through an old steam skidder slashing. When about 62 yards from the stander, the bear put his paws on a fallen log and raised his head to listen for the dogs. That was Mr. Tracy's chance, and he put a bullet from a high power rifle,

This was a big old he-bear. The hunters lumped him off at about 350 pounds. I have known smaller bears to be lumped off as 400 pounds and more.

The hunters were not sure the dogs had put up the bear which had killed the sheep. However, when they opened the paunch, there was the evidence unmistak-able. It was the marked ear of a sheep—a crop and swallow fork, the long established mark of Ed Wooddell.

Just another line to say that to us old boys of black powder days, the fact that a bullet in the face of a bear was fatal is news. The old lead falls from a black powder charge just did not penetrate the hard sloping skull of a bear. The sore head just made him mad.

School Commencement

Dr Irving Stewart, President of West Virginia University, made the commencement address at the graduation exercises of Marlinton High School last Tuesday night. As was expected, the Doctor made one of the best speeches ever—short and to the point on the spirit which is America. But, then, what other is expected from the man who is doing such wonders in making our University the institution it ought to be?

The class roll has been published. Here are a few extra honors read out Tuesday night:

Patients from Pocahontas County recently admitted to Greenbrier Valley Hospital in Ronceverte as listed in the West Virginia News include: Mrs. Mamie Wilfong, of Boyer, Thurmond Cosner, of Cass, and Allen Bowers, of Frank.

It was the pleasure of this office force to have visitors from the Hillsboro High School on last Wednesday. The Seniors were on a swing around to see Pocahontas County first. The Pocahontas Times outfit was one of the exhibits, as they say in law suits.

West Virginians Know Why

MARLAND IS THE MAN FOR GOVERNOR

In William C. Marland you have the best qualified candidate for the Democratic nomination primarily because--

Among the nine candidates running for Governor in both parties, Marland is the ONLY candidate who has had practical ADMINISTRATIVE experience as a State official, having served as a member of the Board of Public Works, the actual governing body of the State.

HERE IS WHAT REPRESENTATIVE CITIZENS SAY OF MARLAND

During World War II, I was stationed with Bill Marland in the Pacific. I know that he served his Country well in time of need, and was prepared to use his experience in public affairs to be of service to the people of his home State as the Chief Executive. West Virginia citizens can depend upon Gary Vandervort to conduct the office of Governor in a manner worthy of West Virginians and gives with pride.--GEORGE SPENCE (Spence)--Member Post 10, American Legion, and Sergeant (2nd) Legion Post 4434 VFW, Gary, and Member of Local Union 2844, Gary, West Va.

"Bill Marland is a member of our Local Union and I know him well, as I worked with him in the mines. He is an honest friend and is greatly respected and admired by all his fellow members of Local Union 6022."--J. HUNTER THOMAS (Jim Bramble)--President of Local Union 6022, United Mine Workers of America.

"I am most glad to add my endorsement and give my full support to the candidacy of William C. Marland for Governor of our State. I would say as a man of great executive ability, keen judgment, and unquestionable honesty. We should congratulate ourselves in having secured such a worthy candidate."--EARL E. CLAY (Lumberjack)--Retired Principal, Bolling High and Grade School.

"During [illegible] years I fully appreciate how very much there is to [illegible] Bill Marland [illegible] and have found [illegible] to be diligent, conscientious and fair. I am pleased to say that I have worked with him and found him a man with whom we can work."--CHARLES E. MILLER, JR. (Chickasaw Barbecue)--Owner and Operator of a large restaurant in Wayne County.

"Bill Marland is possessed of an extraordinary fine [illegible] and mind, and [illegible] gives evidence when [illegible] given an excellent account of himself in dealing with the problems of government, both moral and economic. He is an enterprising woman of a type who can do any job that he is called upon to do, and do it WELL."--BEN HOOKE (Charleston)--United Press Bureau Chief, Southern Division of West Virginia.

"William C. Marland is my active member of the Wesley Methodist Church, a member of the official board and the Quarterly Conference. During my years as pastor, as District Superintendent, William C. Marland has been [illegible] of all the pastors, officers and workers in connection [illegible] of official church business."--JOHN W. HOLLISTER (Methodist)--District Superintendent of Methodist Church.

MARLAND WILL BE GOVERNOR FOR ALL WEST VIRGINIANS

IF YOU are a farmer, professional or business man or woman, laborer, laborer, veteran--whatever your classification as a citizen, you have in Bill Marland a candidate for Governor who is equally qualified by character, ability, industry, legal training, patriotism in war and peace, and actual experience in state administration.

To vote for him, go to the polls on Tuesday, May 13, and mark your ballot thus:

FIELD NOTES

James M. Workman, of Burnsides, brought in six inches of a five eights augur bit. It was found in the middle of an immense sugar maple on the Sberman Clark farm near Hillsboro. The piece of steel just about ruined the power saw being used to cut down the tree. The stump was five feet five inches across. The butt log of 16 feet scaled 1300 feet. As near as Mr. Workman could count, there have been around 120 annual growths since the augur was broken in boring the tree for sugar water. The tree was not much more than a foot in diameter at that now far distant day. Mr. Workman said it was interesting to check off the annual growth rings of this big old tree. Some years the ring would be wide, showing a fine growing season. Other rings would be crowded close together recording a series of bad years.

Talking about sugar trees, neighbor Burt Smith, the lumberman, was looking at the fine big maple sugar tree which stands in the street between his house and ours. It was planted forty odd years since. Two feet in diameter there is a lot of good, high value lumber in the butt cut. As for the top, it is so wide spread there is only cords of pulp and stove wood in the many long branches. This practical lumberman was moved to remark that if he and I had bought us some hundred or so acres of good sugar ground land on the rich Back Alleghanies a generation ago, and planted it in hard maple trees, thin enough to grow thrifty and thick enough to grow tall straight timber, the trees would now represent a fortune. Why not take a shot and do it now? Well, the old men are the ones who plant trees, but this one is hard enough put to it to get help to keep garden, truck patch and lawn in reasonably good shape.

Talking about trees, a bulletin comes stating that work is in progress at the Experimental Station of the University to develop a variety of chestnut trees that is immune to asiatic blight. The attempt to develop a desirable chestnut are based on use of resistant varieties which are found occasionally. There are three phases. First, nuts from old trees are planted. Then there are 200 trees of superior strains of Chinese chestnuts, obtained at Beltsville, Maryland. Some of these trees prove immune to the blight, are hardy, bear good nuts, live long, and grow into good timber. Then the third phase is to develop a method of rooting cuttings from good, proven hybrid trees. This insures uniform chestnut trees. There is no telling what you will get from seed.

INTRODUCING

FOR YOUR FAVORITE

BREAD

PURITY MAID'S new package will not soil clothing. It's a plastic coated wrapper. (Polyethylene is added to the wax application). It protects bread better ... saves flavor ... keeps PURITY MAID fresh.

The curtain has parted on a new style scene and you will see, at your grocer, an entirely new and lovely wrapper on your favorite bread ... PURITY MAID Sandwich Loaf. You will like the beautiful simplicity of the design, and the fresh clean colors on a field of snowy white. Truly a wrapper of dignity for southern West Virginia's most popular bread. The oval remains the same ... PURITY MAID ... identifying sandwich style bread as the finest QUALITY your money can buy!

That New Road

I have been holding my breath for many months on the new road up Gauley Mountain from Route 219 on Elk. A mile below Marys Chapel, it crosses the Old Field Fork of Elk. For four miles it climbs Gauley, to connect with the outside, eastside world the immense new coal field opened up by the Moast Coal Corporation on the head of the Gauley River.

I can now report that satisfactory progress is being made by the Pocahontas Company in clearing right of way and grading the roadbed; in constructing concrete abutments for the bridge across Old Field Fork of Elk, near the mouth of Roaring Run.

The distance between Route 219 and mining development is four miles. The right of way will be cleared this week, and about two miles of grading pretty well completed. The steel for the bridge is on the ground, to be erected when the concrete dries a bit.

With continued open weather, it is expected that in a few weeks this road will be open for the use of jeeps this winter by workers going to the mines.

cleared this week, and about two miles of grading pretty well completed. The steel for the bridge is on the ground, to be erected when the concrete dries a bit.

With continued open weather, it is expected that in a few weeks this road will be open for the use of jeeps this winter by workers going to the mines.

The announcement has been made that there is coal in this new Gauley field for heavy production for all of two generations It is superior New River Sewell coal. It goes over the Baltimore & Ohio Railway. to be used at the big steel plant now being built on the Deleware River, near Philadelphia. They say this plant on completion will take up about a square mile of land. It will draw its supply of iron ore from South South America.

The building of this new road puts Marlinton fifteen miles from a big coal field. It will mean so much in giving employment to many men at top wages under good working conditions.

During the past summer, some men went to this Gauley field by Tea Creek, over National Forest roads, sixty odd miles; others went by way of an old railroad grade from Slaty Fork.

In addition to making available employment for many people, the road will be so convenient, it is expected many men now employed there will move their families to homes on this side of the mountains.

There are three parties with heavy interest in the building and completion of this four mile link of road. The first are our people, as outlet to needed employment; the great corporation, for its inlet of much needed dependable labor; the National Forest, for the means of reaching and controlling forest fires, for the marketing of timber crops.

Coal Mine Opened

The Black Mountain Coal Company has opened a coal mine on Black Mountain. The site is well up on the mountain about opposite the mouth of Days Run. The road has been surfaced and the codveyor, grader, and tipple are about completed. The project is being backed by coal mine operators from Raleigh County. It is in the Sewell seam and the coal is of high quality. It is located on the Campbell Lumber Company tract and Mrs. F. R. Hunter is owner of the mineral rights and granted this lease.

Hillsboro—Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Kirk went to Charleston on Wednesday. From there they will go to Florida to spend the winter.

Paul McNeel, of Lexington, spent the week-end with his sister, Mrs. William Cackley, in the Levels. He was accompanied by his neighbor, A. L. Talley.

Week-end guests at the home of Dale Gay at Broadway, Virginia were Miss Gilda Gay and Dr. Grunberg from the Sinia Hospital in Baltimore, Maryland, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Barlow and children, and Mrs. Clark Baxter of Marlinton, Mr. and Mrs. Oda Gay and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Corbett of Frost.

Old Ballots

In looking over some old papers of her fathers, the late L. M. McClintic, Mrs S. N. Hench came across a couple of old tickets of the election of 1888. In those days each party had its own seperate ticket. In fact, each candidate could have his own ticket. A man could mark a ticket for a voter & then go with him in the election election room and see that he delivered his vote as he promised. Four years later came the secret ballot. This was at first called the Australian ballot system.

In that year, Grover Cleveland was the Democratic candidate, to be defeated by Benjamin Harrison. For Governor, A. B. Fleming, Democrat, defeated Nathan Goff, Republican.

On this Republican ballot, there are no county nominees listed. I rather think a check at the clerks office might show there was a Republican county ticket that year. I do know that four years later, the late Senator N. C. McNeil saw to it that there was a Republican county ticket in the field. From that time on, the Republicans have always had a county ticket with varying degrees of success.

On the Democratic county ticket, C. P. Dorr, of Webster County was nominee for the Legislature from the Fourth Delegate District composed of the counties of of Pocahontas and Webster. Eight

About Rush Holt

In view of the recent campaign of smear conducted by the opposition party against my good friend and long - time acquaintance, the Hon. Rush D. Holt, of Weston, candidate for Governor of West Virginia, I feel it is my duty as his friend to make the following statement :

Rush Holt is an active member of the First Methodist Church of Weston, and a member of the official board thereof. He is teacher of the Men's Bible Class - largest in the City of Weston. He has, by request, spoken in more churches than any man in West Virginia. He has appeared before many civic and other organizations of high standing in West Virginia and in neighboring states.

I have talked with a number of members of the State Legislature who have been associated with Mr Holt, and find that they hold him in the very highest regard as being honest and a hard worker for the best interests of all the people of West Virginia.

The opposition has stooped to the lowest tactics of smear and mis-representation of facts concerning the record of Mr Holt. He is considered the best authority on tax problems and where our tax dollar goes of any man in the State. With other conservative members of the Legislature, he has fought for itemized budgets to be submitted to the Legislature instead of lump sum budgets, only to have this move defeated by administration members of the Legislature, who evidently preferred that the taxpayer be kept in the dark as to just how his tax dollar was to be spent.

Mr Holt has had the experience of dealing with these tax problems as well as many other affairs of the State. Being sober, honest, and equipped by actual experience, he is qualified to make us a real Governor.

I solicit your vote and influence for my good friend, the Honorable Rush D Holt, of Weston, for Governor of West Virginia.

Respectfully submitted,

W. W. HARPER

From The Braxton Democrat

The source of Rush Holt's income has been a matter of conjecture in his home town of Weston and throughout Lewis county. It has interested a lot of people in Gilmer and other close-in counties. Being a man without a profession, and having no business, no trade, no inheritance, no salary save a paltry $500 a year as a member of the West Virginia Legislature which ended in 1950 and no known legitimate income except that received from an unpretentious residence property in the town of Glenville, his means and method of supporting himself and family have been quite an enigma and topic of conversation, pro and con, — mostly con. Mr. Holt is neither a lawyer, nor a doctor he is neither a dentist nor a druggist; he is neither a teacher nor a preacher; nor is he a barber, a butcher, a baker or a candlestick maker, yet he lives like a prince of the line, owns high-priced automobiles, pedigreed dogs, has a family of five, travels extensively throughout the United States, spends his winters in luxurious hotels along the gold coast of Florida with an occasional trip to Europe thrown in. Naturally, people wonder and give expression to the often repeated phrase, "where does the money come from?"

The Bible, that reservoir of wisdom and advice, admonishes mankind to "Behold the lily, it labors not, neither does it spin." We cannot say that there is any particular resemblance between Rush Holt and a lily as a matter of pulchritude or fragrance, but both have one thing in common, they neither "work nor do they spin." The lily blows, blossoms, and blushes in its little world unseen, while Mr. Holt ... state-wide Democratic primary, he listed personal property under sub title "O, all moneys, notes, bonds, etc ," at $1,450.

For the year 1940, election year, he listed under the same title, $2,500. But since the election was held in May of that year any moneys, etc , which he may have received would not be listed until the beginning of the next year, 1941.

For that year, 1941, Mr. Holt listed his moneys, etc , at $5,700, for a total net gain over the year 1939 of $6,750.

The figures for the year 1942, which were apparently the residuary hang-over from the election year and the year after, are very significant. For that year Mr. Holt listed his moneys, etc., at $4,400 which was a decrease of $1,300 from the previous year. But under title "P" he listed a gain of $2,090 over the previous year. And under title "Q" which consists of non-taxable personal property such as government bonds, he listed $7,200, for a total for the year of $14,140!

We now pass over the other campaign years in which he was a candidate for public office and an which his personal property listings conform, generally, to the above pattern, to take a look at the year 1950 when he was a candidate for Congress in the third district.

For the year 1949, the year before Mr. Holt became a candidate for Congress, he listed personal property to the value of $2,530. For the year 1950, election year, he listed no personal property and skipped the payment of his poll taxes. For the year 1951, the year ...

Naturally, people wonder and give expression to the often repeated phrase, "where does the money come from?"

The Bible, that reservoir of wisdom and advice, admonishes mankind to "Behold the lily, it labors not, neither does it spin." We cannot say that there is any particular resemblance between Rush Holt and a lily as a matter of pulchritude or fragrance, but both have one thing in common, they neither "work nor do they spin." The lily blows, blossoms, and blushes in its little world unseen, while Mr. Holt oscillates in opulence with hands untarnished by toil.

A careful examination of Mr. Holt's tax returns as recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County Court of Lewis County throws some light upon the possible source of his adequate income. There would appear to be a bizarre and uncanny relationship between those years in which he is a candidate for public office and those few other years when he is not so engaged. The year 1940 for instance, when he was a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate, presents some interesting, not to say, startling figures and facts.

For the year 1949, the year before Mr. Holt entered the year. And under title "Q" which consists of non-taxable personal property such as government bonds, he listed $7,200, for a total for the year of $14,140!

We now pass over the other campaign years in which he was a candidate for public office and an which his personal property listings conform, generally, to the above pattern, to take a look at the year 1950 when he was a candidate for Congress in the third district.

For the year 1949, the year before Mr. Holt became a candidate for Congress, he listed personal property to the value of $2,530. For the year 1950, election year, he listed no personal property and skipped the payment of his poll taxes. For the year 1951, the year after the November election of 1950, he listed personal property to the value of $5,300, or a gain of $3,770 over the year of 1939, the year before the election.

For the year 1952, the year in which he became the Republican candidate for Governor of the good state of West Virginia, he listed no personal property although he still owns the 1950 model Buick station wagon for which he claims he paid $2,560. For this year, the present year, he also skipped the payment of his poll taxes.

In the citations above the question of "where does the money come from" may have been answered. Also a clue to his perpetual office-seeking may have been uncovered.

Editor Defined

It is alleged a schoolboy in Kansas wrote the following entitled "An Editor":

"I don't know how newspapers got into the world, and I don't think God does, for He ain't got nothing to say about these in the Bible. I think the editor is the missing link we read of, and that he stayed in the business until after the flood, came out and wrote the thing up, and has been kept busy ever since. If the editor makes a mistake, folks say he ought to be hung; but if the doctor makes mistakes, he buries them and people don't say nothing because they can't read Latin. When the editor makes mistakes, there is a big lawsuit and swearind and a big fuss, but if the doctor makes one, there is a funeral with flowers and perfect silence. A doctor can use a word a yard long without him or anyone else knowing what it means, but if the editor uses one, he has to spell it. If the doctor goes to see another man's wife, he charges for the visit, but if the editor goes, he gets a charge of buckshot. Any college can make doctors to order, but editors has to be born."

The One Room School

There are now no one-room school houses in the old County of Hampshire, so Governor John J. Cornwell was moved to write as follows in his Hampshire Review.

The one-room school house, which has passed into the limbo of things that were, was the outpost of our civilization, especially during the earlier period of its existence. Its most fruitful days were those of the McGuffey Readers and Ray's Arithmetic. Lack of transportation and because there were only trails instead of highways the one-room school houses were numerous and often patronized by but few pupils. The teachers in these one-room schools were truly pioneers in education. They labored long and diligently and generally were most conscientious in their work. The sturdy brand of citizenship that emerged from these one-room school houses was proof of the character education. They and diligently and generally were most conscientious in their work. The sturdy brand of citizenship that emerged from these one-room school houses was proof of the character building techniques employed by those pioneer teachers as well as of the textbooks in use in those days. Of their passing there need not be regret but there should be an understanding and an appreciation of their place in American history and of the work done by the men and women who conducted the schools within them.

SHOOTING STAR

Early Saturday morning the first caller was James Dean to report on the flying saucer which he and Vernon Dean had observed from Marlinton Main Street near 7 o'clock Friday evening. The big ball of fire was headed south, over Stillwell. It looked to be oblong, about the size of a barrel, sailing along like rocket or roman candle, not far above house tops. Bill Bob Meadows saw the appearance from this point, also. At Campbellton, Ellet Higgins, observed it, as did Clarence Barlow from Woodrow.

Up on Big Flat, Grover Jackson saw the appearance from his home beyond the Airport. It flamed in from the north, to fly into pieces and disappear between the Jackson home and town.

At Buckeye, Charles A. Young checked in the appearance as being about the biggest shooting star he had ever observed.

Zed Smith, Jr., and others, including Mrs Jane P. Sharp and her children, John C. and Jane R., saw the meteorite from Droop Mountain. It was big like the moon, shed sparks as it sped along broke into pieces and blinked out.

On Knapps Creek, among those reporting sight of the shooting star were Clete Kelley and family A. T. White, G. M. Sharp, Julian Lockridge, Williard Dever. It seemed to barely clear Alleghany

Ben Morgan was driving home from Morgantown. He saw the appearance as he drove along Route 99.

Reports of this meteorite came from widely apart places—Charleston, Wheeling, Washington.

They tell me these shooting stars are fragments of broken up worlds, which travel around in outer space. When one strikes into our atmosphere—say, two hundred miles up—its great speed engenders heat. It usually burns out, but big and little ones often reach the ground. I guess the

Top Tanner

The new top tanner and assistant superintendent at the Marlinton Tannery of the International Shoe Company is W. H. Avery. He and his family have come from Philadelphia, and are now at home in the Hamilton Addition. Mr. Avery comes from the Frankford Tannery at Philadelphia. He takes the place of Eugene Ammons. In fact, they exchanged places. He is a native of North Carolina. He and Frank Johnson, of Marlinton, worked together years ago at the big tannery at Morganton, North Carolina. We all hated to see Mr. Ammons go away after so many years a neighbor. However, we can say Mr. Avery is a good man and fine gentleman, too. You remember the old time saying—a fair exchange is not robbery.

I have not had opportunity to consult with Fred Gilford on the bear situation since the bears woke up this spring. He has been holding out that the bears mostly left these parts for the Shenandoah Mountain when the mast failed in 1950, then did not come back again last year. What, with signs to be seen in the woods, bears killed on Shavers Cheat, on Gilfords Creek, and in Highland County, I believe he will agree the bears are back since the woods have darkened.

People do not see every bear which crosses the road, but within a week a bear has been reported from various communities. J. E. Hamrick saw a bear at Roaring Run on Elk; one of the Dumires saw a bear at the McGuire place. The Wooddell pack of dogs was laid on. There was a hot chase of several hours, but the bear was too smart to go through the stands.

Up on Paddy Knob, on the Alleghanies, the report comes of a big bear making raids on flocks of sheep running on the National Forest.

Over the radio came the news that a big bear was killing cattle on the Shenandoah Mountain, over in Virginia. Hunting clubs had turned packs of hounds for fine, long, hot chases. They have the sporting rule over there to call off the dogs after a given time. I can't see how such considerate sporty treatment can ever develop what it takes of the never say die spirit in dogs required to put a fighting bear up a tree. In our parts, when it comes to chasing a bear we never aim to quit until the hide comes.

FIELD NOTES

The inquiry comes—does the seventeen-year locust live forty days and forty nights?

The answer in the book is, the adult cicada has only a week or so of life out in the air.

There is liable to be locusts over a period of about six weeks. The book explains this by saying the insects crawl out of the ground, singly or in droves, from late May to early July.

It is the male cicada which does the singing—often loudly and shrilly. The sound comes by vibrating membranes stretched over a pair of sound chambers situated one on each side of stomach.

The cicada never eats during its week of life above ground. It had sixteen years of fat feeding, by sucking the juices of roots, below ground. Birds, pigs, fowls, fish and what all feed fat on locusts. Each is a gob of fat when it comes out of the ground.

The eggs are laid in twigs, which which wither and die. The newly hatched young fall to the ground. It burrows in, and then for sixteen long, dark years it sucks the juices from plant roots. Finally, it digs out with its big front feet; crawls up on a tree or something; splits down the back, and an adult is liberated.

Over the country there are twenty, or more, different broods of seventeen year locusts. Each has its own rather definite and often restricted distribution and time of emergence. A single county may have several broods in its boundary, to come out on different years.

The book also says there are laggards who fail to come up on time, and then extra strong ones which appear a year before schedule time.

Down South they have one kind which completes its life cycle in thirteen years.

OUR TICKET

In a county so well managed as our Pocahontas, the citizenship sometimes may be inclined to take good public service too much for granted; fail to get out to vote, and then find the better men have failed to be elected.

No party ever presented a better list of good and capable, tried and true men for public office than Our County ticket of the Democratic Party. A column or two is required to properly present the peculiar fitness of each man on the ticket for the office to which he aspires, but I do not have the space.

To begin, let me say there is no more important office than that of Prosecuting Attorney, to safeguard the interests and general well being of our people. It can be added that the Prosecuting Attorney who magnifies his office by honest, efficient enforcement of the law without fear or favor, may not be any too popular with certain selfish interests and individuals who may have come in conflict with statutes made and provided for the protection and well being of society. It is no fitting place in which to play politics.

by honest, efficient enforcement of the law without fear or favor, may not be any too popular with certain selfish interests and individuals who may have come in conflict with statutes made and provided for the protection and well being of society. It is no fitting place in which to play politics.

Richard F. Currence is the candidate to succeed himself. He has made a record as States Attorney for Pocahontas County equal to any and superior to most in the whole State. Court and juries are safely guided by him, where there is merit in a case, he prosecutes to the limit; where the ends of justice demand, he moves for dismissal of charges. In so doing, his conduct of the office has ever been a policy of justice tinged with mercy where facts justify such action.

Mr Currence is a campanionable man; an outstanding lawyer; good business man; church officer and worker; a commuity leader.

A line or two about Richard McNeel, of the Levels, for Commissioner of the County Court. He is a successful young business man and a big farmer. He has had experience in public office as Clerk of the Circuit Court. He has an agreeable personality to deal with the public. He will maintain the high reputation of our Court for efficiency. Sitting on this Court is a tradition in this McNeel family. Put Dick there, and he will be of the third generationin my life time to so serve.

No office nor officer more closely affects the property owning citizen, business man, business interests, and most every body in general than that of County Assessor. General County and School expenses must be paid to a more or less large extent by money raised by direct tax on propty of the various kinds and classes. It is all important that the burden of taxation be equally borne by all alike in proportion to value of property. Fair and equal taxation means good judgment on the part of Assessor.

In Assessor Dewey Burr our Pocahontas County has an assessor who is fair, square and efficient. Then his line of deputies:

He is a farmer and business man, who takes good care of his own financial affairs. He can be depended upon to safely handle the finances of the county. A double guarantee of the success of his administration is his field of experienced deputies. Graham LaRue, in the office; O. B. Curry, jailor; Jack Smith and Ralph Moore, as field deputies.

Early in the nineteenth century, Abram Burner, of Shenandoah County, married Mary Hull, of Highland County, and set up housekeeping on the East Fork of the Greenbrier above Travellers Repose. Their oldest son was George Burner. He married Sally, daughter of Andrew Warwick. One of their sons was Allen, above noted.

Hon. George Burner was a prominent man. He was one of the first members of the County Court upon the organization of Pocahontas County. Later he represented the county for several terms in the Virginia Legislature. He was one of the original advocates of secession in these parts.

Even in politics, blood is thick-than water. Naturally, us Confederates to a man have been lining up for Senator Russell, of Georgia, for the Democratic nomination for President of these United States. Suddenly I fell out of line, when I remembered that Governor Adlai Stevenson, of Illinois, is of Greenbrier Valley family stock. His name is at my mast head as my choice for the Democratic nomination for President of the United States. He is of Thomas McNeill family stock, through the Ewing family line.

Judge Nickell Kramer was faced with a dilemma at the opening of the recent term of Pocahontas County Circuit Court. The absence of two summoned for grand jury service called for the appointment of two special jury commissioners to draw new names. Rules call for the appointment of one from each major political party. After a glance, naming the Republican member was easy, and he scanned the courtroom for a Democrat. Not one in sight. Refusing to believe his eyes, Judge Kramer called upon the Sheriff to look over the audience. Same result after a careful scanning of every face. One had to be sent for and brought in.

Cal Price would no doubt explain this as proving that Democrats are not in trouble and keep out of litigation, but we refuse in advance to accept that explanation—we think they're scarce.

—West Virginia News

Sure there are still a sprinkling of Democrats here and there, even around our Court House, to keep matters pure and sweet and above board, and beyond reproach. You remember, a dozen just persons would have saved Sodom. I see in the papers where General Dwight Eisenhower attempted slighting remark toward certain public officials, by referring to them as 22 calibre. Has this old rimfire smooth bore read recently on the long rifle 22 calibre cartridge box the warning, "effective up to two miles"? One of the big bears of these mountains was picked off with a twenty-two long rifle ball a few years since. A military man should know his ballistics better than to attempt such inept comparison.

I see in the papers, too, where the General referred to an opponent as a d- - - isolationist. If I too were a swearing man I could not refrain from the strong statement that this is a deal of a way to remark about a fellow traveler.

I read in the paper too, where General Eisenhower, to establish his party regularity, recounted the fact that where he came from the people were so poison partisan a Democrat had about the same standing as the town drunk! How can a candidate for such high office take such glory in his shame!

Editor Blake, in his West Virginia News, records the fact that thirteen of the sixteen West Virginia delegates to the Republican National Convention held true to the bitter end for Senator Taft, as per instruction given by popular

After all, the big speeches of the two great national conventions were made by ladies—Mrs. India Edwards and Mrs Eleanor Roosevelt.

However, Vice President Barkley struck his usual high stride as an orator of the old school. He carried the crowd with him. His Pocahontas hearers were tickled by his one joke, long a favorite in these mountains. Ami Griffin was riding home one night. The girth broke, and his horse ran out from under him. Next morning he found himself on the ground, sitting on his saddle. Here is what he said to himself: "Ami, if I am Ami, I am out a good horse; if I am not Ami, I am in a good saddle."

Last week there was a primary election in Virginia. They are now talking about only ten percent of the population coming out to vote. In the adjoining county of Highland, the number of votes cast just about equaled the number cast two months ago in the two precincts in the Town of Marlinton—570. Then there were 195 at Campbelltown, just a mile away. Pocahontas County as a whole cast 3542 votes in the United States Senator Contest. No matter if it is your candidate or mine, which is adversely affected by big or little turn-outs—the interest of our country as a whole is best served by a big vote in primary and public elections.

The Saturday Evening Post, issue for July 26, has a piece on the Protestant Episcopal Cathedral in Washington. The well written article is profusely illustrated in the highest style of the printers' art. To my particular interest and personal satisfaction is the very fine picture of Rev. George J. Cleaveland, D. D., late of Marlinton, Canon of the Cathedral. Attired in priestly vestments his appearance and demeanare wholly in keeping with the background of stained glass windows. The place of the picture is the Childrens Chapel of the cathedral. The occasion is a visitation of a flock of young visitors. Benign is the proper book word to describe the look on the face of the kindly minister, as he apparently breathes a blessing on the little people.

Durbin—Work is progressing on Spruce Lake, up in the Alleghanies, where the Counties of Pocahontas and Randolph join up. It is expected to have this 27 acre lake completed this fall, to be filled by the winters rain and snow, and then stocked with trout for next years fishing.

Spruce Lake is at Gatewood Switch, at an elevation of 3700 feet above sea level. It is three miles west of Spruce Knob, the highest point in West Virginia, 4860 feet high. It is on Narrow Ridge Run, on the headwaters of Gandy Creek. Its length will be 2,000 feet, and 1,000 feet wide. The depth of the dam will be 20 feet. The water will be from springs, and the run off of about 250 acres.

A 700 foot dam will be required. The estimate cost is $22,000. This money comes from the $1 hunting and $1 fishing license required on National Forests in West Virginia. Every dollar of this stamp money must be used to improve hunting and fishing on the million acres of National Forests in this State.

Already drainage ditches have been blasted through a bog and beaver dam area. A dence growth of evergreens is being removed from the lake site.

Spruce Lake is nearly 80 miles from Marlinton; 20 or so miles from Durbin. Our entrance will be on Route 28 at Cherry Grove. Other entrances are at Riverton. on Route 33, and at Mullenax Gap, on Route 250.

One of the greatest marksmen of the FBI was passing through a small town and everywhere he saw evidences of the most amazing shooting. On trees, on walls and on fences there were numberless bull's eyes with the bullet hole in the absolute center. He asked to meet the person responsible for this remarkable feat. The man turned out to be the village idiot.

"This is the most wonderful marksmanship I have ever seen," said the FBI man. "How in the world do you do it?"

"Easy as pie," replied the village idiot. "I shoot first and draw the circle afterward."

Theodore Q. Moore, local employee of the Monongahela Power Company, received word Wednesday evening, October 15, 1952 that his brother, P.F.C. Oren Richard Moore, USMC., was killed in Korea, on September 6, 1952. He was serving with the 1st Marine Division and had been with them for almost a year.

P.F.C. Moore is a son of Mrs. Icie Fertig and the late C. K. Moore, of Dunmore, West Virginia. Besides his mother he is survived by two brothers, Theodore, Q. Moore, of Monterey, William H. Mr. and Mrs. Moore left immediately for his home in Marlinton, where his relatives reside. No further particulars were learned.—Highland Recorder.

Marion Galford and two sons, of Back Alleghany, were before Squire Eades, in Durbin, on last Friday, on a charge of killing three deer out of season. They confessed, and their portions were fines amounting to $500 and cost. The arrest was made by Game Protector William Rexrode.

Being as this is election year, the fantastic tale has had wide circulation that Kent Galford, candidate for sheriff, and his boys were the guilty parties.

THURSDAY, DEC. 11, 1952

About twenty-five years ago I was approached by James R. Mellon, of Pittsburg, through a mutual friend, and asked to help him locate the rightful owner of a Bible which had come into his possession in a very unusual way. I shall speak about the way presently. A little later I had occasion to go to Pittsburg and he let me see the Bible which, by the way, had been in his possession some ten years. It is a large Bible published by the American Bible Society in 1859. Evidentally it was originally a pulpit or family Bible. It was weather beaten and somewhere along the way had seen hard usage.

The strangest thing about it was an inscription in a clear, bold hand on the front fly-leaf. It read thus: "Captured by the Plummer Guards of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, at Huntersville, Virginia, January 8, 1862." It was only three years old at the time of its "capture."

My first task was to locate Huntersville. I could not find it on the map of Virginia. Remembering that West Virginia was still a part of Virginia in January 1862, I soon located Huntersville in that state. My friend and

My first task was to locate Huntersville. I could not find it on the map of Virginia. Remembering that West Virginia was still a part of Virginia in January 1862, I soon located Huntersville in that state. My friend and classmate, the late Dr. Henry W. McLaughlin, who was a native of West Virginia, became interested in the matter. As he was acquainted with the people and churches around Huntersville, I turned the whole matter over to him, as I was very busy at the time getting ready to move from Richmond to Davidson. It is my recollection that he succeeded in locating the rightful owner of this Bible with a history, but of this I am not absolutely certain. More about its history after I have jotted down the few thoughts about the Bible which came to me at the time and since.

I have always wondered how a group of soldiers would proceed to "capture" a Bible. Did they go at it with fixed bayonets, or how? There has come to my mind something that the Apostle Paul said on this point. Writing to his friend Timothy from a prison in Rome he referred to

I have always wondered how a group of soldiers would proceed to "capture" a Bible. Did they go at it with fixed bayonets, or how? There has come to my mind something that the Apostle Paul said on this point. Writing to his friend Timothy from a prison in Rome he referred to himself as an ambassador in bonds and then added in a triumphant note; "But the Word is not bound." The powers of darkness might crucify Jesus, behead James stone Stephen to death, and put Paul in prison, but they could not bind the Word of God. Many have tried it but failed. Let me mention some of them.

Jehoiakim, King of Judah, was one of them. God gave Jeremiah a message for the king and directed him to write it upon a scro'l Jehoiakim slashed the scroll to pieces with his penknife and cast it into the fire. But he had scarcely left Jerusalem until other copies were brought out from their hiding places. A few centuries later the Roman emperors not only persecuted the Christians but burned their Bibles. Efforts have been made to bind the Word of God in various other ways. Often the Word of God was shut up in a strange language which the people could not understand, but it has always found a way of breaking down the prison doors. Charles Dickens in his "Child's History of England" gives a striking illustration of this. It reads as follows:

"When Queen Elizabeth came to the throne (in 1558) one of the courtiers presented a petition to the new queen praying that, as it was the custom to release some prisoners on such occasions, she would have the goodness to release the four evangelists, Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, and also the Apostle Saint Paul, who had been for some time shut up in a strange language so that the people could not get at them."

The prayer was soon answered. The prison doors were already opening, and within a few years they were wide open. John Richard Green tells us that by the middle of Elizabeth's reign the people of England were the people of one book and that book was the Bible in their own language. Putting the Bible into the lang-

ard Green tells us that by the middle of Elizabeth's reign the people of England were the people of one book and that book was the Bible in their own language. Putting the Bible into the language of the people is a process that is going on continually. No, the Word of God is not bound and cannot be bound. Nor can it be "captured."

But let us get back to Mr. Mellon's Bible. How did the "captured" Bible get into his hands? Mr. Mellon had some tenement houses for rent. One of the apartments was occupied by colored people. On one occasion when Mr. Mellon's agent was on an inspection tour, he discovered that the colored family had left between suns for parts unknown. They probably found it cheaper to move than to pay rent. The apartment was empty, with the exception of the historic Bible, which the agent promptly took to Mr. Mellon. For about ten years it had been in his possession before he asked me to help find its rightful owner. He wanted to have it rebound and put in good order and returned to its original home in West Virginia.

It would be interesting to know all that happened to that Bible which the agent promptly took to Mr. Mellon. For about ten years it had been in his possession before he asked me to help find its rightful owner. He wanted to have it rebound and put in good order and returned to its original home in West Virginia.

It would be interesting to know all that happened to that Bible during the fifty-five or sixty years that intervened between its capture and its coming into the hands of Mr. Mellon. It would probably be a thrilling story. It may have touched many lives and some hearts. Of one thing we may be sure and that is that wherever it went it was at home. It was at home in the church in West Virginia and with the Plummer Guards who "captured" it. It was equally at home in the Negro tenement and in Mr. Mellon's home of wealth and culture.

The foregoing is from last week's "Talks on Timely Topics"—outstanding feature of the Christian Observer—by Dr Walter L. Lingle. That Bible was captured when the Federals took Huntersville and the Presbyterian church. Ruling Elders of this church were the two grandfathers of Dr Henry W. McLaughlin—Hugh McLaughlin and James Atlee Pirce. Of course, Cousin Henry could put Mr Mellon on the right line. Incidentally, the Bible has never been sent back. Before it could be revamped and returned from the book bindery, Mr Mellon sickened and died. Inquiry was made. While the family knew something about the book, they did not know where it had been sent to be repaired.

When the Huntersville Bible was captured, the church building was used as a stable for cavalry horses.

Board of Trade

Proper steps are being taken by forward looking citizens for the organization of a Board of Trade or chamber of commerce or what other name you want. The idea is for the promotion through organized effort of a bigger and better Pocahontas County by attracting some more industrial payrol this way.

To this end, a meeting has been called for the Mayor's Office Marlinton for Friday night, December 5, at 7:30 o'clock. A general turn-out of citizens is desired.

Cooperation by citizens with the Monongahela Power Company and State Extension Agriculture workers, National and State Departments of Agriculture, various government agencies and commissions has done much and is doing more for the advancement of our basic industry, farming.

The development of a great coal field in our county on Gauley River will mean much to us as now that it will soon be reached by a modern highway.

Of course, I know a new and enthusiastic organization like the one aborning Friday night is engaged in picking for fly-by-night promoters. However, the Monongahela Power Company remains a most efficient and conservative and experienced industrial development department will safeguard us from gold-bricks.

Any way night and furthering

Naturally, I put the last initials as those of Nowlen Sheets, who was reared and still lives in Huntersville. The R. M. T. is beyond my guess.

Friend John C. McNeil was in the office the other day and recalled a family tradition. Over a century ago, his grandfather, big John McNeil went hunting on Williams River, to range out from the Rock Camp at what a few years later was to be known as the Dutch Bottom. He killed a big deer, skinned out the venison and stretched the hide out on his bed of leaves and went to sleep. Some time during the night, he was awakened by the deer skin being dragged out from under him. He reached for his gun and took a hurried shot at a big varmint. The next morning he found a trail of blood and soon came upon the body of a dead panther.

Veteran Engineer

Captain Fenton A. Chapman, veteran locomotive engineer, has retired after 56 years with the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad. He is returning to Pocahontas County to live in his nice home at Hillsboro. I join with so many other friends to welcome him back home, and to wish him many more happy, useful days. He will find his place on the farm in the community and in the church.

In a recent issue of the Clifton Forge Review in commenting on Mr Chapman's renewal of his Y. M. C. A. Membership for the sixty-fifth year, says of him—

Mr Chapman was born four miles from Durbin in the Larch-Hill Santry in the County of Dublin, on October 20, 1871. He attended Conway College in North Wales and Raleigh College in Athlone. He came to America, and settled in Pocahontas County, in the year 1888.

Mr Chapman went to work for the C&O as clerk at Low Moor in 1885; later transferring to Clifton Forge shops. In 1898, he went an the Mountain Division as a fireman. He has been an engineer between Clifton Forge and Charlottesville since 1906 He has has traveled more than three million miles at the throttle.

Mr Chapman has been honored many times for his long affiliation

Young Heroine

Droop—On the night of June 28, fire of unknown origin destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emery Shue on Droop Mountain. House and contents were burned and the family left with only night clothes. But for the heroic action of twelve year old Winona Shue, the disaster would have been incomparably worse. This young lady saved her life and that of her mother and daddy and baby sister when she awakened about 3 a.m., June 28, and discovered the house in flames. She awakened her dad, ran down stairs, grabbed her five year old sister out of a flaming bed, carried her outside to safety, and returned to the inside again to help her dad bring her mother out. (Mother being under a doctors care with continuous attacts of asthma.) The house and contents were a complete loss, but due to Winona's alertness, and steady nerves, the family escaped in their night clothes. The house fell in almost immediately thereafter.

Dilley Family

The large Dilley family relationship held their second annual reunion at Droop Mountain State Park on Sunday, August 3. The various branches were represented in the large gathering.

This old representative Pocahontas County family descends from two brothers, Martin and Henry. They come from Maryland. The tradition is there were two other brothers, who stayed in Maryland.

I will trace one man's line of this wide spread relationship in the hope and expectation others will write down and preserve their lines of descent.

The Dilleys are French people. Up in Monongalia County, I had a friend, whose family had retained the French spelling of their name, Dille, with an accent mark over the e.

Trace the Dilleys back, and they came to Pennsylvania in the great so called Pennsylvania Dutch Migration through the port of Philadelphia from about 1710 to 1750. Of course, there were those who came before and after. They came from the Pallatine Provinces in the Rhine Valley. The Pallatine for long had been a haven for oppressed people from port of Philadelphia from about 1710 to 1750. Of course, there were those who came before and after. They came from the Pallatine Provinces in the Rhine Valley. The Pallatine for long had been a haven for oppressed people from all parts of Europe. It was a melting pot, and it produced a sturdy strain.

The Dilleys were Huguenots, driven from France on account of their religion by persecution at the time of the Massacre on St. Bartholomews Day.

Martin Dilley married Hannah Moore, daughter of Pennsylvania John Moore; their son, Andrew Dilley, married Martha Sharp, daughter of William Sharp, of Verdant Valley, near Fairview; their son, Amos J., married Arminta Dilley, daughter of Ralph, the son of Henry, one of the pioneer brothers; their son Hevener married Isa Amanda Sharp, daughter of C. O. W. Sharp of Frost; their son Maynard B. married Sarah McCarty, daughter of Richard McCarty, of the Levels; their little son is James Richard, who plays by the walk I follow to work each day. He comes to attention for a snappy military salute when I pass.

Mrs. W. E. Puffenbarger, of Hillsboro, has received a letter from her soldier son Hubert. He is stationed at Fort Hood Texas. He says he is really glad he got what they gave him in the Army, as he likes his job a great deal. He hopes he can do as well as they expect of him, as he wants to keep on at what he is doing. The young soldier is anxious to receive letters from home people and friends. He would greatly appreciate letters.

Sgt. Leonard E. Dean, serving with the U. N. Forces in Korea with the Heavy Artillery writes to a friend back home in his home county. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Dean of Pyles Mt., who has another son, Ezra N. Dean of the Marines, stationed in North Carolina.

Between his duties of slugging it out with the "Reds," he has taken time off to look around the country over there, and reports the climate there is something like it is here. He says he has found lots of what he thinks is the old time chestnuts like we once had here. He wanted his good friend Cal Price to be told this, knowing how he is interested in such things. Leonard is as usual, interested in hunting, but hasn't had much time to hunt animals as he now has other and bigger things to hunt.

Any of his friends interested in writing him may do so at this address.

PFC. BASIL C. SHARP

Hillsboro community, and particularly Oak Grove Presbyterian Church, suffered a distinct loss when First Class Private Basil C. Sharp, recently lost his life on the battle-field of western Germany.

In addition to his good work as teacher and athletic coach for five years in the Hillsboro High School, Mr. Sharp wielded an especially good influence in his religious activities. For several years he was Superintendent of the Caesar Mountain Out-post Sunday School, and taught its Bible Class. During the same period he taught the Young People's Sunday School Class in Oak Grove Church, and was Adult Adviser in the Young People's work. He also did good work as a member of the Oak Grove choir, and as a member of the Hillsboro Men's Chorus. In many other ways he was a loyal supporter of the Church and its causes. In church and community-wide activities he was always ready and willing to go wherever he could be of service. This spirit has no doubt been characteristic of his whole military service.

The nation has lost a good soldier, and the whole community will miss a true friend and worker.

With the Fifth Army, Italy—Private Charles D. Cassell, ammunition bearer, son of Mrs. Grace E. Cassell, of Cass, and Private First Class LeRoy Burner, rifleman, son of Mrs. Nannie Burner, of Durbin, are members of the 339th Polar Bear Regiment, which recently shattered the vitals of the vaunted Gothic Line. This regiment is a part of the 85th "Custer Division." This regiment landed in Italy from North Africa on last March 15 and went into action the next day.

When the Fifth Army offensive opened last May 11, this regiment raced ahead, to shatter its objective the Gustav Line. On June 5, it passed through Rome and crossed the Tiber River, to take a brief rest.

The Polar Bears got their name in the first World War, when they fought in waist deep snow along the 400 mile front between Archangel and Leningrad in Russia.

FIELD NOTES

Olus Underwood; over on Beaver Creek, has made good time on the foxes. The last week or two he laid out seven head of greys. He uses just an ordinary farm run of dog, which has developed a taste for chasing foxes. Last Friday Mr. Underwood was out on the flats and ridges at the foot of the big Beaver Lick, not far from the home of William Crigger. He found the track of a big wild cat. Soon he came to the still warm body of a fawn, which the cat had killed and partly eaten. The dog gave the cat a chase for about fifteen minutes but lost it and came back.

The exact number of snows for the winter is twenty-three; the depth of each to vary with the elevation. Dead in Snow Drift

James W. Robinson, aged 44 years, of Charleston, was found dead in his car on the road between Hillsboro and Denmar, on Friday morning, January 14, 1955. The cause of death was monoxide poisoning and exposure, as found by Dr. R. R. Pittman, County Health Officer. He had been dead several hours when found.

On Thursday night, Robinson, accompanied by Alex Brown, of Ronceverte, had attempted to go to Denmar, but got stuck in a snow drift. The road force dug him out. He returned to Hillsboro, but again attempted to drive to Denmar, and got stalled in a huge drift. Two other cars also were stalled in the same drift. Brown stayed in one of the other cars, but Robinson decided to sleep the night out in his own car with the engine running.

"I PREDICT"

Friend J. M Pyne, now of Whittier, California, is a native son of the Greenbrier Valley — Monroe County. His active career was that of a soldier in the United States Army. Or, as we used to call it, Standing Army. His duties called him to many distant parts of the world—particularly the Pacific Ocean, and China, Japan, The Philippines. In mailing in his subscription for this years Times, he adds this interesting post script;

"I predict, that as the coils of the Chinese Dragon begin to tighten around Russia, the "Red" Russian people will be quite willing to co-exist with us. They will be anxious to have the help of the United States of America and the United Nations against a worse monster than Adolph Hitler. Can they not discern the signs of the times? We, the white race, are less than fifteen percent of the world's population. Unity of action alone can save us from the fury of the 'Reds."

Panthers

Panthers are now reported in Arkansas, Missouri and Illinois after an absence of a couple of generations. It is the same old story there, here and elsewhere. No sooner than deer are brought back in numbers, why the panthe comes creeping, creeping everywhere.

The late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt was the first writer, so far as I know, to report the return of the panther when deer come back.

It is the same old story, there here and everywhere. Those who report seeing and hearing panthers and observing sign are held in derision by the many who have their doubts.

How do I know about the panther situation in Missouri? Why Dr. John O. McNeel, of St Louis, most considerately keeps me up to date by mailing me the clippings from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Symbol Of Evil

The mistletoe, once a weapon of death, later became to be considered as a magical medicine, is now a universal symbol of love and peace.

It was with a mistletoe arrow (according to Norse mythology) that Loki killed Balder, the sun god, after Balder's mother had obtained a promise from all living things, other than the mistletoe, that they would not harm him. Balder was restored to life and it was ruled by the gods that the mistletoe would never again be used to do harm.

Ancient Europeans considered the mistletoe a magical medicine. They carried it about with them for health and luck, and believed it a cure for ulcers and epilepsy as well as a charm promoting fertility.

The present day custom of giving a kiss of love or peace beneath the mistletoe, although a relatively modern one, is derived from the fact that down through the centuries the mistletoe has been recognized throughout the whole world as a symbol of lasting peace.

The origin of many of our Christmas customs can be traced back to prehistoric times, with some pagon customs being modified to fit into the Christian observances. But, as official Christian holidays, Christmas and New Year's had a long struggle to become firmly established.

Promoted To Captain

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. McLaughlin, of Jerico Farms, Marlinton, were notified last week that their daughter, Lieutenant Dorothea McLaughlin, has been promoted to captain in the United States Air Force. At present, Captain McLaughlin is stationed at Washington, D. C.

Captain McLaughlin is a graduate of Marlinton High School and attended West Hampton College for Women, at Richmond, Virginia, and West Virginia University. Before entering the Air Force in November, 1948, she was employed as a social worker for the Department of Public Assistance.

For two years, Captain McLaughlin served as an aide to General George Gilkerson of the Far East Command. She had the distinction of being the only woman in the service on Guam at that time, and she was the subject of a number of feature stories in both military and civilian publications.

Three local men, including County Commissioner E. C. Alther, today reported seeing a mountain lion, (cougar) yesterday several miles west of Hedgesville.

Alther, owner of Alther Farm Equipment Service, and two of his employees, Donald Stotlemyer, of Route 4, and Dave McCarty, of Inwood, were in that section cutting Christmas trees when the animal was sighted.

The animal was described as being of a yellowish color and about the size of a large dog, It also had a tail about four feet long and cat-like features, they said.

The animal was first seen at a distance of about 200-300 yards, when it lay down. The men first thought it was a dog, but later McCarty, armed with a club, went to have a closer look and got within about 35 yards when the animal ran, taking leaps up to 20 feet. The other men, who likewise were approaching, got a good look.

E. C. Alther, Jr., and others have planned a hunt. Conservation Officer Woodrow Parson is also investigating the report.—Martinsburg Journal of December 23.

Signs

Naturally, I now go easy on the matter of weather signs. I will say the ground hog did see his shadow in the Greenbrier Valley, under the clear skies below Droop Mountain. From now on I will treat the subject of weather in a most general way.

First let me say this ground hog day business is not by any means an American institution. It came to America from England and to England from France. The probability is that the legend as now current is the survival of some pagan day which has sheltered itself and preserved its vitality under protection of a church saint.

In England, the weather day is known as St. Swithin's day, (July 15), and in France as St. Medard, (June 8). The tradition of the two is practically identical as to influence on the

In England, the weather day is known as St. Swithin's day, (July 15), and in France as St. Medard, (June 8). The tradition of the two is practically identical as to influence on the weather.

St. Swithin lived in England in the ninth century. He lived back in the days of good King Alfred. He was bishop of Winchester. There is record of his signature, "Swithunus presbyter regis Egberti." He died July 2, 862, and gave orders not to be buried within the church but outside in "a vile and unworthy place."

Over a century later, with reform of the then degenerate church at Winchester, Swithin's body was taken from its almost forgotten grave outside the old monastery, and transplanted to the restored church. Numerous miracles preceded and followed the moving. A reporter of those days makes record like his modern counterpart to the effect: "We have seen the precincts so thronged with crowds of ailing folks that a traveler could scarcely make his way in; and yet after days makes record like his modern counterpart to the effect: "We have seen the precincts so thronged with crowds of ailing folks that a traveler could scarcely make his way in; and yet after some days, so numerous were the cures that within the church itself there were scarcely five sick people to be seen."

Another eye witness reported that two hundred cures were claimed in the short space of ten days.

We moderns have nothing on those old reporters of a thousand years ago.

Well, anyway, rain fell on the day the body of Swithin was moved from its vile and unworthy place, and rain continued to fall for forty days thereafter. So, here is the myth in doggrel lines, well on toward a thousand years old—

St. Swithin's day if thou dost rain
For forty days it will remain;
St. Swithin's day if thou be fair
For forty days 'twill rain na mair.

School Lunches

The story of Billy Box was presented to the pupils of Marlinton Graded School on Monday, by Miss Anita Floyd, of Charleston. She is with Southern Dairy Council, and works with school lunch and health educational programs. She will visit other schools in our County.

"Billy Box" cleverly and clearly shows benefits of eating the seven basic foods and drinking four glasses of milk daily. The story delights children, and the poem helps them to remember the basic seven and to drink milk.

Our schools will take part in the Federal Milk Program. In this program, milk will be given to the children some time during the school day.

School Speaker

Maximilian "Max") Volkert, tannery operator of Linz, Austria, who is studying industrial productivity in the United States under the auspices of the American Foreign Aid Organization, delivered addresses at assembly periods at the three Pocahontas County high schools last week.

He appeared at Green Bank High School on Wednesday and at Marlinton and Hillsboro high schools on Thursday. Volkert was accompanied to the three schools and introduced by Mack H. Brooks, county superintendent of schools.

In his addresses, Volkert traced the history of Austria from 200 B. C. to the present, describing the Austrian educational system, and industrial and agricultural activities and closed with a resume of the role the Austrian capital of Vienna has played in the music world.

Volkert is at present a temporary employee of the International Shoe Company at Marlinton. He has appeared as a speaker at a number of meetings of Pocahontas County civic and social organizations. He is a graduate of the University of Vienna where he was awarded a B.S degree in chemical engineering.

During the first year of a child's life he grows more rapidly than at any other time.

FIELD NOTES

Here we are getting fixed in the use of the expression "Explosive Copperheads." The reference is the football squad of the Marlinton High School. However, it was a rattlesnake and not a copperhead that Electrician Johny Keen saw and killed on Wednesday afternoon at the High School Office building. It was nothing else but a chunk of a fine, bright yellow rattler which came skittering out on the concrete floor of the first floor rooms. Sure that was what he and other duly sober citizens did behold. The snake was a bit fretful and ready to strike. A little better than a cloth yard in length, with a string of nine rattlers, this was a female, about ready to hatch out eight eggs.

The comment is due that while most yellow rattlers are females, a few yellow ones are males, and a few black rattlers are females.

Rattlesnakes do not lay eggs. The eggs are incubated in body of the mother.

The book says that along in August and September rattlers bear from eight to ten young.

This town of Marlinton is in the line of travel of rattlesnakes. They go from mountain to mountain, in search of water and prey; in search of mates and change of scene. This time of year, they are looking for a place to den up for the winter.

Now, in comes a neighbor that on digging his potatoes, he found that moles had done great damage—eating up and eating on the tubers. He had proof—half eaten potatoes with teeth marks showing plainly. Grub worms had eaten some, too.

Of cours, I pulled the book on him. There in black and white it says that moles is an insect eating mammal; it must have its weight and more in meat each to keep from starving to death; that under no conditions will it eat vegetables or grain.

However, I did have to admit that moles were in a way accessories before the fact in the crime of raiding the potato hill. On pur suit of grub and worms, moles had made roads into potato hills. These made easy ways for field mice to get at and eat the potatoes.

Let it be said here that mice are prey of the mole as well as worms and insects. If two moles be confined without food, the weaker is invariably devoured by the stronger.

The reference book says the name mole is contracted form of mould-warp that is, mould caster.

The book continues— "Moles are killed on sight by most people because they disfigure lawns and are believed to eat potatoes and other vegetables. The truth is there are few more valuable animals from the standpoint of the agriculturist. They kill hundreds of thousands of cut worms. wire worms, grub worms and harmful insects every year, and they do not eat potatoes. In France a fine is imposed on any one caught killing a mole."

A scientist reports a mole digging a tunnel 68 feet long in 25 hours; another, 100 yards long in a single night. "To do a proportionate amount of digging, a man would have to make a tunnel 50 miles long and large enough for him to crawl through."

The Church of God, on Cummings Creek, was the scene of a quiet wedding, on Sunday evening, October 23, 1955, at 8:30 o'clock, when Mrs. Mary Ann Virginia Pyles, of Huntersville, became the bride of George Ryder, also of Huntersville.

The candlelight service was read in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives, by the Rev. Carl Williams, of Mt. Nebo, pastor of the church, before the altar arranged with greens and autumn foliage, with vases of chrysanthemums and lighted candles.

The candles were lit by Mrs. Dewey Burr, daughter of the bride.

For her wedding the bride wore a street dress of light blue faille, with matching accessories.

FIELD NOTES

Stanley Wooddell, the Marlinton policeman, reports the unusual. It was fight to the death between a fox and a coon. He was hunting over on Big Spring early on a recent morning. He heard a most unearthly racket, like dogs fighting dogs, or cats fighting cats, or cats, fighting dogs—ary one or all. Mr. Wooddell traced down the racket, and there was a coon and a fox going after each other in deadly combat. It was a pretty even match, with odds in favor of the fox. They paid no mind to the man. A well placed shot put both animals out of their misery. The fox was lean and poor and mangy—appearently suffering from rabies. This dread disease has been epidemic here among the varments for more than a year.

Woman Of The Year

Mrs. Harry A. Sharp of Marlinton, has received the honor of being chosen as the outstanding woman of the year (1955-56) by the Pocahontas Business and Professional Women's Club.

When Mr. Sharp died last March, Mrs. Sharp walked in and took over her husband's business the Harry A. Sharp Confectionery and Newstand in Marlinton — and is operating it quite successfully.

Mrs. Sharp was the former Miss Gladys Graham, of Charleston; the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Graham, of Alderson. She is a graduate of the Alderson High School and the Pennsylvania Business College of Lancaster, Pennsylvania. Before her marriage Mrs. Sharp was employed as a stenographer and bookkeeper for three business firms in Charleston.

After her marriage in July, 1928, Mrs. Sharp moved to Marlinton where her husband was engaged in business and began her career as a homemaker.

The Sharps are the parents of one daughter, Helen, who is now Mrs. William P. Fuller, of Tachikawa, Japan.

Later, when government regulations required more accurate bookkeeping, Mrs. Sharp took over the job of keeping the books for her husband's business.

Mr. Sharp was in failing health for two years prior to his death and while he was confined in hospitals or at his home, Mrs. Sharp had charge of the business, and thus she was able to take over after her husband's death and keep things running smoothly.

When asked how she liked being a business woman, Mrs. Sharp replied that she was happy with her job and enjoyed working with the public. She also added that the people of Pocahontas had been very kind and helpful in assisting her in taking over the business after her husband's death.

Mrs. Sharp likes music and reading but her hobbies are making needlepoint and embroidery and raising African violets. She is a member of the Marlinton Presbyterian Church and sings in the choir.

Officers of the local B. and P. W. Club announced that Mrs. Sharp was chosen as the "woman of the year" because of her personality, character, courage and business ability.

From Germany

The following letter is from Eddie McMillion, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville McMillion, of Hillsboro. He has been in the service for three years and is now about ready to come back home.

Germany
August 18, 1955.

Hello to All:

Well I will write you a few lines to let you know that I am O. K. and hope you are the same. I just got back off leave. I was at Nurenberg and I had a pretty good time. The Jehovah Witnesses had a gathering up there for five days. I went to it every day and I met people from all over the world. I even met a couple of people from good old West Virginia and I saw some people from Africa. They were dressed like those Africans you see in the movies. I met a woman from Ohio and she wanted your address and she said she would write and tell you that she saw me over here.

I talked to so many people from the States that I even forgot I was in the service a few times. I sure hated to come back to camp.

I took a lot of pictures up there and I saw the place where Hitler stayed, there is where they had the gathering. The last day there a hundred thousand and seventy-three hundred people there and they baptized 1,400. When I

But who belled the turkey buzzard? That is still a mystery.

Well, in the month of May this year, several people on Droop Mountain saw a belled buzzard and distinctly heard the tinkle of the bell at every move of the bird.

Some weeks later, road workers on Elk Mountain—a dozen or so miles from Droop - saw and heard a buzzard with a bell on its neck.

These points are better sixty miles—as the buzzard flies—from Feedstone Mountain over in old Rockingham.

Now, Will Ruckman, late Sheriff of Pocahontas County, comes out with the confession that some years back he caught a turkey buzzard in a steel trap on Gillilan Mountain. He buckled a turkey bell on the buzzard.

The doubtful connection between the buzzard belled by Mr Ruckman and those seen this year, is that the life expectancy of a turkey buzzard may not be quite so many years as have gone since Mr Ruckman belled his bird.

Progress is being made. A stock subscription of $100,000.00 is guaranteed.

An industrial workers survey is well under way. The guess is the number of signed cards will exceed 1500. These cards are checked at the State unemployment office at Ronceverte, and then on to Charleston for to be "processed."

Our Committee is to be most highly commended for the effective manner in which this campaign for new industry is being carried on.

Sharps Move To Lewisburg

Mr. and Mrs. J. Wilbur Sharp, who have made their home in Marlinton for many years have moved to Lewisburg, where they recently built a new home on Preston Boulevard.

Mr. Sharp was born in Marlinton, the son of the late J. Albert Sharp and the late Ida Anderson Sharp. He was educated in the Pocahontas County schools and in 1926 he established a newsstand and confectionery business which he operated until 1946. He then sold this business and bought a general store which he and his son now operate under the name of Wilbur Sharp and Son.

On November 5, 1914, Sharp married a Miss Cooper, of Lovettsville, Loudon County, Virginia. She came to Marlinton in the spring of 1914, as a milliner for Klein's Department Store.

They are the parents of two children, James Robert Sharp, of Marlinton, and Mrs. Thomas Alex Arbuckle, of Lewisburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Sharp are members of the Marlinton Presbyterian Church and she is a member of Circle No. 2 of the Women of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Sharp is a member of the Marlinton Masonic Lodge.

The Sharps said: "It is hard to pick up and leave a town where you have lived so long and where people have been so kind, but we will take our friends with us in our hearts."

While we regret losing these good people from our community we wish them a most happy and contented life in their new home.

Put it down as a missile from the Union side. The Federal artillery was on "Yankee Flats" —about half way down the mountain, to the east of Route 219. This shell grounded at the brow of the mountain. It is said many of the shells from the Union batteries went high over the battlefield.

"Dud" shells were to be picked up in numbers years ago. The dangerous things were sometimes exploded in burning log heaps.

Raymond Shrader Has Serious Hunting Accident

The toll of killed and injured continues to mount for the current hunting season. The latest victim reported is Raymond Shrader, 44, proprietor of Shrader's Variety Store in Marlinton.

Reports from the Pocahontas Memorial Hospital, where the victim was brought by the Marlinton Fire Co. Emergency Car, indicate that the victim suffered a shotgun wound in the left arm at close range. Although Shrader was able to tell his rescuers that the shooting was accidental, he was unable to give them the details. Because the stock of the gun was broken it was surmised that he had fallen, hitting the gun on a rock, causing the safety to release and the gun to fire. He was alone at the time of the accident.

was alone at the time of the accident.

Raymond and his brother, Glenn Shrader, had gone to the Shrader farm on Red Lick mountain to check on their sheep and decided to do a little hunting at the same time. About 9:00 a. m. Glenn heard a gunshot and soon after his brother's call for help. Going to his aid, Glenn succeeded in staunching the flow of blood and then left his brother to go for help. This action is said to have saved the injured man's life.

Getting to a telephone about 10:00 a. m., Glenn called the Firemen's Emergency Car which responded promptly. Manned by firemen Dale Curry, Kenneth Faulknier and Ed Stemple and Town Policeman Stanley Wooddell the rescue squad drove to Onoto where they turned up a dirt road to Red Lick Mountain. Although Glenn had left his injured brother about a mile from the mountain road he had walked about half the distance when the tune, will continue to serve Raymond in good stead.

The fellows that man the Fire Company's Emergency Car can not be praised too highly. This group and this car have been called many times recently and they have always given a good account of themselves. Supported entirely by public donation and through the firemen's various fund-raising efforts, the car is fairly well equipped but additional equipment is needed to make it still more useful. The men, of course, are volunteers and the only pay they receive is the gratitude of the folks they help and the inner satisfaction that comes from a job well done.

Last Friday the Car was called to an auto-truck wreck on Price Hill from where they brought Mrs. Lena Peeso of Huntersville to the local hospital. 20 stitches were required to close a throat wound. She was a passenger in a pickup truck driven by Clarence Gaylor when it ran head-on into a car driven by Mrs. Eula Mae Ritz of Charleston. On this run the Emergency Car was manned by Fire Chief Harry Hockenberry and Dale Curry and they were assisted by Clarence Mulheren and Charles "Googie" Richardson.

Another hunting accident occurred last Saturday when Mr. Keneth M. Hayes, 26, of Nitro was mistaken for a turkey and shot in the right eye, face and neck by Emory W. Gunter, 36, of Asbury. Gunter brought his victim to the hospital and then gave himself up to police. He was tried in Squire McNeill's court and fined $20.00 and costs and had his hunting privileges taken away for a period of five years. The charge was negligent shooting. This accident happened on Middle Mountain, near Rimel.

"Rat Shot" is lightly loaded shot gun ammunition of extremely small shot. It is sold and used by farmers to kill rats in their granaries. The idea is to shoot rats at close range, and cause little damage to building and grain. Well, a good Marlinton hunter got a box of shot gun shells at a self service store. He went hunting next morning in Buckley Mountain. He shot at squirrels in ordinary range, and appeared not to cut a hair. A grouse got up, and gave no evidence of being hit. Finally a wild turkey passed by him in fair open shooting distance. At first shot the turkey merely shook his head, and then ran off at the second shot. Then our hunter discovered the awful mistake he had made in picking up the wrong ammunition box.

FIELD NOTES

Luster Shrader, on Browns Mountain, had one profitable hunt one morning re ently. He and his dogs put up and killed no less than three gray foxes.

There is a big sheep killing bear running at large on Browns and Bushy and Beaver Lick Mountains. E. H. Williams, so far, is the heavy loser with about a dozen ewes and lambs coming up missing. This is an old experienced thief; he scatters his killing over a wide range, with the Williams grazing land about the middle of his range.

On last Wednesday a big old dog fox, of the grey variety, came sneaking into the home of Mr and Mrs Frederick Wooddell, on Indian Draft. A chicken came by the door and out popped the fox after it. Mr Wooddell came on the scene and broke a broom in three pieces, hitting that fox. It ran back in the house, where it was killed with a poker. This varment had no fear of people, but made no attempt to bite. It was unusually large, but in thin flesh.

was killed with a poker. This varment had no fear of people, but made no attempt to bite. It was unusually large, but in thin flesh.

Seems like wild cats now travel in broad day instead of roaming the woods of nights. The other day Lloyd Woods was peacefully hunting ginseng on Red Lick Mountain. A big old catamount jumped on a nearby log, looked the man in the eyes, and growled savagely. The family hunting dog made for the varment, and they went away from that place. By reason of size, grey color and long tufts on ear tips, the best guess is canada lynx.

A week or so since, Mr and Mrs J. A. Sydenstricker and Mrs Alice Jackson were driving up the east face of Back Creek Mountain, not far from the Jackson River crossing. There, in the road, was a big mother wildcat and her two well grown kittens. The kits went out of the road on one side and the mother on the other; all climbed trees. The long legs and short tails, light brown color and cat-like appearance indicate these varments to be a bay lynx family.

Deserved Honors

I see in the Baltimore Sun that Dr. Robert K. Burns, honorary professor of Zoology at Johns Hopkins University, is one of three Hopkins men elected to membership in the National Acadmy of Science. This Acadmy has a membership of some 500 scientists. It was established in 1863 by President Abraham Lincoln.

Dr. Burns is a native of Pocahontas County, a son of the late William Burns, of Hillsboro. The Sun said of him:—

"Dr. Burns has been honorary professor of zoology at Johns Hopkins since 1945. He is a staff member of the Carnegie Institution of Washington's department of embryology, which is located at Johns Hopkins School of Medicine.

"Dr. Burns has made a notable contributions to the fields of em bryology. His studies have con-tion of Washington's department of embryology, which is located at Johns Hopkins School of Medicine.

"Dr. Burns has made a notable contributions to the fields of em bryology. His studies have centered on sex differentiation in the newly developing individuals."

Dr. Burns sailed this week to Paris, France. He has been made visiting professor for a term at the Sorbonne, in the University of Paris. He will do research work and give some lectures.

We all congratulate Dr. Burns upon these high honors so well merited.

That fine social fu tion f the year—the banquet sponsored by the Rotary and Lions Clubs of Marlinton for the football squad of Marlinton High School, held last Friday night—was up to the usual high standard. The Eastern Star served and Attorney A. E. Coop e presided.

The speaker was Ed Shockey. backfield Coach for West Virginia University. He pleased us all by presenting Don Van-Reenan a University football shirt; telling him to grow enough next year to fill it, and report to the University training camp. Don is All-State class B back this year. He is a member of the junior class.

Cameron Boyd Rider

Cameron Boyd Rider, aged 17 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Rider, was instantly killed by an electric shock on Sunday afternoon, June 19, 1955. The accident occurred on the farm of Roy Shearer, on Elk Mountain. He and Richard Lee Warren, aged 8 years, were looking for ground hog holes, when Cameron decided to climb a pole of the Monongahela Power Company, and slide down a guy wire. He touched a live wire of the high power and fell to the ground. The Warren boy ran to the Shearer home for help. M. E. Defibaugh and others went to the aid of the Rider youth, but found that he was dead.

Cameron is survived by his parents and a number of sisters and brothers.

On Tuesday afternoon the funeral service was held from the Church of the Nazarene in Marlinton, by his pastor, Rev. A. U. Burnsides. His body was laid in Mountain View Cemetery.

Killed a Bear

Last Tuesday night, a big bear came off the B ue Knob, in the Black Forest, down Hills Creek way, for to kill a she>p for John Wimer on Vina Mountain. It was a little late in the day before the act of vandalism was discovered. So, word to Oscar and Austin Sharp, the bear killers, did not get to them until after midnight on Wednesday. However, Oscar and a half dozen dogs were on the scene bright and early Thursday morning. In addition, Argile Arbogast had a couple of good hounds.

The bear had not come back to his kill, and the prospect of picking up his trail in the rain soaked forest floor was slim indeed. However there was bear sign a plenty on Blue Knob, and the dogs winded bear and begged to be turned loose. They took a back track, but Old Steamboat soon got things straightened out, and the bear was jumped. He circled the Knob; crossed the Ri hwoo ro | a the picnic area at the foot of Kennison Mountain heading for Dogway. A few back track, but Old Steamboat soon got things straightened out, and the bear was jumped. He circled the Knob; crossed the Rim hwoo ro [illegible] a the picnic area at the foot of Kennison Mountain heading for Dogway. A few hundred yards up the mountain Old Steamboat had that bear climbing a tree. Will Ruckman was the first hunter to get to the scene, and with one properly placed bullet killed the bear.

This was a male bear, eight years old or more. He was lean, but estimated to weight around 300 pounds.

Old Steamboat is a veteran bear fighter. In his time of nine years he has been in at the death of better than one hundred head of bears. This is his third bear in the last two weeks.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of "Granny," Mrs. Sadie I. Beverage, whom God called to her reward on December 9, 1967.

Sad memories crowd this time of year,
Since we lost one we loved so dear,
But in our hearts you'll always stay,
Loved and remembered every day.

To see your face, to watch your smile,
To sit with you and talk awhile,
To be together, the same old way,
Would be our greatest wish today.

We are thinking of you today,
Thinking of the past,
Picturing you in memory,
Just like we remember you last.

Your memory is a keepsake,
From which we will never part,
Though God has you in His keeping
We will always have you in our hearts.

Loved in life and sadly missed by

Fifty Years Ago

Written by Ethel Burner Terry for Mr. and Mrs Uxter Lambert on their Golden Wedding Anniversary.

Oh, how well do I remember
Fifty years ago, in December
Neighbors we've known all our life,
'Twas then they became husband and wife.

The wedding took place
At Bill and Carrey's,
When Uxter said to Lizzie
I want you to marry.

Lizzie came to our house
One warm summer day
All dressed in her best
And looking so gay.

The flypaper was placed
To catch all the flies
Instead it caught Lizzie
And took her by surprise

God blessed the happy union
And filled them with joys,
By adding to their home
Eleven darling girls and boys

These two have labored
And toiled many a day
Caring for their family
In their own usual way.

The children have all grown
And, Oh, are they glad Uxter and Lizzie are Grandma and Granddad

God has been good
To give you this day
And I pray He will bless you
And keep you always.

Three employees of the Federal Prison Camp at Mill Point, were recognized for their outstanding work during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1955 when presented monetary Incentive Awards Wednesday, September 7, under a recently established plan for all officers and employees of the Department of Justice. Checks were presented by Superintendent W. F. Anderson to Senior Clerk Reginald Payne, Lieutenant Clarence Lewis and Senior Officer Elmer Nelson.

Mr. Payne's award was for $100.00 in recognition of his contribution to the high level of performance from his office staff, to the morale of this group and Camp personnel in general through his cogenial manner, unquestioned loyalty and devotion to duty, for most generous giving of time to the Service outside his regular work schedule during this year period, conservatively estimated at 250 hours.

Lieutenant Lewis' award for $85.00 was in recognition of his ready response without any form of compensation at any time ex-period, conservatively estimated at 250 hours.

Lieutenant Lewis' award for $85.00 was in recognition of his ready response without any form of compensation at any time extra help was needed about the Camp, his contribution to the training and orientation of new personnel and for his own time given to official travel to other federal institutions in this area in the interchange of supplies and transfer of prisoners, the latter representing a saving to the Government of over $600.00

Mr. Nelson, as Camp Fire Safety and Sanitation officer was awarded $50.00 in recognition of his outstanding work in the discharge of these responsibilities. With but one day per week allocated to these specific duties and the remainder of his work week given to regular officer duties, much af his personnel contacts and interviews as fire, safety and sanitation officer, and the reports associated with this work were accomplished on his own time. Nelson has been the recipient of two other official commendations during the same period.

The three employees involved have completed 18, 25 and 11 years respectively in the Federalf civil service with the Bureau o Prisons.

Good News

Under date of October 1, a letter comes from Governor Arch Moore, Jr., with the assurance that "Denmar State Hospital will continue to be available to the public as it has for a long number of years."

The letter was in answer to one written several months back when the Task Force recommendations were first announced so we assume the Governor has reached the decision to keep Denmar as it is and we thank him!

Ashiya Air Force Base, Japan—Blond, dainty Allene Bussard, more than eight months pregnant, stepped off a Pan American trans Pacific plane at Haneda airport, Tokyo, into the arms of her paratroopper husband to be the first wife reunited with members of the 508th airborne regimental combat team flown from the United States to Japan on Operation Gyroscope. Sergeant First Class James A. Bussard, a veteran of 12 years of military service, had urged Allene to remain at home until the baby was born. She insisted on following her husband to Japan and with their 13 month old daughter, Sheryl, completed the 9000 mile trip only a day after Sergeant Bussard's arrival.

The United States army and the United States air force made some special concessions to reunite the family. Sergeant Bussard arrived at Ashiya air force base, some 400 miles southwest of Tokyo, Saturday, in the second of the 43 Globemaster planes that

Letters

This letter, with a "small world" story and word of her husband's promotion, comes from Mrs. Anthony Vydra, of Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, the former Betty Jo Kramer, of Marlinton.

Because this move seems to have me more disorganized than usual, I forgot to send you word of Tony's promotion, August 20, to Lieutenant Colonel. The girls and I were invited to attend the ceremony with his section of the 1970 C &GSC class in attendance. We made quite a cheering section.

Sherry has since returned to school at the University of Maryland, and we are beginning, at last, to be a bit more settled. In addition to her senior classes at Leavenworth High, Candi is enrolled in French class at St. Mary's College here in Leavenworth. Jeanie attends Junior High here on post.

I love "small world" stories, so I must include this one. While attending a coffee yesterday for the wives of Tony's section, I noticed the name "Mullenax" on a name tag. When I introduced myself to the wearer, I discovered Mrs. Donald (JoAnn Brooks) Mullenax, of Green Bank. To enlarge the story, I told her of meeting Brooks Mullenax and his family on our Ethiopian tour. With that we quickly concluded that we had mutual friends, another (unrelated to Pocahontas County) couple whom we knew in Ethiopia—a very fine officer

The following is a letter we think is of interest and we thank his uncle and aunt, Dr and Mrs. Michael Davis, for sharing it.

Dear Jean, Mike and children,

I want to thank you very much for the subscription to the Pocahontas Times and especially for the greetings in the July 17 issue. I am not sure I can put into words the effect they have as a morale builder, but I'll try. As you may know, over here no one refers to the "U. S." or the "States;" any place out of Viet Nam is referred to as "the world." It is totally appropriate because this is like a completely different world over here. Since I have spent the greater part of my life back in the world that is where my interests lie. It is good to know that people back in the world are interested in me over here. It is also great to read a newspaper that concerns itself with births, deaths, parties and generally people. The names may be different Allene over to her husband with sighs of relief. They had been much concerned over her on the long flight which followed the Operation Gyroscope route from the west coast to Honolulu and Wake Island to Tokyo.

The air force then took a hand in the reunion. Brig. General William Waldron, commander of the 315th air division, the famed Combat Cargo airlift of Korean War days, was about to leave Tokyo for Ashiya to observe progress of the Operation Gyroscope airlift. He took the Bussards aboard for the 400 miles flight to Ashiya.

On arrival at Ashiya Mrs. Bussard was taken to the flight nurses quarters of the 483rd troop carrier wing while her husband made arrangements for the last lap of the journey to Camp Chickamauga, at Buppu, picturesque spa on the northeast corner of the island of Kyushu. They were

It is good to know that people back in the world are interested in me over here. It is also great to read a newspaper that concerns itself with births, deaths, parties and generally people. The names may be different but that is the life I remember. It is a far cry from the murders, riots, demonstrations, etc. that dominate the national press.

We have been pretty busy over here, having moved four times in the last month. Of course every time we move we have to rebuild. This means filling an infinite number of sandbags, stringing mile upon mile of wire, etc. Our present location is the top of Back Mo Mountain which at one time was a French vacation resort. It is the highest peak in the area and on a clear day we can see North Vietnam, Laos, the South China Sea, Hue, and the A Shou Valley. Of course there are disadvantages; the weather is hot during the day, cold at night (mainly due to the wind which averages 60 knots per hour); the helicopters kick up dust all day, and I sleep about 15 yards from a 155 MM howitzer which fires in the middle of the night. All in all I would have to say I earn every penny of the $65 extra I get for being in a combat zone.

Just a line from a service guy. I live at Hillsboro, West Virginia, (r at l a t I did; my folks have now moved to Maryland. I am Lawrence Kennison's boy; you probably know my Dad. I have been taking your paper since I have been stationed here. It sure helps to know the news back home.

The temperature here in Nevada now ranges from 130 to 140 so you can see it is much hotter here than it is back home.

If you would, I would like to have my buddy's and my address in the Times, so we could maybe get more mail, for it gets mighty blue and lonesome here in the desert. We are 8 miles from Las Vegas. We are planning on a leave at or around Christmas, and would like to know some new friends. We are engine mechanics; I'm a jet man; my buddy is a receip; man.

Reserved Advancement

We all here in Pocahontas County are delighted at the news that our good Governor Marland had advanced Attorney Arden J. Curry, Assistant State Attorney General, to the all important position of Executive Assistant to the Governor.

Arden is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Curry, of Marlinton. He has proved his ability and worth by several years as assistant in the office of Attorney General Fox. He succeeds Burl A. Sawyers, who was recently appointed State Road Commissioner.

The advancement of Mr. Curry means a step up for Attorney Charles McElwee, of Dunmore, who has been appointed an assistant in the Attorney General's Office.

The new Tax Commissioner is Attorney William R. Laird, of Fayetteville. He succeeds Milton J. Ferguson, of Wayne County, who retires to resume his large law practice.

The new Tax Commisioner is a nephew of Dr. William R. Laird, head of the Laird Memorial Hospital, at Montgomery. We all here in Pocahontas are proud to claim kin to the Lairds through the McNeel clan.

Dam Dedicated

Buffalo Fork Dam, near Bartow and Thornwood, was dedicated Wednesday and the valves were closed Thursday to allow the 21 acre impoundment to fill. Taking part in the dedication were Randolph Bledsoe, of Bartow, Pete Zurbach, of the Department of Natural Resources, George Jones, Regional Forester, and Tony Dorrell, Monongahela National Forest Supervisor.

Trout fishing will be available in a few months. Picnic areas, boat launch, and other recreational facilities are yet to be built.

This dam; costing $242,000: was built with money from the Economic Development Administration and fees collected by the Department of Natural Resources for hunting and fishing on the National Forest.

It will be a source of water for the East Fork of the Greenbrier in times of drought, there by assuring the Tannery of necessary water, and will be a recreation facility.

Good Dog Gone

(Leo Hirtl, special writer for the Cincinnati Post, had the following piece in his column of Friday, April 15, 1955, about Skip, the good old dog of Bedford Dilley, of Cincinnati, Ohio. Bedford Dilley is a son of the late Hevener Dilley, of Browns Creek.

"How do you write an obituary for a dog? About everything fine about a dog already has been said by the late Senator Vest. There should be something said about Skip, though. Skip was 14 years old and one of the few dogs to have an honorable discharge from the armed services. He was discharged from the Coast Guard's K-9 Corps on V-J day in 1945. Having done his bit, he retired to the bosom of the Dilley family to live out his comfortable old age. But age took its toll and the other day old soldier Skip, serial number 42-E, took his eternal leave.

Having been at one time or another lord and master of three willing dogs, I expect Skip's passing was considerable of a blow. There is no explaining the attachment which is formed between humans and their dogs.

Other pets are liked as well and probably have as many virtues, but somehow a dog seems to manage a closer tie. Perhaps it is because they sometimes can go to war with their masters, as did Skip."

While the dishes are washed in your electric dishwasher — you have time to design a dress.

Christmas Mail

"Don't take a chance on disappointing someone you love; send your gift parcels and cards early enough to insure their delivery before Christmas, not after," Postmaster Edward Wagner advised today.

"On the day after Christmas a post office building can be the most depressing place in the world," Mr. Wagner added, "if it still contains a mountain of messages of love and cheer that didn't make it because they were mailed too late."

Such disappointments can be avoided if Christmas mailers will observe the following mailing schedule.

Mail early in the day.

Gift parcels going to distant states should be mailed by December 1. Parcels going to local and nearby areas should be mailed not later than December 13.

The name and address of both the sender and addressee should be enclosed in each gift parcel to permit identity in case of damage or loss of the outside label. The outside label should be placed on only one side of each parcel.

Greeting cards going to distant states should be mailed no later than December 10 cards going to local and nearby areas should be in the mail by December 15.

Postmaster Wagner also emphasized the importance of Postmaster Wagner also emphasized the importance of using Zip codes and adding a return address to all Christmas mail. It only takes a couple extra seconds, but pays big dividends. Zip Codes enable postal employees to sort and handle the mail faster. A return address insures that mail that can't be delivered because of an illegible or incomple e mailing address will be returned to the sender.

"A return address might not seem very important, Mr. Wagner noted, but last year over 2 billion pieces of mail went to dead letter branches because the mailing address couldn't be read and there was no return address on the envelope. If you estimate the worth of each of these pieces at twenty-five cents, including postage, total customers lost over $7.5 million last year to dead letter loss. And some of this would have happened if the envelopes had contained a return address.

EARTHQUAKE

Many people experienced their first earthquake last Wednesday night a few seconds after 8:00 p. m. Windows rattled, lights shook, items moved. The center of the quake was located in Giles County, Virginia, near the State border line and was recorded at 4 on the Richter scale. The first we knew of the earth tremor was when Mrs. Ernest White called from Minnehaha telling us of the lights, etc, shaking and it was all confirmed quickly on TV. Some people noticed it, others never felt a thing.

Killed a Bear

Durbin—For many months an attraction of the Kisner Motel on Cheat Mountain was a captive bear. It grew big and lusty and became somewhat of a problem child. There is a conservation regulation about keeping wild animals in captivity by private citizens and business concerns. There is no room for more bears in the zoo at the State game Farm over on French Creek. So, early this spring, back to the woods old bear was sent with the blessings of all parties concerned except the farmers with sheep to range the good grass lands on the Back Alleghanies, fringing the black forests of Shavers Cheat.

Yes, you have guessed it. As soon as the flock of ewes with lambs were turned to range this spring, both ewes and lambs came up missing. The sign was that of a big bear, and not of dogs.

By the time a proper hunt could be organized the number of sheep killed by this bear reached 20 head or better. The bear was killed near Durbin. The hunter getting in the lucky shot was young Douglas Hill. His trophy proved to be a male bear, weighing 200 pounds or better. There was still a collar mark on his neck.

Friday night's banquet was the finale for the Farming for Better Living Program, although the farmer members voted to have a last picnic this summer. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kelley, of Frost, were named its 1969 winners, and Mr. and Mrs Warren Sheets, of Green Bank, were the part time farming winners. Mrs. J. Z. Johnson prepared humorous rhymes to accompany the presentation of commemorative plates to the winning farm families of the past 24 years. This has been a good program to promote better farming practices and better farm records and we express appreciation to Monongahela Power Company and the Extension Service, plus the local businesses and the farm members, for their contributions.

We shall look ahead to a program that will include all of us in this rural County in community projects to improve our total living.

Farmers will receive the 1969 Agriculture Census by mail on or about January 1, 1970, from the Bureau of Census in Washington, D. C. The law requires that an agricultural census be taken and it also requires that farmers respond by filling out and mailing the questionnaire back to the Census Bureau before February 15, 1970.

Farmer cooperation in this census is very important because decisions that will lead to improved farm programs must be based on reliable facts and those facts can only be obtained through a nationwide census of all farms and ranches.

Mr. Montgomery came to Pocahontas County in March, 1945, as Work Unit Leader, after serving 2 years in the U. S Army Air Force as an instructor for fighter pilots. Prior to that he was the agronomist for the U.S.D.A. in Monroe County and contact man for a C C C camp doing soil conservation work, one of three in West Virginia and among the first in the nation doing this work.

Mr. Montgomery, Walter Jett, Calvin Price, and Dr. Dick McClung organized the Pocahontas Farming for Better Living and got the program going in 1946. This program enced with a big banquet this past week.

Born in Tyler County May 18, 1905, he attended one-room schools, completing the eighth grade at Short Run School. Following a semester at Salem Academy, he went to Pennsboro High School, participating in all sports and breaking the state 440 record in track. In 1924 he entered West Virginia University where he was a member of Theta Chi Fraternity and captain of the 1928 University track team and established a new quarter mile record that stood for about ten years. He served as an assistant recreation director for Morgantown in the summer.

After receiving his Bachelor of Science degree in Agronomy in 1928 he went an additional semester, qualifying as a Vo Ag instructor, also as a chemistry and physical educatiot teacher. He taught at Williamsburg High School four years and then at Credo District High School two years.

He plans to remain on his small farm near Buckeye, buying and selling a few steers, hunting and fishing, until his wife, Ina, retires in two years. Then they hope to do some world traveling.

Civil Defense

A public meeting was recently held at the Court House for the purpose of perfecting a Civil Defense organization in Pocahontas County. The matter was presented by C. E. Wright of Charleston, who is Field Deputy Director. The County Director is C. L. Kinney, of Cass, Recomendations for heads of different branches were made to him; after consideration of the requirements of the administration of the all important work. Mr. Kinney will announce appointments later.

This is important project for our people. It is not only for protection and survival in case of enemy invasionof our country, but will be of good use in cases of disaster, such as floods, fires and high winds.

Our people are urged to give time and support in organizing their Communities for their defense.

SNAKE BIT

Doke Rudd, aged 45 years, of Buckeye, got himself bit by a rattlesnake one day last week. He was on the River Ridge almost a mile from home. He felt something strike his leg and a stinging pain. Then he saw the rattlesnake, and proceeded to kill it. He then applied first aid, which was to tie tightly the fast swelling leg. The slow journey back home can be discribed as painful. Several days in the hospital was his portion, but he made a good recovery.

Belled Buzzard

W. O. Ruckman, of Mill Point, Auctioneer, and late Sheriff, of Pocahontas County, was a reader whose interest was stirred by the story of the belled buzzard in last week's paper.

Forty-one years ago this summer as a young man on the farm, he interested himself in trying to trap one of the many buzzards feeding on the carcass of a colt. One day, he and his brother, Denny and a neighbor, Guy Slaven saw about buzzards get into the air all at once. They knew one of the big birds had gotten himself into trouble. Sure enough, they found a good big one, hissing his displeasure at being caught in a trap. One toe was severed.

They took the buzzard home buckled a heavy collar on his

As the buzzard flapped his wings, he rang the bell. Gaining a great height in wide circles, the sailing bird disappeared over Gillian Mountain in the direction of the Black Forest. The faint tinkling of the bell was heard as the bird flapped out of sight.

Two years afterwards, the late Joe Brindle saw and plainly heard the belled buzzard at Mill Point.

Three weeks ago, Hull and Burley Pritt saw and plainly heard the belled buzzard on Droop Mountain.

As turkey buzzards, eagles and ravens have been known to live as long as a century of years, it is not beyond probability, this is the same buzzard belled by Mr. Ruckman forty-one years ago.

Bears

In our West Virginia there is a law forbidding hunting on a Sunday. Then there breaks loose a sheep killing bear, to raid a flock on a Saturday night. The sign in the morning is fresh and hot: word is sent to bear dog owners and neighbors generally. The dogs are laid on the track and the bear is killed or run out of the country.

This has so happened twice in the past few weeks in Pocahontas County. Nothing is thought of it, other than as a work of necessity and mercy to rid the country side of an expensive nuisance.

Once in a long time exception is taken; complaint is made, summons issued and there is a jury trial in the court of some justice of the peace.

Such a trial was held before Squire A. W. McNeill in the Court House last Saturday. There was standing room only. The proper outcome was a verdict by the jury of not guilty.

All-Greenbrier Valley

Ivan Withers, Marlinton Senior, and Larry Jefferson, Hillsboro Senior, were selected for the All-Greenbrier Valley basketball team announced last week by the West Virginia Daily News. Withers, who was named captain of the team, was considered probably the best player in the Greenbrier Valley, averaging 25 points a game and scoring over 1400 points during his four years at MHS before injuries prematurely closed the basketball season for him. He was selected on the All-State Class A team and also All-Tournament team last year. Jefferson, a good defensive player, had an average of 24.5. Other members of the team are Neil Chimault, Peterstown, Joe Wilmer, Greenbrier East, Joe Blankenship, Hinton, Fred Walker, Union, Leo Lewis, Greenbrier East, Steve Wallace, Union.

Joe White and Teddy Dunbrack, Marlinton, and Larry Plyler, Green Bank, were named to the second team.

Steve Lamb, Hillsboro, Mike Crist, Henry Shinaberry, Green Bank, and Jerry Stuart, Marlinton, were given honorable mention.

A big bear had been raiding sheep flocks on Stamping Creek around High Rocks and on Vina Mountain. At the Wymer place it was found where the kill was made the night before. Word was sent to Oscar Sharp to bring his dogs. They were brought, and soon the big bear was up and going, Mr. Wymer got in the shots. He drew blood but did not stop the bear.

Into the Black Forest by way of the High Rocks the big bear went. He was lost away down in the Hateful Creek wilderness.

Properly the defendant refused to admit they were practising the past time of hunting. They did say they were out to kill a sheep stealing bear, even though it was Sunday.

Call it, so to speak, a reverse case of the ox in the ditch.

I do not take kindly to that hoot in a lowlander's paper:

Battalion, 12th Infantry, 199th
Infantry Brigade (Separate)
(Light), was awarded the Bronze Star Medal with "V" Device in the Republic of Viet

Sergeant First Class White distinguished himself by exceptional heroism in connection with military operations against an armed hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam on 23
August 1968, while assigned to Company C, 4th Battalion, 12th Infantry, 199th Light Infantry Brigade. On that date, Sergeant White was serving as a platoon sergeant on a joint search and destroy operation with a platoon of Rangers of the Army of the Republic of Vietnam along the Kinh Sanh River. As the point element of of Vietnamese unit moved into a treeline, a booby trap exploded wounding several Rangers. Unhesitatingly, Sergeant White began moving through the dangerous area in order to aid the wounded Vietnamese soldiers. As Sergeant White continued through the treeline, another booby trap exploded and severely wounded him.
Disregarding his own painful wounds, Sergeant White gave instructions to his comrades and guided them through the area to the wounded Vietnamese soldiers. By his profound courage and selfless concern for his comrades, the allied soldiers were quickly and safely reached and thus received prompt medical attention.
Sergeant First Class White's valorous actions and devotion to duty were in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself, the

PUBLIC MEETING

Planning Commission

The Pocahontas Planning and Zoning Commission will meet on Thursday evening, March 27, 8:00 p. m., at the Durbin Moose Hall.

Any interested person is welcome to come to this or any meeting of the Commission. Meetings are being held in different communities of the county to acquaint the public with the planning.

THURSDAY, JULY 7, 1955

School Levy Election

The Pocahontas County Board of Education has found there is a probable annual deficit of nearly fifty thousand dollars facing us, if the schools are to run the required nine months with levies laid at maximum rates provided by law.

The deficit is accounted for by decrease in State Aid, and in decrease in money from the National Forest.

The way out is for additional levy for the next three years. This can only be brought about by a three to two majority of the people voting.

The Board of Education has provided for such an election on Tuesday, July 26.

The items of the deficit in case the schools run the full nine months are—

Instruction $17,000; supplies $1,000; operation of plants $6‘ 5000; maintenance $7,500; pupil transportiation $12,000; auxiliary agencies $2,000.

Naturally, this editor hopes and believes our people will vote overwhelmingly in favor of the increase levy to insure the full term of nine months. Our people are in the habit of supporting schools. These few lines are to urge them to turn out in numbers. The public school is a bulwark against communism.

Farm News

Right at 45 tons of wool was the amount of Pocahontas County Cooperative wool pool graded and shipped last week. The down payment was nearly $40,000, at the rate of 45 cents a pound. Then there will be an "incentive" payment of around 17 cents a pound. This can be expected in about a year.

To this shepherd, the wool this year looked particularly good and clean.

The average fleece seemed to run about five pounds in weight —making clipping from 20,000 head of sheep. The consignors numbered 392. This is by far the largest and best pool in the State.

Something like twenty or more tons of wool was marketed

Deaths

Bruno W. Morrison

Bruno William Morrison, aged 76 years, of Buckeye, died on Friday night, August 5, 1955, after a long illness.

On Monday afternoon the funeral service was held from the Lower Church at Buckeye, by Rev. T. G. Alderman. His body was laid in the family plot in Mt. View Cemetery.

The deceased was a son of the late William and Mary McKeever Morrison. He was the last of a large family to be called. He was a retired woodsman. He had never married.

Among the nieces and nephews who survive Mr Morrison are—Mrs. Rush McNeill, Hillsboro; Mrs W. C. Bowers, Waynesboro, Virginia; Mrs Harry Stottlemire and Mrs Dan Lantz, both of Lewisburg, Ohio; Ted Morrison, Pickens, South Carolina; Frank Morrison, Lobelia; Taylor Morrison, Buckeye.

Carter Machinery Company selected Vincent B. Harper Outstanding Employee of 1968 and presented him with a lovely grandfather clock. Vincent's wife, Jean, with their three children, Ricky, Candy and Bradley, live at their home on Knapps Creek. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ward E. Harper, of Knapps Creek. Before the presentation was made Robbie Robertson read from the specifications required to qualify for employee of the year. He then, having researched many files at Salem, Norton, and Bluefield, together with the commit tee, and the committee having unanimously selected "Vince," made a review of Vince's personnel file not mentioning the name. The person selected invariably carried these fine remarks, "His performance as a field serviceman is outstanding. He is now doing an excellent job as resident fieldman in the Pineville area. Always trying to increase our service sales wherever he goes. He is very helpful to fellow workers and well liked by most all of his customers. He frequently comes up with new ideas and better ways of doing things. This man represents Carter Machinery Company extremely well with the customer."

County Supt. Resigns

At the meeting of the Board of Education on Monday night, the resignation of Eric S. Clutter as County Superintendent of Schools was considered and accepted. Again our schools are deprieved of the services of an outstanding school man, and executive. Mr. Clutter has accepted the position of history teacher in the City high school of Los Vegas, Nevada.

The Board promptly and properly filled the position by advancing Mack Brooks, from the position of Assistant Superintendent. I heartily approve of this advancement.

The place of Assistant Superintendent of the Schools goes to Kermit Arbogast, principal of the Cass School. He is throughly qualified for the position. He is a professional teacher of experience. He earned a Masters Degree from a good University. Again I most heartily approve of Mr. Arbogast's appointment as Assistant County Superintendent of Schools.

The Sharps live in the Canal Zone, where he is attached to the Special Forces Group at Fort Gulick.

Vandalism

On last Sunday night Henry A. Taylor, aged 17 years, of Dunmore, was coming out of Durbin, heading home. He met a car and as they passed a nitwit threw a big lighted fire cracker through the window of the truck young Taylor was driving. It landed on his lap. He moved over and as he picked up the little bomb, it exploded. His forefinger was blown off and his hand was other wise badly mangled.

Proper comment on such a criminal insane act is easier to imagine than write.

The 4-H activities will get underway at 9:00 a. m. with an individual judging contest which will include classes in cattle, sheep, dairy heifers poultry, potatoes and canning. Prizes will be awarded the high scoring individuals in the boys and girls division.

At 1:00 p. m. the 4-H club parade of floats led by the high school band will leave the school parking lot for the fair grounds. There the parade will pass in review before the grandstand where they will be judged in the various classes.

Judging of the junior livestock entries will get underway at 2:00 p. m. Competition in all classes of the junior show is expected to be keen, according to Walter E. Jett, Superintendent of the department.

The evening program consists of a parade of the floats, band concert, 4-H style review and a local talent show.

An outstanding feature of the Pocahontas County Fair is the West Virginia State Sheep Show. It is sponsored by the Fair Association and the State Department of Agriculture, with the Sheep Breeders Association and the Extension Service Cooperating. Ivan Barlow is Superintendent.

Entries have been received from many parts of this State and adjoining States. The show will be divided into six sections with 12 classes. The sections are Hampshire, Dorset, Southdown, Cheviot and Suffolk.

Mr. Barlow states that he thinks it fitting that the Sheep Show should be an important department of the Pocahontas County Fair, since Pocahontas County is the largest sheep producing county in West Virginia, and the marketing of sheep and production of wool are valuable sources of revenue for the mountain state.

We'come to Pocahontas

The best kept secret of recent times was revealed Sunday afternoon as Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, IV, announced plans to build a home near Dunmore. Pocahontas people had been consumed with curiosity since the sale of the Ashby Wilfong farm last fall at a high price to C. W. Hensell, a real estate dealer in Martinsburg, followed by purchase of other farms.

Between five and six hundred people gathered for a picnic under a yellow striped tent on the Wilfong farm, not knowing who the host would be. The valley and mountains were beautiful. About one o'clock Secretary of State and Mrs. Rockefeller arrived, accompanied by his parents, Mr and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, III, and her brother and sister, and ended the rumors that had ranged from a prison to missile site.

Rockefeller said he had had "two loves at first sight"—his wife and this farm. An architect is making plans for a home to be started later in the year.

He had been planning these purchases for two years and had made many secret trips to the farm, coming in a back way. His father-in-law, Senator Charles Percy, came once and fell in the creek.

No announcement was made of actual acreage or tracts, but the best information we can get is that there are about 1100 acres in the Wilfong, Barlow, etc. group; the mountain land purchased from Smallridge will be about 1600 acres and the Willie Sheets acreage about 300. The money investment is probably about $650,000.

Fire Department

From the Editor

When the fire siren waked me at 2 a. m. the other morning, I was thankful to have a fire department to hurry to the scene on Greenbrier Hill. The fire wasn't much – that's when they are the most help. A raging fire is hard to stop but still needs to be controlled.

A service charge has been approved by the Town Council. Thirty per cent of the voters can petition for an election. The deadline is Thursday midnight. Petitions are being circulated. Before you sign be sure you understand what you are doing. If enough people sign, they will probably drop the matter and not waste money on an election but then the fire department will not have money to operate or buy needed equipment.

The rates will be 36 cents a week if you own your own home, 12 cents a week if you rent. Is there anything you buy that is much more important? This covers the emergency car also. Big home, little home pays the same, but most times the bigger home is more fireproof. It seemed impossible to have rates in accordance with property value.

If you have a question, ask a fireman or councilman.

CIRCUIT COURT

The June Term of Circuit Court was convened by Judge Nickell Kramer Tuesday. Henry Hevener was named foreman of the Grand Jury.

Twenty indictments were returned:

Felony indictments against Preston White (7), Verlin B. Jones, Charles Cornwell and James Richard Ramsey, (2) James E. Moore, (2) Richard Allen Blake, John Guthrie.

Quilts

Mrs. Sylvia Curry and Mrs. Glenna Hayes are planning a Quilt Show for Pioneer Days to be held with the Antique Show and Flower Show in the Marlinton Gymnasium on Friday and Saturday, July 11 and 12. Mrs. Curry, who pieced her first quilt at 7 years of age, wrote this interesting article on quilts:

The patchwork quilt is part and parcel of our country's past and present. While many things on the American scene have changed since Colonial days, the same precise and beautiful quilt patterns that great-great grandmother made out of scraps of fabric are being followed by women today.

A quilt is a padded needlework bed cover. It is made of several thicknesses of material: the top, which is pieced in different patterns of scraps or of two colors, the interlining and the bottom; the interlining is made of cotton, wool, kapok or other material.

A crazy quilt is made of all sizes and colors of scraps; cotton prints and plains are most serviceable for families.

Quilting is one of the embroidery arts, and has been practiced in Asia, North Africa, and Europe for thousands of years. Soldiers of the Middle Ages wore padded and quilted coats and hoods under their armor.

In 1540, Catherine Howard, who later become the fifth wife of Henry VIII of England, was given 23 silk quilts from the royal wardrobe as a royal favor.

The Dutch and English Colonists brought along quilts to protect them from the severe cold of the American winters. Quilting was a favorite home art in the colonies.

It is a traditional kind of needlework, primarily intended as an economy and so it should be looked upon still. In all periods, traditional shapes and patterns have been used.

Quilts are of two kinds—patchwork and applique. At one time a bride's trousseau was not complete without a baker's dozen. Patchwork and quilting are two separate arts which were combined by the early settlers of this country to make beautiful quilts. Patch work is very simple requiring only accuracy in making the units. The sewing of patchwork consists only of a straight seam.

Setting Blocks Together

This is combining the blocks and border of the quilt. Blocks are joined in strips and then the strips are sewed together. The border is put on last.

Yankee Pride

This pattern is an adaptation of a popular quilt design which originated in New Orleans. It was named the Le Moyne Star in honor of Jaques Le Moyne and Sieur de Bienville, founder of the city. After Louisiana was purchased by the United States in 1803, it began to appear in different parts of the country in various forms.

Roman Stripe

Early New England women, remembering the thrifty custom which they had observed in Holland, pieced together their scraps of precious material to make comfortable bed covering. The early patterns were called crazy quilts or hit and miss. The Roman Stripe was an attempt to give a more formal arrangement to the piecing.

Women and girls wore quilted petticoats with warm wool interlining. Babies' cradles were hooded with quilted pieces, and quilted pieces were used on backs of chairs for protection from drafts of cold air. Colorful scraps of material and favorite designs were combined to provide beauty in colonial bedrooms.

Quilting bees, or parties, were popular in villages and towns. A group of women and girls would gather at a friend's home and complete a quilt in one afternoon. Their families would join them for supper, after which they usually sang and danced.

Many interesting quilt designs were developed and handed down from generation to generation. Among them were the Pine Tree, the Sunflower, Rose of Sharon, the Rising Sun, the Sunburst, Friendship, and Wedding Ring, to name a few. Such quilts have been handed down as heirlooms. Beautiful quilts are on display in museums today.

Interest in quilting has revived recently, and many women today take great pride in this kind of needlework. Quilts are shown in home exhibits at county and state fairs.

Although the work does not bear any date or signature, the patterns are made from pieces of Indian prints imported into the country at the end of the seventeenth century. From the evidence of the materials and the work, and according to good authority, this suggested date (1708) is perfectly feasible. It can be seen that the printed motifs are characteristic of Indian work and the colors, in shades of red and blue, and in spite of their age, are remarkably clear.

In regard to the Special Election which will be held on July 26 for voting on school funds for Pocahontas County, a lot of wild rumors have been floating around about various phases of expenditures for school purposes.

It would seem that substantial citizens who actually have the interest of the county at heart would want to know the TRUTH regarding school funds and school activities. The truth is as follows:

Pocahontas County will receive $355,196.00 State Aid in 1955-56, which is $6,785.00 less than the $361,979.00 received in 1954-55. These figures can be checked in the office of the Board of Education, or the State Board of School Finance. The forestry

The nominating committee made the following report: President—Mrs. Robert Taylor; Vice President—Johnnie Hill, Secretary and Treasurer—Mrs. Ruth Pritchard. The report was unanimously accepted.

It was suggested by Charles Moore, principal of Hillsboro High School, that since 1970 would be the last graduating class, the annual year book would contain a list of all the graduates (and pictures if any were available) from Hillsboro High School which started in 1913. All classes were given the privilege of having a page in the year book, if they so desire. This information and pictures for this page must be in by December 1. The cost is $6.00 for a half page or $12.00 a page.

It was suggested the Alumni Banquet be continued, to be held each year, even though the High School will be discontinued.

The meal was prepared and served by the ladies of Hillsboro Methodist Church.

An enjoyable evening was spent by all.

School Finance. The forestry fund this year will be $38,000.00 less. This makes a total dec[illegible] of $44,785.00. The $38 [illegible] forestry fund is an accumulation of forestry moneys of 1951, 1952 and 1953. These funds for these years were frozen with the Sheriff of Pocahontas County by the Tax Commissioner, awaiting a decision of whether they belonged to the General County Fund—from State Law—or to schools and roads—Federal Law. In 1954 the Circuit Court of Pocahontas decided the Federal Law prevailed. The County Court of Pocahontas then turned over $38,000.00 of these accumulated funds to the Board of Education.

These accumulated funds were necessary for maintaining a nine months term of school for 1954-55 and will never be available again. Hence the Board has then turned over $38,000.00 of these accumulated funds to the Board of Education.

These accumulated funds were necessary for maintaining a nine months term of school for 1954-55 and will never be available again. Hence the Board has nearly $45,000.00 less money this year than last. In order to check the above facts review the court records of Pocahontas.

If anyone wants to check the FACTS he will find that every county in West Virginia either employs one or more assistant superintendents and and or one or more supervisors (from 1954-55 WVA Educational Directory.) Also that the office expense of Pocahontas County in proportion to the total spent for schools is much less than in many counties.

any tax levied will be assumed by the people and organizations holding property in the county. In fact Public Utilities which hold approximately one fourth of the property in the county will pay approximately 40 per cent of the added taxes.

It all adds up to whether we want adequate education for the children and pupils of Pocahontas County and if so whether we are willing to shoulder a very small amount of the burden compared to the state.

It would certainly seem that anyone who has had, or has children in school or who has enjoyed a school function, graduation, academic, athletic, or otherwise would be proud that this is HIS or HER county and be FOR the SCHOOLS.

First Things

In last week's Preston County Journal is a list of First Things. One of these is the following reference to Mrs. Margaret Smith Effland, daughter of Squire and Mrs. Harper M. Smith, of Marlinton:

"Another First is none other than Margaret Effland, who will be absent from a 4-H camp for the first time in 21 years. Margaret, former Home Demonstration Agent here, attended her first 12 as camper and leader in her native Pocahontas and the last eight as extension agent, one in Greenbrier, one in Mineral and the other six in Preston. Margaret is now busy at home with her young daughter and thus will miss the county 4-H camp."

Civil Defense

The local Ground Observer Corps will participate in a nationwide civil defense exercise scheduled for August 7, 1955. The test will determine the effectiveness of the Air Force's defense against surprise attack from the air.

Air Force planes will fly over this area. Volunteers of the local post will report their direction of flight, altitude, general description, and distance from the city, to the Air Force filter center in Roanoke. There the information is plotted on huge maps of the State and relayed direct to the Air Force.

In time of emergency, all unidentified aircraft would be checked by jet fighters for identification. Those not identified as friendly presumably would be shot down.

According to Leo Davis, supervisor of the local GOC Post, the Air Force depends more upon the volunteer aircraft spotters than it does on radar installations In mountainous areas, human spotters have proven more effective than radar.

Jett, County Extension Agent and Council Secretary.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Sheets, of Green Bank were selected as the winning family in the part-time farming category. In addition to their farming activities, Mr. Sheets is a school bus driver in the Green Bank system.

DAMS

The coordinating committee for the Kanawha Basin Comprehensive Study, representing federal agencies and the states of North Carolina, Virginia, and West Virginia, met at Hawks Nest State Park Nov. 18 19. A news conference was set for one afternoon so we made a special effort to get there to see what progress is being made. This committee is covering many of the facets of the water resources question—reforestation, reclamation, etc.; the one that gets the most publicity is that of dams or reservoirs.

The plan has been in the making for eight years and will be completed in June 1970, then to be reported to Congress. It is a coordinated plan of all agencies concerned with water resources and its connected features, flood prevention, fish, power, water supply, land treatment, recreation, etc., and is a blueprint for development to the year 2020.

Of course, we are primarily interested in plans for Pocahontas County. As it stands now the primary plan calls for three reservoirs, one each on Knapps Creek, Deer Creek sources and its connected features, flood prevention, fish, power, water supply, land treatment, recreation, etc., and is a blueprint for development to the year 2020.

Of course, we are primarily interested in plans for Pocahontas County. As it stands now the primary plan calls for three reservoirs, one each on Knapps Creek, Deer Creek and on the East Fork of the Greenbrier at Thornwood, plus three small watershed projects, these to be built by 1985. The alternate plan is for the previously discussed dam 87, five miles above Marlinton, to be built by 1985, plus a dam on Knapps Creek between 1985 and 2000 They are leaving Anthony Creek out of the picture since a state law was passed prohibiting impoundments on it.

We carried to the meeting an objection to the Knapps Creek Dam and also to the Deer Creek Dam if it comes up to the Observatory.

We asked for an informational meeting in Pocahontas by the Corps of Engineers in the next few months. Public bodies and organizations should seriously consider these things. There are both good and bad points of all the plans. We may have to accept some undesirable things to achieve a greater good. Now is the time to weigh these matters.

In Memoriam

This letter was received by Mrs Mary McNeel Hilleary upon the death of her husband, George Louia Hilleary:

Mary Dear—There is an old saying, "Turn always toward the sunshine and the shadows will fall behind you." Right now, I imagine, the clouds are hanging heavy on your horizon, and it seems the sun will never shine again. But God, in His love and and wisdom, has promised us our burdens will not be more than we can carry if we lean on Him for strength and courage. He is the sunshine toward whom we must turn, and the warmth of His love will cause the shadows to fall behind us.

Some of the sunshine that will shine forever for you is the wonderful memories Louia left behind. He was truly the man who lived by the side of the road and was a friend to all. To each who came near him he gave of his gift of living, the gift of wit, of laughter, and, above all, the gift of human kindness and warm friendship that made him loved by old and young alike. What Does It Mean To Us?

Sherman Markley, Pastor
Minnehaha Springs
Methodist Church

A new Christmas Season is upon us and most of our hearts are filled with joy at the prospect of seeing loved ones who have been away for a long time or the feeling of satisfaction that comes from the sharing and exchange of tokens of our love for each other at this season of the year.

We would like to push the world of strife and pain into the background if possible and live for a little while as God intended man to live, in peace, love and harmony. If we could make this feeling last throughout the year how wonderful it would be. It can be done through faith in God.

In a world of strife and war, amid some of the worst religious prejudices in a nation among the Pharisees and Sadducees of Israel, the national prejudices toward other people who worshipped in a different way or place;

In a country in bondage to the Roman Conqueror, in one of the smallest of the provinces of that nation, in one of the smaller cities, in about the

Of course, your biggest piece of sunshine is three beautiful children who are so much a part of Louia. Living for them, I am sure, the shadows will lift enough for the future to be bearable, and that behind the scenes Louia will say, "That is my brave Mary."

In a country in bondage to the Roman Conqueror, in one of the smallest of the provinces of that nation, in one of the smaller cities, in about the lowliest places imaginable, to a poor carpenter's family was born a man child, sent from God to be the example for us to follow.

In a manger in the city of Bethlehem, Jesus Christ came into the world, a human being, conceived by the Holy Spirit of God, born to a human mother that He might be able to completely relate to all of mankind.

He can suffer the temptations and pains the humility and shame, the prejudices and feelings of all other men. A man who could suffer the accusations and indignities at the hands of his fellowman. A man who lived with and could see problems of his day. A man who had the courage to face up to the problems and try to do something about them. By subjugating His will to the will of God He could see no difference in Jew or Gentile, rich or poor, bond or free.

He met the opposition of His enemies with sensible teaching and love.

He could pray that they be forgiven for His betrayal and crucifixion.

He never pushed His problems aside but met them with love, courage and conviction.

He spent much of His time in prayer that God give Him the grace to accept the will of God in the life of the world of that day.

His every thought was for the well being of others both spiritually and materially.

He has shown us by example that love is the most important thing in life. A life without love for and the love of our fellowman would be very dull indeed.

constructive action and peace.

How long is it going to take men to learn that the only hope for enduring peace must come from love of each other?

About four nations in the world now have the means to destroy us all as civilized human beings or even all life in its entirety.

Hate has its finger on the trigger, greed is goading him on. Love can destroy them both.

How can man be smart enough to conquer the land with automobile and train, the sea with ships and submarines, the air with planes, even space with the spacecraft that has allowed him to walk on the moon, and still not realize that we have to learn to live together as brothers in God-given love or we are rushing headlong to our doom.

Until we learn to live together without regard to nationality, race or creed, there can be no real peace in the world.

The Christmas spirit cannot and must not be confined to a certain day or a certain season but must live in the hearts of men througout the year. Only then can there be "Peace on earth to men of good will."

Green Bank School News

As we approach the eve of the holidays, it brings to us an opportunity to take inventory of our accomplishments and blessings for the old year of 1969. We should ask ourselves a number of questions, some of which might be the following: What have been my financial and economic gains? To what extent can I contribute these gains to my own efforts without help from my fellow men? Have I been healthy during the past year? If so, has it been because I have eaten the proper food, slept sufficient hours and had the proper amount of exercise? Or have I been healthy because I have enough stamina to ward off diseases and fail to build up a reserve for a possible contact of a communicable disease that might overcome u ? Have I given proper recognition to those people who have helped me? Have I taken of my time to go the extra mile to help a neighbor who is in physical or financial need? To what have I devoted my extra time, if I have had such time? Have I spent this time in a gainful manner—reading good literature, supporting my church and civic organizations, visiting the sick, or devoting some free time to just evaluating myself? Let's look into the mirror, ask ourselves the questions listed above and see where we fit in the pattern. If we have met and can answer the questions in the positive—then I believe we can lay the old year aside with joy and be ready to thoroughly enjoy the memory of the man who made these things possible—THE GREAT TEACHER.

The material for the Green Bank School annual has been collected and the final package will be mailed to the printing company when we return from holidays on December 29, 1969. The deadline for ordering copies is December 31, 1969. We must notify the company on this date as to the number of copies to print. The price is $5.50. This will include mailing costs. People interested should make the reservation by making the check to Green Bank Golden Eagle and mailing it to the school on or before December 31.

The high school music program was presented to the public on December 11, under the supervision of Miss Linda Cassell. The grade school will be presented on Thursday, December 18.

The picture for the grade school will be presented on the afternoon of December 18. This will be the Christmas present to the grade school from the grade school teachers.

Mrs. Vance and the F. H. A. will hold the Annual Christmas Tea on the afternoon of the 18th of December. The same group will sponsor a dance on that night from 8 to 11.

We hope the year 1969 has been happy and prosperous and that all our patrons have a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Grady was found to have fractures of the spine and neck. His condition was critical. The army was contacted and Grady was transported to Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington, D. C. by army helicopter on August 17, 1967.

Grady responded to excellent care and treatment in the army hospital, and is now able to spend much of his time at home. Paralyzed from the shoulders down, his time is divided between the bed and an of a battery electric wheel chair provided here by the service. Pocahontas County Industries

A large and representative congregation of business men of Pocahontas County met at the Court House last Thursday night.

The idea of the gathering was to put Pocahontas County in line with the organized and systematic State wide effort to attract industries to West Virginia. This movement is headed by Governor William C. Marland The matter was presented to us by Attorney Arden J. Curry, late of the Attorney General's staff, and now executive assistant to the Governor.

Mr. Curry spoke in detail of the systematic effort now being made to attract new industries to West Virginia. He urged us to form an organization and do our part in the campaign to attract a new industry or industries to Pocahontas County from the long list, of prospects which have expressed interest in locating in West Virginia. This will require an investment of money.

Naturally, Mr. Curry's message met with hearty response. The matter was put on a business basis by naming a committee on ways and means.

The president, is Senator Fred Allen; vice president, Maynard Dilley; secretary-treasurer, Richard Currence. The other six members or directors are J. E. Buckley, Glenn Shrader, Judge S. H. Sharp, R. M. Bledsoe, Walter Shafer and Archie Walker.

Memorial Services

There will be a Memorial Service at the Beaver Creek Cemetery Sunday afternoon, June 1, at two o'clock.

Friday morning, May 30, at 9:00 a. m., rain or shine, Memorial Day Service will be held at the Mountain View Cemetery in Marlinton. The speaker will be the Rev. Maynard Crawford, pastor of the Marlinton United Methodist Church.

Sponsors are the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Elections

The four incorporated towns of Pocahontas County hold elections next Tuesday. Polls are open 6:30 to 7:30. Daylight Saving Time. Cass and Durbin have only one ticket. Hillsboro's ticket is in primary form, showing the selections clearly. Marlinton has three tickets to elect one mayor, one recorder, five councilmen; voters may cross tickets and select council men from any ticket, but only vote for five altogether.

Fire Service Charge

A word of explanation and correction in regard to the Fire Department Service Charge for those living outside of Marlinton. The payments, if paid quarterly, would total $13 per year and $26 per year, but would be $3.25 and $6.50 per quarter. The charge to those not subscribing would be $100 minimum charge for fire calls, $50 minimum charge for emergency calls. Coupon on inside page.

In the opening game of the Marlinton Little League season the Giants defeated the Reds 13-1 on Thursday. On Friday the Cards defeated the Cubs 13-2.

Burks-:-Diller

Miss Nancy Diller became the bride of Johnny Dale Burks in the Browns Creek Methodist Church at eight o' clock in the evening, on May 10, 1969. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Maynard Crawford.

Miss Donna Matheny, of Green Bark, cousin of the bride, played traditional wedding music.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Eugene P. Dilley, of Marlinton, and Vernon C. Diller, of Toledo, Ohio.

Mr. Burks is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Burks, of Mill Point.

The bride and groom stood under a trellis archway decorated with lilac, flanked by two large baskets of lilac, with lighted candles throughout the church.

Given in marriage by her brother, Dwight H. Diller, the bride wore a white street-length gown of lace over satin; her shoulder length veil fell from a crown embellished with pearls. She carried a white Bible topped with white carnations with streamers entwined with flowers and tied in loveknots.

Miss Sally Rose served as maid of honor. Her gown was of yellow and grey floral pattern and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Bear

Argile Arbogast shot THE Bear last Wednesday; four hundred pounds, right on the nose, when they weighed him on Ralph Burn's scales. He was an older bear, eight to ten years at a guess, but with good teeth. His feet were described as massive. It is hoped this will end the raids on the flocks of Krellis Wimer and others over the past several years.

This was almost a perfect match for the 400 pound bear killed by Walter McNeill about five years ago on Swago Knob, which is now mounted in the Pocahontas Historical Museum. These are the two biggest bears Mr. Arbogast has seen.

This hunt was legally handled in accordance with the Department of Natural Resources rulings; Joe Roy was notified of the hunt and the kill.

Krellis Wimer had lost five or six sheep—this was the third time they had been out for this bear. This time they used a better strategy. Wimer took Arbogast's hounds and trailed the bear out. Then Arbogast took Lee Dean's dogs and closed in on him. The thirteen mile trail led up over Kennison, over Dogway, through Cranberry River, and the bear was treed about a mile up Sand Run. About four o'clock Arbogast shot the bear about fifty feet up in a tree. He had a .44 Ruger Magum and used six shots (he only had nine). The bear kept swatting past his ear and face like a bee was bothering him. The bullets, when removed, were really spread out. After the kill, Arbogast tied the dogs and went for help. It took hard work and several hours for six men to pull that bear out. Every little rise in the ground took maximum effort to get the bear over it.

Others in on the hunt were Larry Arbogast, Krellis Wimer Tom Barcroft, Pop Jackson, Bill Ruckman, Benton Smith and Tom Edgar.

Spring Gobbler Season

A total of 236 gobblers was killed in the five day hunt, May 5-10, said Natural Resources Director T. R. Samsell according to preliminary figures.

In kill figures, Pocahontas led the list with a total of 40 birds bagged, followed with Hardy County, 38; Randolph

A. James Manchin, State

A. James Manchin, State Director of the Farmers Home Administration, was in Pocahontas last Wednesday for a big "first." He presented a $110,000 FHA loan check to six Pocahontas County farmers for their use in acquiring and developing 1.648 acres of land in the Little Laurel Grazing Association, the first such project in which the FHA has participated in West Virginia; nor is there such a project in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey or Vermont.

The officers of the Grazing Association are Donald H. Vandevender, president, Neal Kellison, vice president, and Harve E. Galford, secretary-treasurer. The three other participants are W. H. Kellison, Wallace Galford, and Paul Harper, who is a son-in-law of Wallace Galford.

The loan funds and $3,600 contributed by the members will be used to purchase the lands of Tom Edgar and Walter Mason on Little Laurel Creek of Williams River, to lime and fertilize the pastures, Senator Robert Byrd sends a special announcement of the planned commercial irradiation plant in Hardy County, one mile northwest of Moorefield. This plant will employ 300 workers and will produce wood-plastic parquet flooring. Red oak flooring will be impregnated under pressure with liquid plastic, then irradiated to produce molecular changes to create a new superhard product. Packin, President of the company, said Moorefield was chosen because Hardy and Pocahontas have the finest and most abundant red oak in the country.

No Fire Department?

This is written Monday night and, as of now, Marlinton has no fire department. The men finally agreed to act if called until Tuesday until the Mayor and Council could find a new chief and members.

This sad situation came about because we citizens of Marlinton followed the weak line of criticizing and tearing apart what other people were building and doing for our protection; if we didn't criticize we didn't stand up enough for them.

Within sight of a better financial foundation, the years of half-truths, criticism and abuse came to a climax Monday night and our fire department decided it could take it no longer.

What can we do? We have no answer. Personally we voice our confidence in our present volunteers and humbly ask them to continue in this public service.

And commence to give our Fire Department the support it should have had all along. I am guilty, along with the rest of you, in taking the Fire Department for granted. It is time for us to quit "looking a free horse in the mouth" and commence to realize that the firemen are giving of their time and money to bring to us a service we cannot safely be without, a service that cannot be bought elsewhere, at any price. Planning—For a Better Place to Live

This is a time for local communities to take the initiative in the preservation of natural beauty, and to assume moral responsibility for protecting our environment.

Across the nation, in our villages and towns—yes, in Pocahontas County—a deep rooted change is taking place. Natural resources once taken for grant ed are being regarded with increasing importance. Clean water and air, along with trees and the soil, are taking on a new meaning. People are discovering these resources are not only limited and vital, but vulnerable to fouling, waste and ruin. They are awakening to the need for better stewardship. On all sides there is a new climate for conservation.

It is time for initiative—for ten million actions great and small to get in motion a tide of resource care, converting desires into deeds and opportunities into accomplishments.

It is a time for courage—to examine your conscience and measure how well you are meeting your responsibilities for the care of our resources.

It is time for self examination—to identify what new or added steps you can take as a responsible citizen to protect and develop the resources around you. It is a time to speak up for resources—because participation is the essence of democracy and the

It is time for self examination—to identify what new or added steps you can take as a responsible citizen to protect and develop the resources around you. It is a time to speak up for resources—because participation is the essence of democracy and the surest safeguard against dictation.

No one of us can forecast the future, but each of us can look forward to what is possible and probable. There are clear signs of oncoming resource requirements. Widespread hunger is on the horizon for large areas of the world. At home the demand for jobs and improved income must be met partly through resource development. Competition for the use of resources of all kinds is growing and the need for resource products is bound to increase.

Norman Alderman, of Huntersville, won first place in the Essay Contest of the Farm Bureau. He was awarded a cash prize of $15. Second place and $10 went to Michael Crist, of Arbovale. Alderman's entry follows:

Why I Should Join the Farm Bureau

"We must all hang together or we will hang separately." This is a famous saying that was quoted by Benjamin Franklin, a man who knew the meaning and importance of a united people. He put into words what the Farm Bureau has long been an advocate of. He knew that a united people could stand the trials of life although the adversary be great and mighty.

It is only through union that the farmer can become a force to be reckoned with rather than to be put to scorn for simply expressing his ambitions. The farmer truly can amplify his strength by joining a group which can speak for the farmer.

The farmer is an individual person who operates an individual business; however, in today's modern government he tends to lose his identity as an individual. Modern business has proved that a trend is developing in that the working man is becoming more organized and is forming a stronger bond. These bonds will become stronger and stronger as man gradually unites to form a force that will not lose its identity in today's fast changing world.

Today's farmer cannot afford

The joint Annual Membership Meetings of the Pocahontas Farm Bureau and the Pocahontas Producers held last Saturday enjoyed nice weather and a very good attendance.

William C. Anderson, Assistant Legislative Director, American Farm Bureau Federation-Washington Office made a very interesting talk on the subject, "Farm Bureau and the Changing Rural Society."

During the business session the following directors were elected to the Board: Little Levels—2 year term—Richard McNeel; 1 year unexpired term—K. N. Beard; Edray District—2 year term—J. Z. Johnson; Green Bank—2 year term—M. R. Beard; 1 year unexpired term—Elmer P. Shinaberry; Huntersville—2 year term—Dayton Harold; Director-at large—Henry Hevener.

George Lytton, Chairman of Animal Husbandry Department, V. P. I., made a very entertaining and interesting talk on "Livestock Production and Management."

Lou Stout in making his financial report announced that the Pocahontas Producers did a gross business in excess of a million dollars in 1968. This is the largest volume ever experienced since its beginning in 1946.

During the business session of the Association, the following members were named to the Board for three terms: Forest Beard, Hillsboro; John Coyner, Clover Lick, and Albert Wilfong, Dunmore.

All members in attendance enjoyed a nice luncheon at the Marlinton Presbyterian Church prepared and served by the Auxiliary of the Marlinton Volunteer Fire Department.

Today's farmer cannot afford to stand behind the curtain of procrastination and let the world pass him by. If he does n't lift this curtain a fast changing world will gain momentum and swiftly leave him behind.

The Farm Bureau has claimed a record that is a credit to the American Farmer and to those who have fostered the theme of brotherhood by working as a group of dedicated men and women.

The farmer can become an active voice in a modern society where man can only achieve his goals by cooperating with those who also have dreams for success.

I sincerely believe the Farm Bureau is a reality which can make each farmer's ambitions a positive plan for success.

Weights and Measures

James R. Waugh, Mayor of Marlinton, has proclaimed the period of March 1 through March 7 as National Weights and Measures Week.

William Pickering, inspector of Weights and Measures with the West Virginia Department of Labor, Consumer Protection Division, carr es a lot of weighing in grocery stores and gasoline stations in Pocahontas, Monroe, and Summers Counties.

In 1968 there were 24,15 establishments inspected in West Virginia. 835 scales were found incorrect, and more than 10 million packages were checked for shortweight—305,61 packages were found short weight.

Interestingly, errors are quite often the other way. In a supermarket weighing meat was discovered a burned out computing unit that was losing 9 cents on each package weighed. The manager of the supermarket reported a loss of $150 a day.

The cost of the Weights and Measures and Consumer Protection service to the public amounts to approximately cents per person annually but the savings are far higher.

For the average man who fills his gas tank fifty times with an average loss of just one half gallon per "fill-up" the cost would be $8.25 figu

Planning—For a Better Place to Live

Putting the Plan Into Action

Once there is a decision by the county or community to adopt comprehensive planning, and the plan is drawn, the next step, is to put the plan into action.

There are several ways to put the plan into action. First and probably the most familiar, is through the adoption of ordinances, which may be a zoning ordinance, subdivision regulations, and possibly a housing or building code. Other measures are public housing, water and sewer programs, recreation programs and code enforcement.

Zoning is a regulatory measure passed by a county court or a city council to help make the plan work. It is not developed separately from, but in close coordination with the plan. Its purpose is to guide rural growth, so the best possible and efficient use of land will result. It is possible under existing legislation to zone only parts or sections of an area.

A zoning ordinance will spell out regulations on the location of buildings and the general use of the land or lot in a specified district or area. Generally, zoning does not affect things

A student from Marlinton High School will be selected to take part in this year's 20th Annual United Nations Pilgrimage for Youth sponsored by the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and its sister organization the Rebekahs, with all expenses including travel paid.

Students, to qualify must be Juniors or Sophomores, and who will not be over 17 years old by August 1, 1969. Good health is an important requisite.

Students may enroll for the contest by filling out a "Candidate's Experience Sheet" and declaring willingness, if selected, to participate fully in the project. The procedure starts with all contestants taking a 100-question examination on the United Nations. "UN Study Kits" are available for interested students.

A committee will interview the contestants to determine comparative qualities of scholarship, leadership, character, interest in community welfare,

A zoning ordinance will spell out regulations on the location of buildings and the general use of the land or lot in a specified district or area. Generally, zoning does not affect things already built. A use in existence at the time of enactment, called a "non-conforming" can not be changed by a new zoning ordinance.

If a business establishment is in an area designated to be a residential area, the ordinance cannot force the business use to change to a residential one.

The tools and methods for carrying out a comprehensive plan other than zoning involve: first, policy decisions of a county court or city council that reflect the comprehensive plan; second, subdivision regulations which set minimum design criteria such as the location of streets, right of ways, building set back lines, and others.

Other codes such as housing, electrical, and plumbing, are also tools for implementation. A capital budget and public improvements program that assigns priorities to major improvements authorized by the governing body. All ordinances are enacted and enforced by the county court or city council. A planning commission has no power to adopt ordinances.

All ordinances are enacted and enforced by the county court or city council. A planning commission has no power to adopt ordinances.

There are four steps in which a city or county adopts an ordinance that is a part of the planning program. First, the ordinance is drawn up in suitable form, second, public hearings are held; third, the ordinance is voted on by the city council or county court, and; fourth, if a referendum is called for, the issue is voted on by the people.

Stamp Find

Last September Mrs. Harry Hockenberry bought some stamps at the Beard Postoffice, mailed letters to her family and kept some stamps for future use. These were the Walt Disney commemorative stamps. Later it was discovered the name "Walt Disney" and the 6 cents were missing from the stamps. Mrs. Hockenberry's neighbor is Ed Wagner, a stamp collector as well as postmaster, so she gave him a stamp and he started inquiring as to the rarity of the find. The February 3 issue of Linn's Weekly Stamp News carries a front page picture of the cover and a mint—unused—copy of Mrs. Hockenberry's stamps and story of the "missing color" Disney. The canceled stamp is the only full cover reported found so far, with unused stamps found in New Jersey, (these were returned to Washington for disposal), Minnesota and possibly California. It might be noted here that tearing of a stamp on opening or folding of the envelope depreciates the value.

There are still some stamps unaccounted for on letters from those sold at Beard and in Minnesota and rare stamps with misprints like this are right valuable.

Mrs. Hockenberry has already had some calls about her stamps.

Mr. and Mrs. Les Kennedy have returned to their home here after being at Afton, Virginia, the past several months.

Doris Henderson, a freshman at St. Andrews College in North Carolina, spent a few days the past week with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Thomas Henderson, at Green Bank.

Forrest Sims reported his first greetings from a robin last Thursday morning.

Miss Sara Alice Currence, of Washington, D. C., is visiting her mother, Mrs. R. F. Currence, a few days this week. Sara is now working as a secretary in the White House.

Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Larch, of Roanoke, Virginia, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Deputy, of Huntersville, have returned from their vacation in Florida; they visited Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Flora, in Jacksonville, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Deputy, and Mr and Mrs. Edward H. McLaughlin, of New Smyrna Beach. The Deputys' son, Marshall, has recently been appointed Chief Train Dispatcher with the Florida East Coast Railway, and Mrs. Deputy's brother, Edward H. McLaughlin, is Trainmaster for the same Railroad.

Mrs. Forrest A. Pritchard, of Durbin, was the guest of Mrs. June McElwee and Francis McElwee last week.

The dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Brown on Sunday were Mrs Mary Baker, Mrs. Beatrice Smith, Mrs. Mary Louise Childres, and Mrs. Mary Alice Carter, all of White Sulphur Springs, and Ronney Russell, of New York City.

Tom Daniels, of Glenville State College, is spending two weeks with his mother, Mrs. Lottie Daniels, at Renick, between semesters.

Mrs. Mary Underwood has moved back from Paris, Kentucky, to take care of her aged mother, Mrs. Georgia North.

Schools

At its regular meeting on January 28, the Pocahontas County Board of Education unanimously voted to accept the proposal of Central Valley Construction Company, Inc., of New Market, Virginia, to build the consolidated high school for the sum of $1,230,-319.00, provided matching funds for the vocational facility from the Appalachian Regional Commission of $225,-000 00 and $375 000.00 from the West Virginia Department of Vocational Education are approved Approval for these monies is expected in the near future. This figure averages out at $16 40 per square foot and is considered an excellent price especially since site development costs are included in this sum.

Three or more bids were received on all sub-contracting and these bids will be made a matter of public record in the minutes of the Board. After construction starts, the contractor estimates that the building can be completed in ten or eleven months.

Progress usually seems to come more slowly than desired, and our school project has been no exception, so the Board is extremely happy to be able to make this announcement concerning the acceptance of a contractor. It is hoped construction can start about March 15.

The next regular Board meeting is February 11, and all interested persons are invited to attend.

Eagles

T. E. (Ted) Stemple, State Vice President of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, announces that Clarence Jack has been appointed to try to organize an Eagle Aerie here in Marlinton. Marlinton has been under consideration for the past two years and after this thorough survey it was decided that the Eagles could be of service to this city, especially through their youth or teenage program.

Since 1960 the Eagles have raised $1,900,000 for heart research through their Max Baer Heart Fund. This money has been given to research hospitals in various amounts. West Virginia Medical School was given $10,000 in 1964, which they used to research hardening of the arteries and heart valve repair. Their program has been so good that they are now being considered for an additional grant to continue their studies into these two phases of heart ailments.

The Eagles believe in getting concerned in community affairs both suggestively and actively and do not compete but like to cooperate with all other organizations that exist in the community.

Coal Prospects

Mid-Allegheny and West Virginia-Pittsburgh Railroad, controlled by the B and O, have leased 20,000 acres of coal rights in the Williams River area to the Princess Coal Company of Richwood. They are now working on the Webster County side looking for openings and will come on into Pocahontas. This may prove to be an extensive development with a possible extension of the B and O six miles up middle Fork of Williams River. With the moving of mining machinery and equipment into the County, it would mean an increase in assessments and Assessor E. N. Moore has already met with representatives of the B and O in this connection.

Planning—For a Better Place to Live

With or without planning, rapid changes are taking place in our communities and county. Shifts in land use and population, air and water pollution, land values and outside interests, and migration are some of the problems straining the structures of local governments and community facilities.

For the most part, rural communities resist planning and zoning in their aversion to increased government and any kind of restrictions and the results are sometimes disastrous. Without a plan, the costs are often extracted in chaotic growth, lack of protection of property from adjacent land use, mis-location of highways, and denial of state and federal grants and loans that would improve the social and economic situation. Without planning, there is often costly duplication of effort in the physical improvement of the county and communities.

As has been said before, the Pocahontas County Planning Commission working in cooperation with the Town of Marlinton and the County Court is now in the process of developing a total comprehensive plan for the county and the Town of Marlinton. Once this is completed the next stop is to adopt the plan. The propos-

As has been said before, the Pocahontas County Planning Commission working in cooperation with the Town of Marlinton and the County Court is now in the process of developing a total comprehensive plan for the county and the Town of Marlinton. Once this is completed the next stop is to adopt the plan. The proposed plan is presented to the County Court and the Town Council. These two governing bodies then call for public hearings at which time the plans are presented and explained to the citizens. If changes or adjustments are proposed, these are again considered by the Planning Commission and the respective units of government.

Once the plans are finalized it is then up to the Town Council and the County Court to enact ordinances that put the plans into effect.

This is the process facing the people of Pocahontas County in the not-too-distant future. How we react to this issue will be determined to a great extent, by our knowledge and understanding of the whole process, its goals and objectives and its ultimate results.

This will be discussed next week.

Planning—For a Better Place to Live

Are we letting our community die?

Many small communities are dying today because we have failed to change the social climate in them so their smallness can be an asset to personality development and family living.

In order for citizens to provide the services that make a community attractive and wholesome to the family, they must plan. Planning is an organized approach to help in solving community and county problems. Its purpose is to help community leaders make sound decisions about local development.

Pocahontas County, through its Planning and Zoning Commission, is presently developing a Comprehensive Plan to give orderly direction to the future growth and development of the county. This is being done with the help of Roy F. Weston, a planning consultant firm of West Chester, Pennsylvania. This work is financed through a federal "701" grant. The Roy F. Weston firm has been on the job working on the Pocahontas County project since August 1, 1967.

What is a Comprehensive Plan? It is a carefully thought out statement of the Planning Commission and the County Court and or Town Council relative to the future development of the area involved. From this plan, zoning ordinances, a capital improvement program, and public housing proposals are designed.

Do the rural areas and rural counties have as much need for comprehensive planning as urban areas? Yes, if the area in question is now or in the future subject to change—change due to a shift in population, industrial growth, land use, recreational or housing developments.

Most West Virginia towns and counties, like Pocahontas,

Sparks-:-Sharp

Rebecca Ann Sharp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Sharp, of Laurel, Maryland, and David Wayne Sparks, son of Mr. and Mrs. David W. Sparks, Sr., of Marlinton, were united in marriage at the Frost United Methodist Church on Saturday, December 21, 1968.

The double ring ceremony was performed at two o'clock by Rev L E. Saville and Rev. Sherman Markley amid a setting of pine, ferns and rhododendron.

Traditional wedding music was played by Miss Annette Eye, of Marlinton, who accompanied Miss Debra Sparks, sister of the groom, as she sang "Whither Thou Goest," "O Perfect Love," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of Chantilly lace over peau de soie. The molded bodice was enriched with embossed self fabric bands and scroll designs. The gown was

Ivan Withers was named to the All State Football Team of the West Virginia Sportswriters Association, as announced December 20. This was a singular honor—accorded with big headlines—as he was the only boy named from the southern section of the State on the first team. Ivan, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Withers, Sr., is again turning in an outstanding performance on the basket ball court, being high scorer in several games.

Also from the unbeaten Copperheads, named to second team, was Mike Cain, back, and receiving honorable mention were Ronnie Carpenter and Teddy Dunbrack, backs.

Denmar

One of the recommendations of Governor Arch Moore's Task Force, reported last week, was that Denmar Hospital be discontinued as a state hospital and patients be transferred to Pinecrest. They suggested that it be disposed of for use as a "local community general medical facility."

As far as we can learn this can be carried out by the Governor at his pleasure by executive order without going to the Legislature.

Denmar Hospital employs close to 250 persons with probably the biggest payroll in the county, about $60,000 a month, over $700,000 a year. It has proved valuable as a home for many of our senior citizens. Its remote location and our low population would seem to limit the possibilities of its use as a general hospital.

We would urge concerted action by our citizens and legislators to retain this valuable asset.

Dam

In response to a request to the Department of Natural Resources, the follow statement was received in regard to the Corps of Engineers' plan for dams:

The Kanawha Basin Coordinating Committee, in review of the plans for the Greenbrier River at its meeting in Princeton, June 24, 25, voted in favor of the off—main stem Greenbrier River Plan, the proposal for impoundments for the tributaries of the Greenbrier rather than the main stem. The present proposals include Knapps Creek, Deer Creek, East Fork of Greenbrier River and Buffalo Creek on Elk River

This plan was favored by the committee over other proposals for a dam at site 87 on the main stem of the Greenbrier (above Marlinton).

The members of the Kanawha Basin Coordinating Committee are:

The National Park Service,
Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife
Bureau of Outdoor Recreation
Federal Water Pollution Control Association
The Federal Power Companies
The State of North Carolina
The State of Virginia
The Soil Conservation Service
The Army Corps of Engineers
The State of West Virginia represented by the Department of Natural Resources
Bureau of Mines

The Department of Natural Resources favored the off-main stem proposal.

It will probably be another year before the complete report is presented to Congress.

We were unable to find out the extent of coverage of these proposed impoundments as the exact plans have not been presented yet. Public hearings will have to be held.

We would oppose any Deer Creek impoundment that would threaten Green Bank and any Observatory installations and we would oppose a Knapps Creek Dam because of the growing value of this highway corridor, both to the new school and the Rimel road to the Interstate, and the elimination of the agricultural valley.

Driving at these times becomes rather hazardous, yet it is intriguing to glide through the mist and feel as though the sky is within reach.

Backpackers and hikers find this road a convenient entrance to several trails in the area. The major trails are the Forks of Cranberry Trail and the North-South Trail. The trail to the Forks of Cranberry can be entered about five miles out the scenic highway from Route 39. The entrance to the North-South Trail is just beyond the second overlook. Both trails are on the west side of the road and are well marked. The latter trail runs along the ridge dividing the Cranberry and Williams Rivers and terminates at Red Oak Knob Fire Tower near the Cranberry Campground.

The future of the Highland Scenic Highway appears rather vague at present. It is not certain when the road will reach its destination, which is Gormania, or when the overlooks and roadside picnic areas will be completed. It is certain, though, that the scenic highway will reveal the magnificent countryside of this area to thousands of Americans.

Dak To, Vietnam (AHTNC) —The enemy ambush was well planned but it didn't work. Army Specialist Four Danny A. Sheets, of Green Bank, and his comrades got there too fast.

Spec. 4 Sheets, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville W. Sheets, of Green Bank, is a mechanic assigned with Headquarters Company, 299th Engineer Battalion of the 937th Engineer Group.

The incident occurred recently near Dak To, Vietnam, when a mine-sweeping team from the battalion base camp was cut off and pinned down by a strong force of the North Vietnamese Army. A call went out to the base headquarters for assistance.

The engineers—clerks, mechanics, carpenters, and truck drivers—grabbed their weapons and became combat infantrymen. Within 20 minutes after the communists had sprung their trap, they were at the scene of battle.

After a sharp fire fight, lasting more than an hour, the hostile troops had enough. They broke contact and fled to the hills. Later, a sweep of the area indicated the aggressors

X-Rays

The Pocahontas County Health Department has announced that a mobile X-ray unit will be in Pocahontas County on July 22, 23, and 24, and will operate under the sponsorship of the local health department and the Pocahontas County Tuberculosis Association.

If tuberculosis and lung cancer are to be cured it is important that these diseases are found as early as possible in their course. If we are to prevent new cases of tuberculosis, we must find the existing ones, get them under proper treatment and keep them from giving their disease to their children and other people.

Each and every person working in public eating and drinking places is required to have a chest X-ray before he or she starts working the first time and then every two years there after. This includes managers, cooks, dishwashers, and waitresses whether they work full time or only part time. Once a food handler has had a chest X-ray it is his responsibility to furnish proof and a report to the health department on the findings.

All people who work in dairies and dairy plants need initial chest X-rays and then every two years. All school teachers, school bus drivers and school janitors are urged to get chest X-rays while the mobile unit is available.

It is now considered particularly important that people in the older age groups have frequent chest X-rays since tuberculosis is now found most often in this age group, and because lung cancer occurs most often after the age of 40. If these diseases are found early, they usually may be cured by modern medicine and surgery.

Anyone 17 years of age or older may get a chest X-ray at the mobile unit. The schedule is as follows:

July 22 Durbin—10-1	2-4
July 23 Marlinton 10-12 and 5-7	1-4
July 24 Marlinton 10-12	1-4

The Craigs Visit Winterburn

Visiting the area June 19 and 20 were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Craig, of Clarksburg, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Craig, Longview, Texas and Mrs. A. N. Warner, of Titusville, Pennsylvania.

The Craigs first came to Pocahontas in 1904. George Craig and Sons, of Philadelphia, purchased 13,000 acres of timber land on the East Fork of the Greenbrier River, six miles above Durbin. The tract was estimated to contain 165 million board feet of hemlock and 20 million feet of hardwood. They put in a sawmill and a planing mill, and here they built the town of Winterburn, naming it for a town in Pennsylvania, where they had previously operated a mill.

Winterburn consisted of about forty dwellings, a boarding house, a store and office, a church which was built for the people and turned over to them

To transport logs to the mill some thirty miles of railroad was built. This was held to a maximum grade of 4 per cent. The railroad branch that ran four and one half miles up Little River to the property line on the headwater of that stream, was used jointly by Craigs and the Dunlevie Lumber Company for hauling logs to their mill at Dunlevie, later to be known as Thornwood.

The timber on the original 13 thousand acre tract lasted until 1915. For the next three years of operation the timber came from some 5000 acres owned by Clark and McCullough, located on the north side of the Greenbrier River, running from near the headwaters to a point one mile below Thornwood.

Gifford Pinchot, the first head of the U. S. Forest Service, George Craig, president of Craig and Sons, became convinced that the future industry in West Virginia was dependent on a planned policy of reforestation and control of forest fires. A young German forester by the name of Max Rothkugel was employed by Craig and Sons as company forester.

European Larch seed was obtained from the Tyrolean Mountains of Austria and on what is known today as the Rothkugel Plantation, which is designated by a marker on Route 28 in what was once the town of Winterburn.

Several miles of fire trails were cleared to provide access to the more remote areas and a fire tower was manned daily during fire season at Smoke Camp Knob. The fire tower consisted of a platform built in a high tree; in years to come the United States Forest Service replaced this with a modern steel structure.

The last log was cut at the mill in 1918. Today there are only two of the Winterburn houses left. The bottom land which once knew the mills in operation, the daily trains, the hundreds who lived and worked there, the company store, the church, the activity of a mill town in its hey-day, knows them no more. Cows graze on ground once covered with stacks of lumber, corn fields grow and hay is mowed in fields once laced with railroad track, their pattern showing when the fields are plowed and the black cinders are once more turned up.

Comprehensive Planning Program

Phase One of Pocahontas County's Comprehensive Planning Program has been completed. This Phase One report—research, survey and analysis— is the resuslt of two years of work by the Planning and Zoning Commission and Roy F. Weston, Environmental Scientists and Engineers, West Chester, Pennsylvania, under the County Court, Marlinton Town Council, and West Virginia Department of Commerce. This Phase One report has been published and is a volume about an inch thick, with all kinds of information, maps, graphs, projected population, etc.

Phase Two, now being worked on, will use this basic information and analysis in planning ahead for the next twenty years. Phase Three will be putting plans and programs into effect. These reports on Pocahontas County contain an enormous amount of material about our County. We want them to be used. It would be costly to mail many. They are here at the Pocahontas Times Office in Marlinton. Many officials, etc., will have need of these and a copy is here for you. Everyone should see this study and copies are here to loan for your personal study.

Fall officially arrives Septem-

said Commander Kenney of Post 4595 in discussing the annual script-writing contest contest conducted by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Some of the fringe benefits, according to Commander Kenney, are increased self confidence, greater poise, the ability to communicate and valuable practice in expressing ideas clearly. For the state winners, there is also the broadening experience of a five-day tour of Washington, D. C. and the chance of making lasting friendships among the other winners.

In the eight years that the Veterans of Foreign Wars has been sole sponsor of the Voice of America Contest, more than 1,500,000 high school students have participated. Entrants must write and then tape-record a three-to-five minute broadcast script expressing their personal views on freedom. From among the state winners, five national winners, are chosen to receive a total of $13,000 in scholarships.

"One of the greatest benefits to young people who take part in the contest, is that through reflecting seriously on freedom, they gain a better appreciation of their heritage of freedom," Commander Kenney said.

MHS School News

Because of the lack of parking space at Marlinton High School, and the responsibility of the school for students, pupils are not encouraged to drive cars to school. However, special written arrangements may be made by parents for students to drive in cases where it may be necessary. If you request that your child be allowed to drive an automobile to school, it must be clearly understood that other students attending Marlinton Public Schools will not be permitted to ride in a private car, unless parental request is made in advance.

Students riding buses to school must return home by bus, unless advance written request by parent is approved by the principal or assistant principal.

If parents desire their child to drive an automobile to school a permission blank is available at the school

Weddings

Puffenbarger-:-Gragg

Miss Betty Jeanne Gragg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Gragg, of Durbin, became the bride of John L. Puffenbarger, son of Mrs. Frank O. Puffenbarger, of Fairmont, and the late Mr. Puffenbarger, in a double ring ceremony performed Sunday afternoon, July 13, 1969, at four o'clock, at the Durbin Church of the Brethren.

The Reverend David Rittenhouse, church pastor, officiated before an altar flanked with seven branch candelabra and an arrangement of white gladioli and mums.

Mrs. Robert Kincaid, of Rand, presented traditional wedding music and accompanied her father, M. M. Parsons, of Dixie, who sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of silk organza over peau de soie featuring Alencon lace trim. The gown was designed with an empire waistline, lowered round neckline, elbow length sleeves, and a detachable train. Her fingertip veil of pure silk bridal illusion was attached to a headpiece of teardrop pearls and silk illusion. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of pink and white roses, white mums, and tiger lilies.

Mrs. Ben Gragg, of Moorefield, sister-in-law of the bride, served as matron-of-honor

Camp Horseshoe

David Sterling Gum, Fred Allen Pritt and Rose Marie Varner will attend Camp Horseshoe, Parsons, for a two week camping experience, July 27—August 9. These children were selected by the Pocahontas County Easter Seal Society and all expenses will be paid by the Society.

Camp Horseshoe is attended by physically handicapped boys and girls between the ages of 7 and 18. For 20 years the State Division of Crippled Children's Services has referred the majority of children who attend Camp Horseshoe; however, any county society or committee may sponsor a child for this camp.

David, 10, and Fred, 9, are return campers at Camp Horseshoe and in the past they have enjoyed organized activities directed by skilled counselors and supervised by a medical staff. Rose Marie, 9, daughter of Mrs. Joyce Varner, of Durbin, is attending camp for the first time.

These children will be accompanied by Mrs. Sterling Gum, of Bartow.

How to Raise Delinquents

Begin with infancy to give the child everything he wants; in this way he will grow up to believe the world owes him a living.

When he picks up bad words, laugh at him; this will make him think he is cute. It will also encourage him to pick up cuter phrases that will blow off the top of your head later.

Never give him any spiritual training. Wait until he is 21 and then let him decide for himself.

Avoid use of the word wrong. It may develop a guilt complex. This will condition him to believe later, when he is arrested for stealing a car, that society is against him and he is being persecuted.

Pick up every thing they leave lying around—books, shoes, and clothes. Do every thing for him so that he will be experienced in throwing all responsibility on others.

shoes, and clothes. Do every thing for him so that he will be experienced in throwing all responsibility on others.

Let him read any printed matter he can get his hand on. Be careful that the silverware and glasses are sterilized, but let his mind feast on garbage.

Quarrel frequently in the presence of your children. In this way they will not be too shocked when the home is broken up later.

Give a child all the spending money he wants. Never let him earn his own. Why should he have things as tough as you had them?

Satisfy his every craving for food, drink and comfort. See that every sensual desire is gratified. Denial may lead to harmful frustration.

Take his part against neighbors, teachers, policemen. They are prejudiced against your child.

When he gets into real trouble, apologize for yourself by saying, "I never could do any thing with him."

Prepare for a life of grief. You will be likely to have it.

Technical Sergeant Hershel A. Mullens, son of Mr. and Mrs Audrey Mullens, Frost, has graduated from the U. S. Air Force Senior Noncommissioned Officer Academy at Barksdale, AFB, Louisiana.

Sergeant Mullens, who received advanced military training, is a maintenance scheduler at Ramey AFB, P. R., in a unit of Strategic Air Command.

The sergeant attended Marlinton High School. His wife, Peggy, is the daughter of Mrs. Betty Browning, Reynoldsburg, Ohio.

Mrs. Alvirgia Simmons and Sergeant and Mrs. Harry H. Tyree, of Arlington, Virginia, stopped recently in Marlinton to transact some business while on their way to Elkins to complete some other business. They visited Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Nelson, at Valley Bend, and while spending a couple of days in the Elkins area, they visited with Mr. and Mrs. Jesse P. Hannah, and Mrs. Frank Arnott, in Junior. They were impressed by the beauty of the forests and countryside, as the leaves were beginning to take on their beautiful autumn shades of red and yellow; such natural beauty cannot easily be found anywhere except in the hills of West Virginia, they agreed.

Green Bank Homecoming

Green Bank and Marlinton football fans will see the final bout between their two favorite teams at Green Bank High School's Homecoming events September 27, at 2 p. m. Although football fans have seen some fine games between the "Golden Eagles" and the "Copperheads," this should be a memorial event when the County rivals face each other in their final contest.

Beginning at one o'clock, the Green Bank High School Marching Band, under the direction of Miss Linda Cassell, will present a special pre-game show entitled "Salute to Alumni" Immediately following this show, the high school bands from Marlinton and Hillsboro will join the Green Bank band in a colorful presentation honoring the past, present and future of education in Pocahontas County. This should be a most interesting and spectacular presentation. Plan to be on hand to see and hear the future Pocahontas County High School Band.

Forestry Money

Monongahela National Forest Supervisor F. A. "Tony" Dorrell reported record timber harvest during the fiscal year which just ended. The harvest of 41,573,890 board feet of sawtimber and other products reflects the increased productivity of the National Forest resulting from 30 years of protection and management.

Receipts from stumpage for the above harvest totaled $720,132. Other receipts from mineral royalties, grazing, special use and recreation use fees totaled $132,136. Twenty-five per cent of the total receipts of $850,268 is distributed to the Counties in lieu of taxes in proportion to the area of National Forest land in each County. Returns to the Counties totaled $218,532.39 from the three National Forests which have land in West Virginia. The returns from Monongahela Forest are:

Telephone Company

Richard Dombrosky, Manager of Telephone Utilities of West Virginia, says he is disappointed by the order of the West Virginia Public Service Commission concerning the increase in telephone rates in Marlinton, Arbovale, Frankford and Hillsboro. Under the Commission's order, all business rates for main stations will be increased by 45 cents a month while all residence rates will be increased 35 cents as contrasted with the $1.00 monthly increase for bo h services originally proposed by the Telephone Company.

He had expected, with the proposed Telephone Company increase, to effect many service improvements in these localities by reducing the number of parties on multi party lines. The substantially smaller increase granted by the Commission will necessitate curtailing that program because many of the planned capital expenditures for additional facilities will now have to be deferred. He expressed confidence, however, that the maximum improvements would be achieved within the confines of the curtailed capital expenditures budget.

He also stated that the subscribers will be receiving credits

Last Buffalo?

We had an interesting visitor recently who was looking for a clipping from the Pocahontas Times about the last buffalo seen east of the Mississippi in the Greenbrier River at Spice Run in 1898. This was William McNeale Roderick, of West Palm Beach, Florida, who thinks the story was reprinted about 1955. If you have this clipping, let us have a copy, or at least the date of the paper.

Mr. Roderick's father came to Spice Run in the early 1900's on a fishing trip. He caught four bass on one cast and said that was the place for him, so he bought the Coulter log house and made it into a comfortable camp. He built Hillsboro High School and also Ronceverte High School.

Roads

The road on Flemings Hill was blacktopped by R. H. Burns and Company last week. Whitt Lowe reports that work working on Lobelia road, leveled Woodrow road and this will be topped, and a new road is being built to the new high school.

Pearl Buck Birthplace

The annual meeting of the Pearl F. Buck Birthplace Foundation was held in Clarksburg Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Delmas Miller, of Morgantown, will be president again the coming year. Robert Martens, architect, showed pictures, sketches and other results of research and he is to meet next month for some definite p'ans with Dr. Frederick Nichol, head of the Department of Architecture at the University of Virginia and an authority on restorations. The house was completely paid for this spring, mostly by the West Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Edward Rexrode is a director of the Foundation and was in attendance. She was accompanied by Mr. Rexrode. Mrs. Jane Price Sharp and William McNeel also attended this meeting.

Flood

While Pocahontas' woes were mild compared to other areas, we did have some flooding.

The basement walls of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wanless, above Minnehaha Springs, collapsed from high water; part of the basement of a new home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Beale, on Drennen Ridge above Campbelltown, collapsed due to the heavy rain on soft dirt. Chris Ryder lost 18 sheep in Knapps Creek. Cars, basements and some businesses were flooded in Marlinton. Some homes were hit in the Lobelia area.

Watoga Park was washed badly in places; the lake rose three feet with water pouring over the spillway.

Some of the Marlinton firemen went to Buena Vista Saturday and Sunday to help search for missing victims of the flood. This week some will return to help clean up. They report the destruction almost unbelievable.

SCHOOL BOND PASSES!

Pocahontas voters Tuesday approved the School Bond Issue to build a consolidated high school with a vote of 2570 for and 1166 against, a favorable percentage of sixty-eight and seven-tenths percent. This is a good majority and shows unusual support for a first vote. After staying up all night to hear the results, Superintendent Cassell thanks the people for their support and will have more to say next week.

Hominy Falls

John Moore, Jr., of Buckeye, and Joe Fitzwater, of Rupert, were two of six men who miraculously survived the mine disaster at Hominy Falls and were brought out last Thursday. Fifteen men had been rescued earlier and four of the remaining ten were found dead, but the six men survived ten days —seven days without food— in a small room next to the scene of the water breakthrough. Junior was able to return home to his thankful family and community on Sunday, after a few days in the hospital at Richwood. He was credited with wise leadership during the long entrapment underground.

Pioneers Days

Election is over and it is now time to focus attention on the next big event—Pioneer Days, July 12, 13, 14. The event was highly successful last year and should be even more so this year. Harvey Galford, who had charge of last year's parade, was pressed into the chairmanship of this year's events and has been working hard. This is a County promotion and will take lots of ideas and lots of work. Offer your ideas, labor and enthusiasm. The purpose is to make history live.

Attractions being planned are Miss Pocahontas Pageant on Thursday night, a Style Show, going back over a hundred years, on Friday night, Mountain Rifle shooting match, wood chopping and sawing contest, music contest, art show, crafts demonstrations, the big parade Saturday afternoon at 2 with nine trophies in three classes: horse and rider, wagon or carriage and horses or oxen, and walking entries; big square dance Saturday night, horse show Sunday afternoon in Hill's field at lower end of Third Avenue (you can sponsor a special class for $20). The stage coach will be back and an extra supply of good old fashioned food is being planned.

If you have rooms available for rent during this time, please list them with Mrs. Mary Godwin.

The next meeting will be at the Museum on Tuesday, June 4, at 8 p. m. Come and bring your enthusiasm.

Mrs. Beatrice Gladwell, Miss Sharla Gladwell, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wooddell, Harry Wanless, Stanley McNeill, Bill Harper and Bus Long attended a working session at Davis and Elkins College, Saturday afternoon with Gubernatorial Candidate Arch Moore and other state

Panthers

Dan Canter, assistant chief of the Game and Fish Division, Department of Natural Resources, writes about mountain lions. Here or Gone, in the May issue of Outdoors West Virginia. He reports a small cougar, 48 pounds was bagged in Pennsylvania last year and a larger cat, estimated to be eight feet long and weighing up to 200 pounds, escaped. It is said not more than 100 survive in eastern North America, exclusive of Florida. He wants to protect any that may be left.

After reading this article, see what came in the mail:

Are Panthers Coming Back

I have heard my parents tell stories of panthers in the days gone by. How panthers would sometimes follow people at night, usually keeping a few yards behind the person they were following; then when the person stopped because they thought they heard something following them, the panther would stand still but would pat its tail on the leaves. I imagine this would give anyone quite a scare.

There was also the story about a man riding his horse on a road through a thickly wooded area. As he passed under a limb overhanging the road a panther jumped from the limb at the man but missed him and instead the panther's claw raked over the horses hip leaving deep cuts which probably was a good topic of conversation for quite a time.

Lately several people in the Black Mountain area have seen animals which they think are panthers. (The older people would probably know for sure if they saw a panther but the younger generation is not used to seeing panthers running around loose.) Some people also have lambs missing and think that it could very well be a panther taking the lambs if there is really any in this section of the country.

Sincerely
Allie Smith

Boys and Girls in Service

U. S. Army, Vietnam (AHTNG)—Army Specialist Four Gary B. Phillips, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Phillips, Route 1, Marlinton, was assigned to the 9th Infantry Division in Vietnam, May 3.

The Army has written a story about a remarkable non-commissioned officer, who has won the respect of both his men and his commanders in Vietnam.

He is First Sergeant Edmund R. Funkhouser, of Mt. Jackson, until recently topkick of a company in the 1st Air Cavalry. He's now in a back zone job.

From a place it calls "Landing Zone Jane," the Army writes:

"Funkhouser was always out in the boondocks, climbing the hills with his troops." Clearly he enjoyed it. Though alert and cautious, he always seemed to have a good time. He carried a supply of C-ration coffee and any rest break was turned into a coffee session.

He left the field periodically for short trips to the rear. He said he had to "beat the clerks over the head" and make sure things were running smoothly from that end.

Frequently he would summon his company clerk to the field and they would find a quiet spot, on a mound of dirt or in a foxhole, and "take care of the paper work."

"In his backpack Sergeant Funkhouser toted a small file to remind him of such things as the dates men were due for rest and recovery leave."

Recently Funkhouser was made first sergeant for battalion headquarters company, which removed him from the field.

"I miss the troops, the smoking and joking," he said. "To me it was a challenge to be out there and work directly with the men."

Sergeant Funkhouser was drafted in 1951 and went into the Korean War as a corporal. He emerged as an acting platoon leader.

"After the war I decided I would stay in the Army a little while longer," he said. "That was 17 years ago and I'm still here."

The First Annual Braxton County Regatta will be held at the Bee Run Boat Docks on the Sutton Lake, June 30, at 1:00 p. m., with the alternate date July 4.

This will be a family pleasure craft boat race with the entry fee of $2.00. There will be races for all makes and classes of boats with trophies being awarded for each race.

Anyone desiring information concerning the race or wishing to enter may contact members of the Mid-State Boat Club or the Braxton County Jaycees at Les Williams Marina, Braxton Motor Company, or Thomas Electric in Sutton.

Hominy Falls

When we went to hear Junior Moore tell of his harrowing experience underground, he was soaking his feet to relieve the arthritis all six men had developed. Otherwise he looked to be in good shape; however, the doctor had said no to an invitation from Governor Smith to a prayer breakfast in Charleston Tuesday.

Junior, who traveled 110 miles each day from Buckeye to the mine, began work at 7 a m., on Monday, May 6, after being off with the flu for a week. He came out 10 days lacking three hours later.

Entering the drift mouth, the main No 1 belt goes 1000 feet; then at a right angle, the south main belt goes 1250 feet; another right angle, making a square U, and 1732 feet to workings of that day. No.1 room to the left was the farthest room; here were Junior, Joe Fitzwater, electrician, and Jennings Lilly; Larry Lynch was getting a pan to bring in the No.1 room; Edward Scarbro was another one. Renick McClung was supposed to be in another room but had come down for pins and they found him drowned. No. 2 room, (where the group stayed) had a broken down miner. No. 3 room, coming back towards the south main corridor, was where the mechanical miner cut through into an old abandoned mine at 20 minutes before 10 and water poured through with a force that moved the 16 ton miner 25 feet. Junior compared it to opening a gate on the Summersville Dam; it sounded like a jet engine, rushing and spraying water. They estimated that about 300 acres of water came through and the officials think they pumped thirty-three million gallons out.

Four men were working in this No. 3 room: E. Walkup, the operator, who was killed; C. Dodd, miner helper on the left side, who washed a ways and drowned; W. Burdette, on the right side, was washed out in a corridor and badly mashed and killed; and Gene Martin, who was washed to the No 2 room and rescued by the others.

Now the six started out but the power line was blowing up room; they found 3 dinner buck ets but one was under water. They had four sandwiches, two doughnuts, three candy bars, two quarts of water and a pint of milk. They ate the last jelly sandwich Thursday. Junior said he felt a little hungry the second day but never had hunger pains. There was always plenty of water. He weighed 149 1-4 when he got out and he usually weighs 178-180.

They put brattice cloth (fire resistant burlap) around the openings and that saved the air. Then they erected what they called the tent, an oval enclosure with timbers and three thicknesses of brattice cloth in this 34 inches high room.

They always went two at a time to check the water and used only one light. They still had two good lights when rescued.

Tuesday night the water fell eight inches; after that it raised a foot and a half. They were 75 feet from the water but only a foot or so above the level.

crawled down to the hole— now clear of water—but couldn't make them hear. Due to mapping mistakes, this hole luckily hadn't hit the intended No. 1 room; it would have relieved the air pocket and probably drowned them; another previous mapping error had caused the initial tragic break through.

On Monday the water was down low so they went 400 feet to the swag where the water was still to the roof. Joe Fitzwater passed out here, probably due to black damp, and they had to drag him back on a shovel.

Monday evening at 3:30 Martin filled the water jugs at the No. 3 room and Junior crawled down to the swag, came back the belt corridor and got a first aid kit; he saw one body at that time.

Tuesday they went to the swag and the water was still dropping but after that they stayed in the "tent" to save their energy.

Thursday morning at 12:30 a.m. they were all sitting up; they drank water and Larry over the weekend.

Lynch gave thanks to God for the water; they dozed off and at 5 after one they woke to hear two men talking—Roy Simmons and Kermit Stanley. They hollered at them, Roy hollered back. When he stuck his head through the "tent" they all hugged him. He went back for stretchers and help but they wanted none of that; they all crawled the 800 feet to a buggy. Simmons telephoned outside and Frank Davis called the families. Larry Lynch, Scarbro and Junior were in the first buggy and Fitzwater, Lilly and Gene Martin in the last buggy. They wanted to put them right in the ambulance but Lynch had said they would all put hands together and have prayer, so they waited for the others and the six joined together to thank God for the miracle.

They had coffee at the drift mouth, and then soup, cereal and black coffee at the hospital and reunion with their happy families.

Miss Linda Sue Hill, of Hillsboro High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Hill, has won the trip to the United Nations, sponsored by the Rebekah Lodges, with an examination and the following Essay:

To me as a teenager the United Nations is an association of independent states striving today for peace and security among all nations. The Preamble to the United Nations charter states that the people of the United Nations are determined to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war. By negotiating with other countries they are trying to prevent wars and trying to uphold the standards of living and human rights.

The United Nations is a war. By negotiating with other countries they are trying to prevent wars and trying to uphold the standards of living and human rights.

The United Nations is a World Peace Organization where disputes between nations can be solved peacefully and without warfare. The United Nations is devoted to settling many other problems besides national conflict. The Economic and Social Council is trying to improve the standards of living, health and education, and are promoting respect for human rights and freedoms throughout the world. The Trusteeship Council is striving to protect the interests of people who are in non-self-governing or trust areas and are trying to lead them to self-government and independence.

The United Nations is an association of independent natural states and was formed by the victorious nations of World War II. It is for the veterans of this and previous wars that every citizan of every country should promote the aims of the United Nations and try to keep the peace which this war won for them.

As the six organs of the United Nations work together to promote peace so should the countries, the state, and the people within them. The United Nations doesn't merely try to keep peace between nations, but it acts as a center in which to develop friendly relations among nations and the people of these nations. The goal of the United Nations is to promote Friendship, Love, and Truth in the nations of our world.

IMPORTANT

Grey M. Cassell, Superintendent of Schools, wishes to remind all parents of the compulsory immunization of school children. No child or person shall be admitted to school until he or she has been successfully immunized, or produces a certificate from a reputable physician showing that a successful immunization for smallpox, diphtheria, polio, measles, tetanus and whooping cough has been done or is impossible.

Mr. Cassell urges all parents who have children entering school this fall and who have not been immunized to contact the Pocahontas County Health Department or the family doctor and begin such immunization. Immunizations are furnished free of charge by the Health Department.

Pocahontas Belle

Mrs. Eleanor Howard McNeill, of Buckeye, has been selected as the "Belle of Pocahontas County" and will represent us at the Glenville Folk Festival, June 21, 22, and 23. As one of the Belles she will be among honored guests at a luncheon on Friday, June 21st, and many other activities portraying the life that once was common among the hills of West Virginia.

Mrs. McNeill was born in Rundelltown, Pennsylvania, April 4, 1896, the oldest daughter of Judson L. and Jennie B. Howard. She came to West Virginia with her family on November 4, 1904, and settled in Buckeye, where her father was engaged in the lumber business. She was educated in the county schools and taught at Watoga and Harter before her marriage to Lock Harrison McNeill on June 30, 1915. To this union eight children were born. One little girl died at the age of two and a son lost his life in World War II. In 1940 her husband passed away suddenly, leaving her a family of 6 to rear.

Interested in all community affairs and always busy crocheting, embroidering, sewing, listening to music, playing the piano, writing poetry or keeping up the family correspondence, she lives a very full life.

Wagon Trains

By Billy Hill (pen name)

In this fast moving jet age, the race to reach the moon, cars built to do 120 miles per hour on highways with 50 and 60 mile limits, we seldom if ever think of the modes of travel and transportation of yesteryear. Few people now living were a part of the scene when the horse and wagons slogging through axle deep mud at the rate of 5 or 6 miles in a long day, were a way of life and the only means of transportation in isolated areas such as the Little Levels of these merchants owned their own freighting outfits but had to hire additional wagons from the farmers of the area. All "store boughten" goods had to be hauled by wagon from the nearest railhead, which was Ronceverte, roughly, and I do mean roughly, 40 miles to the south. The bulk of the hauling was done in the summer and fall when the road had a bottom, but seasonal goods made it necessary to do do much of it in the spring. Many farmers in the area made the trip to bring back needed material and goods for their own and neighbor's use. Now in dead of winter or late spring, there was a planned trip—planned for the benefit of all. While the outfits made the down trip either singly or two's and three's, they made it a point to return as a caravan or wagon train. All outfits consisted of at least four horses, some had six. The four horse teams invariably bogged down in the more than ankle deep mud holes, and it took from six to eight horses to pull them out.... unless "Uncle John Henry" was in the train with his six big oxen which could pull any thing loose at both ends. Going down empty, except for wool, furs, chestnuts, ginseng, beeswax, etc. in season, and occasionally a load of eggs. Eggs were 10 cents a dozen and a large fat hen was a quarter if you could find a buyer. Usually the other teamsters would pass Old Uncle John and yell "get horses," but often times he would have to pull the same guys out on the

In this fast moving jet age, the race to reach the moon, cars built to do 120 miles per hour on highways with 50 and 60 mile limits, we seldom if ever think of the modes of travel and transportation of yesteryear. Few people now living were a part of the scene when the horse and wagons slogging through axle deep mud at the rate of 5 or 6 miles in a long day, were a way of life and the only means of transportation in isolated areas such as the Little Levels around 1900 and before.

The story of the horse and wagon, of wagon trains, is the story of our civilization. Writers have glamorized the wagon trains of the "Old West," The Oregon Trail, The Chisolm Trail, with an aura of romance which it is doubtful they ever enjoyed.

We are concerned, in this article, with the wagon trains right here in our own Pocahontas County.

About 1900 the C&O Rail-Road was pushing its two "steel snakes" up the crooked old Greenbrier from Whitcomb to Winterburn, a distance of some 97 miles. The scars of battle were still most vivid on the Droop Mountain battle field, where the cannon balls of only thirty five years before had left gaunt tree snags as grim reminders of this country's most destructive conflict. Local nimrods were chopping Minie balls from the downed tree trunks and remolding them into rifle balls. I still have one of these Minie balls, also two still wrapped in the original brown paper, never fired. The scream of panthers was a common sound in the night on Viney Mountain and surrounding hills.

Going back still further, the Droop Mountain battle field was the site of a large concentration of Indians, who, as the story goes, burned off what is now the Little Levels area to attract game. On one occasion my brother and I picked up Usually the other teamsters would pass Old Uncle John and yell "get horses," but often times he would have to pull the same guys out on the return trip. Uncle John Henry (never heard any other name for him) was an ex-slave, who made his home with Wash Hill. He was at least seven feet tall and no shoes were made to fit him. Either Mr. Curry or Henry Adkison, the two shoemakers there, would make his shoes, which he seldom wore. He would wrap his feet in so many rags and gunny sacks that every time he made a track it looked like a bale of hay had up set. There was a story going the rounds about that time that a teamster came up to one of the mud holes and saw a man's head sticking out. He stopped his team and asked the guy "Is that the depth of the mud?" the man answered "Yep," so the wagoner drove into the edge and went down. He struggled upon the wagon seat and said "Thought you said....."No" the other said, I'm on horseback" Some told he was on top of a load of hay.

From time to time you hear older people comment about the seasons. Such as "By Grannies, you young whipper snappers don't know what winter is, why, I mind....." Well, I mind when these wagon trains would make the trip in dead of winter with bob sleds instead of wagons. They would put wagon bodies with high side boards on and take off on the trip that often took more than a week to make. I only remember one instance when a freak thaw stranded them. On one occasion my brother and I picked up more than a gallon of arrow heads in a few hours on what is now the Droop Mountain State Park, and there was a cave nearby that had evidently been used as a factory by the Indians to make arrowheads, spearheads and tommyhawks; there were large quantities of flint chips, imperfect arrowheads, etc. also chunks of flint stones. This was told to me by the Cutlip family who lived nearby. Pardon the digression. I got "carried away" by the Indians.

At this time, around 1900, there were three merchants in Hillsboro— Sidney J. Payne, the largest, Ed Holt and Edmond Beard. Nick Brown ran Mill Point's only store. Most the rounds about that time that a teamster came up to one of the mud holes and saw a man's head sticking out. John L. Mannon and Wilford Ray, of Huntington, were camping at Seebert last weekend. On Friday they came upon a rattle snake, dead cold, not making a move; they soon made a good snake out of him; he measured 32 inches, had 10 rattlers and a button. Mr. Ray took the rattlers for a souvenir and as proof to his fellow workers of the first snake he had killed in West Virginia.

Bear Meeting

A meeting to discuss permitted bear hunting will be held in Marlinton on Monday, October 7, it was announced by the Department of Natural Resources. The meeting will begin at 7:00 p. m. and will be moderated by Natural Resources Director T. R. Samsell in the Marlinton High School Gymnasium.

Director Samsell said all sportsmen, landowners and interested public are invited to attend and express their views.

Schools

M. B. Dilley, President of the Board of Education, and Grey M. Cassell, Superintendent of Schools, will go to New York on October 17, to sign the $1,195,000 School Bonds over to the bonding firm of Baker, Watts and Company of Baltimore, Maryland.

The signing of the bonds must be done in person by the President of the Board and the Superintendent of Schools with a representative of the Attorney General's Office of The State of West Virginia present. The Board's bonding attorney, Eugene Eason, from Clarksburg, will also be present.

The interest rate of 4.26 per cent on the bonds will mean a savings of more than $135,000 to the taxpayers of Pocahontas County over the next twelve years.

The contract for the school cannot be let until the bonds are signed and the mechanical and electrical drawings are completed by the engineer. The mechanical and electrical

The mechanical and electrical drawings will take approximately four to six weeks for completion.

The school site is being cleared and will speed-up construction when the contractor takes over the job. There is a good possibility of getting the foundation in before bad weather but the majority of construction will not take place until spring. We would like to be in the new facility by next fall, and would have preferred it this school term, but if it is not ready by September, 1969, let us do the best we can until the school is completed.

In constructing a project of this size it takes time to avoid costly mistakes. The Board of Education is trying its level best to make decisions which will benefit future generations. These decisions are not easy to make and we again invite the public to Board meetings. The new school building program is a big investment by all of the people in Pocahontas County and we are trying our best to reach the goal of providing good facilities for our boys and girls but remember there has not been a building program for many years in Pocahontas County and now that we are on the move, please be patient!

Boys and Girls in Service

Master Sergeant Sandy C. Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Rose, of Marlinton, and a member of the 4756th Field Maintenance Squadron at Tyndall Air Force Base, Florida, has been awarded the Air Force Commendation Medal for meritorius service while assigned to units in the Republic of South Viet Nam and Thailand. He and three other men received the medals presented by Colonel James L. Price, Weapons Center Commander.

The Commendation Medal is awarded to those individuals showing outstanding professional skill and initiative in aiding the success of the Air Force mission.

His wife is the former Betty Hayslett. They have three grown children.

Water Shortage

The Town of Durbin has been experiencing a critical water shortage. For about a month the town water has been turned off at night to accumulate for day usage. Water from an additional spring has been piped into the reservoir. The Frank Tannery is in its second period of shutting down operations due to lack of water.

The Town of Cass has no safe drinking water and is using river water for utility purposes. G. L. Dahmer says he has been in Cass 50 years and this is the first time he knows of Leatherbark Creek going dry.

The drought in the northern part of the county is more severe. Some people think the river is lower than in 1930.

Dam

We neglected to print that we recently learned from Director of Natural Resources T. R. Samsell that the date for the report on the proposed dams on the Greenbrier had been postponed from the original July 1 and he didn't know just when it would be presented to Congress or wha the final recommendation would be.

Pioneering in Old Pokey

A Railroad Comes to Marlinton

Oh, listen to the rumble,
Hear that awful roar,
To the top of old Cheat Mountain
From the Greenbrier's rocky shore
She's a-comin' around the mountain,
A belchin' smoke and steam
Hear that lonesome whistle
See that headlight gleam.

Yes, these were strange new sights and sounds in these diggins'. Many people in Pocahontas had never seen a railroad or a train.

The coming of the railroad brought many changes, some good—some bad. It was the end of an era of unhurried tranquility, a gracious leisurely way of life, and the beginning of a new era of stepped up, ac-way of life, and the beginning of a new era of stepped up activity—a wider range of travel and a changing economy.

The coming of the railroad tapped (and destroyed) the natural resources of timber in Pocahontas, coal in Randolph and Barbour Counties, and opened up the Eastern and Southern markets to these commodities.

Before and after the last log drive, I believe in 1899, things began to happen along the old Greenbrier River. The river not only served as a transportation route for timber, but also for passengers. Before the summer drouth reduced the river to a mere trickle when a thirsty mule could drink it dry, the business dignitaries of Marlinton would "float" trip to Ronceverte and a "rig" would meet them for the return trip by land, over what is now Route 219—the Seneca Trail.

Some of the passengers on these large boats were: Captain Smith (don't ask me how he came by the title), Jim Smith, his son, Walker Yeager, some of the Denning & Whiting Lumber people and others. They always made it to our place (Uncle George Clendenen's) the first night. I will

They always made it to our place (Uncle George Clendenen's) the first night. I will never forget one such occasion. Supper was called and they all left their wonderful smeliing lighted cigars by the fireplace. Well, I had to wait for second table—I never made it—and no breakfast next morning. "Nobody knew what was wrong with the horse."

There was much travel, up and down the river, mostly by foot, before the rails were laid, surveyors, right-of-way buyers, men who cleared the right-of way, graders and next the stone quarry crew. All the stone for bridge abutments and culverts (and there were many between Seebert and Winterburn) came from the stone quarry at Seebert. My first job was waterboy at this quarry. The stone masons came next—then at long last the day came when we heard the whistle of the work train far down the river.

The second great thrill of my life was the day Uncle George took me down to the railhead and I saw that beautiful locomotive, its air pump panting like a dog on a hot summer day—its jacket gleaming in the sun.

The engineer, the Rev. Mr. Sampson, with long flowing beard, mustache and snow white hair, was sitting on the bank watching the four huge colored men driving spikes and listening to their melodious songs—to the rhythm of their hammer blows. Who remembers the Rev. Sampson, engineer on the regular passenger train for many years? He came to Seebert on many Sundays and preached in the grove there. Who remembers the Rev. Sampson, engineer on the regular passenger train for many years? He came to Seebert on many Sundays and preached in the grove there. His fireman told a story about him cussing cattle on the track. You would hear a series of short toots on the whistle and you knew the Reverend had caught up with a cow again.

The first passenger train to come up the track, I believe was a free ride to all. Marlin ton was t e end of the road and I was sent on the train to the "big town" to bring back a big supply of groceries. These were also hauled in the baggage car free. Quite a few years later I hosteled engines at Cass and Durbin on this same old "two streaks of rust," and have outlived a part of the railroad itself. I have always loved railroads and love to Cass and Durbin on this same old "two streaks of rust," and have outlived a part of the railroad itself. I have always loved railroads and love to ride on trains, but it looks like the beginning of the end for them. Super highways, millions of automobiles, airplanes (passenger and cargo) are signing the deathknell of trains. Even the plush Vistadome, air conditioned trains like the El Capitan, the California Zephyrs, Super Chief, Capitol Limited and the C&O's FFV have had to curtail their facilities. Sometimes these trains, which were loaded to capacity in days gone by, have only a token of passengers. Once the main source of revenue of the railroads was the U. S. mail. Now, huge cargo planes from major cities fly mail on non-stop schedules from coast to coast. often getting there ahead of regular air mail. If you see a green sack of mail you know it is destined for one of these planes.

Ice Break-up and Log Drive

The two previous articles dealt with the wagon trains and cattle drives of Pocahontas County. The last one concerned cattle shipping from Seebert by rail. We go back now to the Greenbrier River before the railroad was built.

It was about 1897 or '98 that the writer went to stay with "Uncle George and Aunt Lou" Clendenen, who acted as my foster parents. There were only three families living directly on the river where the town of Seebert (named for Uncle George's ancestors) now stands: Uncle George's home and those of William Clendenen, and Aunt Sally Clendenen up at the mouth of Stamping Creek. I had never seen a river much less an ice break-up previous to that time. My first spring there, Uncle George had stashed away a huge pile of dry wood on the river bank, anticipating a night break-up, which was when it did happen.

Torrential rains for days had swollen the river to ice bursting capacity, and when it came Uncle George awakened me and we went to the river bank where he built up a huge fire. It was pouring rain down, with about the worst electrical storm I have ever seen. It was the biggest and most spectacular and scary show I had ever

Torrential rains for days had swollen the river to ice bursting capacity, and when it came Uncle George awakened me and we went to the river bank where he built up a huge fire. It was pouring rain down, with about the worst electrical storm I have ever seen. It was the biggest and most spectacular and scary show I had ever seen. Cakes of ice more than a foot thick, and large enough to build a small house on were "walking" on edge in this crash ing, grinding, maelstrom, grind ing trees and everything in their path into pulpwood. My greatest concern was that this awful thing would surely kill every horney chub in the river and thus finish my fishing for all time. It didn't.

After the ice was cleared out of the river and the days of rain that followed, the loggers all the way from Ronceverte started trekking up river to hire out for the log drive which they knew would follow. You could see them slogging through the pouring rain by one and twos. In about two days, if the river stayed at flood tide, you could see the first peeled hemlock logs (cut and peeled the previous spring) highballing down the river. By the second day the river was floating pretty full of logs, and as the logs increased in number one knew that the "Arks" (the floating lumber camps) were getting closer. That was my second big thrill, and I lost no time boarding the big cookhouse as soon as it was tied up at the old catrock in Seebert. The cook-house serv ed four big (and I Do mean big) meals a day. The cook-house served four big (and I Do mean big) meals a day. There were three "Arks", cookhouse, stable and blacksmith combined, and lobby-bunk house. They always tied up at Seebert over night. There was a long slough across the river where stray logs had to be hauled back into the river, and an island in the middle of the river where a big log jam always piled up. There was a crew of jam-breakers along, who did nothing else. I have watched them working down under a pile of logs twenty or twenty-five feet above them, picking, an inch or two at a time, the key log or logs that held all that huge pile of logs. When the jam let go, with a thundering roar, you never expected the poor devils to come out alive, but when the smoke cleared each one of them was riding a single log to the bunkhouse, where they stayed until another jam showed up.

Huge horses were used to haul the logs from the slough back into the river, and these horses were transported in large boats to and from the stable.

Yours truly is probably the only living "goof" who ever stowed away on a river "Ark." I practically lived on the cook-house, while it was tied up there, and begged them to take me along, and when they refused I stowed away on it one time. I practically lived on the cookhouse, while it was tied up there, and begged them to take me along, and when they refused I stowed away on it one time. It so happened that the flood tide was running out and the river was receding and we hadn't gone far until the ark ran on to a large rock that was wedged about the middle of the building. Well, you talk about excitement, the puncheon floor, made from hewn logs bulged up and let some water in and threatened to break completely through. The Ark teetered and swung there and the men assigned to "sail" the thing were frantic. I came out of hiding to see the excitement and they all but skinned me alive. One Letcher Simms, who lived near Seebert, took me in tow and, if it had broken up, would have swum out with me—I hope. All this was worth the licking I got when I got home.

Important Meeting Swimming Pool

All citizens of Marlinton and the surrounding area who are interested in a public swimming pool are asked to attend a public meeting on Friday evening, July 19, at 8:00 p. m. at the Court House. Events have been moving quickly and plans must be made within the next ten days to get this project underway.

Miss Pocahontas

Libby Graham, of Buckeye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay B. Graham, was selected as Miss Pocahontas 1968 from among sixteen contestants last Thursday. First and second runners-up were Kay Caplinger, of Cass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Caplinger, and Shelia Gay Curry, of Marlinton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Curry. Pictures next week.

Pioneer Days

There was plenty to do and to eat and everyone seemed to have a good time. After a few days' rest the many volunteer workers might even be a little enthusiastic about it.

There were more and varied programs this year. The Miss Pocahontas program was a lovely addition, the Styles of Yesteryear was outstandingly good, the Horse Show attracted many horses—and people—and the Sunday evening Hymn Sing choir was excellent, as was Rev. B. W. John's sermon. Many people think a County Hymn Sing ought to be held more often.

Mr. Barnhouse was a big attraction with his split wood shingles, Mrs. Russell K. Hannah brought maple sugar and syrup, Mrs. Lloyd Woods churned butter, Mrs. Humes made splitbottom chair seats; there are many more crafts which should have been demonstrated

Fred Trainer and his animals got a good reception, and the horseshoe pitching and woodchopping contests provided good watching. The mountain rifle shoot was more popular than ever and the music contest had more entries.

Mr. and Mrs. Clabe Kellison were again the oldest couple (combined ages) registered.

Local artists exhibiting were Miss Edith May, Mrs. William del Guidice, Bill Davis, Glenn Hefner, Tommy May, Ann McNeel, Si Sharp, Mrs. Mabel

Mr. and Mrs. Clabe Kellison were again the oldest couple (combined ages) registered.

Local artists exhibiting were Miss Edith May, Mrs. William del Guidice, Bill Davis, Glenn Hefner, Tommy May, Ann McNeel, Si Sharp, Mrs. Mabel Woods Nelson. These compared well with a much appreciated exhibit on loan from the Charleston Art Gallery. Another outside contribution was the Mountain State Story historical exhibit from the C&P Telephone Company.

The square dance was as popular as ever, as were the stage coach, surrey and wagon rides.

The parade may have been a little off from last year but there were more individuals entered. Miss West Virginia, Charlotte Warwick, and her family were here for the Parade

One of the nicest things this year were the merchants' window displays and they are to be commended for it.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Fisher, of Inwood, are visiting Miss Alice Waugh and visiting other friends and attending Pioneer Days activities.

Mrs. Ethel Milam, of Fallston, Maryland, was in this office last Friday, and attended the Pioneer Days.

Mr. and Mrs. John McKenney and daughter, Pam, of Xenia, Ohio, are visiting relatives and friends here a few days. They spent a few days

Our Challenge

AN UNCHURCHED POPULATION

We are told that at the end of every year in America "there are one million more unchurched people than when the year began." The population explosion accounts for some of this. We are concerned that new witness points shall be established to meet increasing spiritual need. At the beginning of 1966 the population of West Virginia was estimated to be 1,812,000. Approximately 1 1-4 millions of these are not affiliated with any church. There have been Southern Baptist churches in the State since the Convention was organized in 1845. In the 1860's most of the Baptist churches in West Virginia withdrew from the Southern Baptist Convention and later joined the Northern Baptist Convention when it was organized in 1907. There are now 55 churches and 14 chapels in the State affiliated with Southern Baptists. It will be the task of these churches to start others.

Schools

The principals and staff are now working on a curriculum study for the proposed centralized high school and we hope next week to have a list of subjects, number of teachers, etc. The Board will meet February 13 with architects, legal advisors and the like. They are moving as fast as possible to start a building program—planning problems keep popping up—as well as attend to other problems that arise. Mr. Cassell asked that we publish the fact the Board wants every citizen to feel welcome to come to Board meetings or ask questions at any time.

Letter

Opinion

As a lifelong citizen of Pocahontas County, I take this opportunity to express my desire for the passage of the proposed School Bond issue to be voted upon May 14. I think that the passage of this school bond is paramount to the future welfare of the people of our County, schools, churches, banks, farmers, business places, our hospital and the securing of and maintaining doctors to care for the health of our people.

I am aware that no one plan or proposition will or can contain all the features desirable to our people. However, I am convinced that one centralized high school in the County will benefit and meet the needs of the majority of our people. Furthermore, one centralized high school in the county can offer a wider curriculum which will enable the children of our county to enter better colleges and universities.

Since I have no children to attend school, I have no selfish motive in the passage of this issue. However I am very much interested in better schools for the children as well as the well being of the senior citizens.

I believe that we can better the condition of our County and its citizens by the passage of this bond issue. It is my belief that more people would be interested in locating in our county instead of the present tendency to leave the county. Some matters of importance at this time are being held in abeyance awaiting the results of the forthcoming election relative to the passage of the bond issue.

May we all look forward toward better schools and a more progressive county in which to live.

I am convinced that we can better our present situation by voting for this bond issue on May 14th.

Thanking you, I remain

Sincerely,
D. R. Hannah

State Road

A check with Guy Sharp at the State Road last week showed the following work:

Widening, taking off banks, and straightening Route 39 above Huntersville, filling in at the approach of Browns Mountain Road.

Planned improvements this summer include topping of the north entrance road to Watoga.

The Pocahontas Museum

On the beautiful bank of the Greenbrier
A stately old house stands,
During the day she is wide awake
For visitors to view the lands
That stretches toward green mountains
Full of mystery and fun for all
And from her lawn often rolls,
Old wagons, spring, summer and fall.

Within her hallowed walls
Are treasures of the past
And many ghostly footsteps
Seem to linger there and last
Pictures adorn her worn stairways
Like a necklace full of gems,
And as you gaze upon them
You almost hear the old time hymns.

So! welcome visitors everwhere
She loves to have you call
Our Pocahontas Museum, a place of pride
And wonderment to all.

Dear Friend of HECTOR,

It has been two months since I last wrote to you. During that time much has happened.

After a quiet cruise from Long Beach, we tied up in Pearl Harbor not far from the USS ARIZONA Memorial. This was not a stop for work purposes, but one for meetings with the staff of the Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Pacific Fleet, and the staff of the Commander, U. S. Service Forces, Pacific. It is under the latter command that HECTOR falls. When the meetings were finished, we sailed again—this time for the Orient.

While crossing the Pacific, a storm hit us that lasted for several days. However, it posed no real problem for HECTOR'S efficient crew.

On the twenty fourth of January, as we sailed into the harbor of Yokosuka, Japan, Mt. Fuji loomed majestically in the distance. It is hard to believe that just a few years ago this lovely country was at war with us. Today, Japan is one of our greatest allies in the Western Pacific.

this lovely country was at war with us. Today, Japan is one of our greatest allies in the Western Pacific.

Our orders called for us to stay until the middle of February, but the "Pueblo Incident" caused a quick modification of these orders. After only three days in Japan, we were sent South to further strengthen the Seventh Fleet's preparedness during the crisis.

We are now anchored in the harbor of Kaohsiung, Taiwan, fulfilling our mission of keeping other ships seaworthy. As of this date, we have worked on over 30 ships ranging in size from an aircraft carrier to an Army tug. Some have tied alongside, while others have either sent work to us or had our men go aboard them to work.

As an illustration of HECTOR'S versatility, we worked on the galley of one destroyer which necessitated feeding her crew in our mess decks. Although it meant more work for our already over-worked Commissarymen, they took the added work in stride—furthering HECTOR'S tradition of "We can do it, and do it right."

HECTOR has the reputation of never turning down a reason able request for work. Firmly believing in the adage, "The difficult you do immediately.

HECTOR has the reputation of never turning down a reasonable request for work. Firmly believing in the adage, "The difficult you do immediately, the impossible takes a little longer." Such was the case when we undertook the building of a ladder (i. e., a stairway) for one of the ships along side. Although a shipyard and five other repair facilities had refused the same request, the Shipfitters accepted and finished the job in less than a week. Examples of this type of willingness are endless as the commands that we have worked on will attest to.

Because our stay here has lasted longer than the stay in Japan, the crew has had a chance to take advantage of liberty call and see some of modern Free China. Several tours have been arranged by Slatyfork, W. Va.

Editor of Pocahontas Times:

I sincerely hope the voters of Pocahontas County will support the proposed School Bond issue.

I don't think it is necessary for me to defend public education because that is a moral responsibility of my elders, and I hope it will be evident by a positive attitude and positive action of our citizens this spring.

My age group will be adults of tomorrow, confronted with frightening problems of a complex world. The educated will be more apt in finding solutions.

Don't let the youth of Pocahontas County be found lacking!

Sincerely.

A penny tax was added on a package of cigarettes, the revenue from which (1.8 million a year), plus adjustments in the budget, will provide public school teachers a $320 a year salary increase.

Voters will decide in November on two proposed amendments. One would transfer the authority for preparing the budget to the Governor (Modern Budget Amendment). The Board of Public Works, of which the Governor is only one member, now prepares the budget.

The second amendment is the Roads Development Amendment. This proposes a $350 million bond issue to finance construction of the Appalachian System and other highways. The bonds would be amortized over a 25 year period and the legislature would be authorized to pass tax measures necessary for payment of principal and interest. The amendment would not restrict the amount of bonds that could be issued in any period of time, as does the existing $200 million bond issue which allows $20 million in bonds to be sold each year.

The 1968-69 general revenue budget represents only about 90% of authorized expenditures. It is increased $13,337,152 over the previous year. The State Road Fund will spend $199,288; the General Revenue Fund, $3,008,197; and the Special Revenue Fund, $77,265. The grand total of 1968-69 appropriations is $3,361,315. Other legislation included: Require state and national banks to pay interest on deposits of State funds; the Board of Public Works will designate depositories; permit law officers to administer chemical tests to persons suspected of drunken driving; require state officials to resign if they or certain

Why Build a High School?

We hear the questions asked every day Why should I have to pay extra money to pay for a county wide high school? My children are gone and left the county and are now on their own. Why worry? That is a very selfish attitude for us to feel that way.

Recently I talked with a School Board member of Greenbrier County where they have voted six times to raise money to build two high schools in that county. It finally passed, but if it had passed the first time they could have saved themselves one million dollars extra cost, due to inflation.

We also have inflation in Pocahontas, so we should get behind this issue and vote yes, now.

Better schools will mean more and better doctors, also better teachers. We will never get industry to come into the county, where the children have such little chance for the best in education.

People are anxious to build new homes in our county, but the schools are the drawback. They say if the bond issue doesn't carry, we will move to a place that has good schools, and all these people are good substantial citizens of our County whom we can hardly afford to lose.

Someone paid for the schools we attended, and which gave us our start; now it is our duty to assist the present and future school children to have a better chance.

Jesus said, "Or what one of you, if his son asks him for a loaf, will give him a stone?"

Let us forget sectionalism, petty personal desires, wishes to return to "the good old days," or to maintain the "status quo." Our children cry for bread. Will we offer them a stone?

Dear Miss Harper:

Please accept my warmest congratulations on your accomplishments in attaining a straight "A" average for the first semester of the current school year. The pursuit of excellence is the primary objective of any educational institution, and your achievement is a substantial contribution to West Virginia University's progress toward that goal.

You have every reason to be proud of your record, and I hope that you will continue to keep up the good work.

E. C. Daetwyler

My husband and I own land and pay taxes in Pocahontas County. Our only son has graduated from high school. We would have many reasons that others have to oppose the bond issue for the new high school.

However, this letter expresses my personal feeling, as a teacher, and as a citizen of Pocahontas County.

I am now in my tenth year of teaching, seven years of which have been in Pocahontas County. I realize this is a short time in comparison to the length of service of some of my colleagues, but it has been a long enough time for me to come to know very well some of the children of the county, and to follow their careers as they have gone on through high school to become young adults. I am sure there are no finer children anywhere, none with more potential for achievement and, by and large, none with better character.

As a teacher, I find that I feel less anxiety for the futures of the "bright" children, the so-called "advantaged" children, than for some others who pass through my classroom. The bright youngsters will succeed in spite of, if not because of, educational obstacles. Most

But I am concerned for the boy who does only average academic work, but suddenly comes to life in science class when we study power machines; who brings a small gasoline motor to class and takes it apart, piece by piece, explaining its workings in language the class can understand.

I am concerned for the little girl for whom arithmetic is a bore and a chore, but who fills her notebook with lovely drawings, and has a good sense of color and design.

What will happen to them in high school? The boy with extra training, could be a first class automobile mechanic, or an electronics technician. The girl could be a commercial artist or a designer. Will the boy become a drop-out because his high school cannot offer the courses he needs? If he finishes high school, will he be unable to find a job because others, from other schools, are better trained? Will the girl have the training necessary to develop

Tournament

Marlinton High School won the Greenbrier Valley Tournament last weekend by defeating Green Bank 96 to 62, Hillsboro 92 to 84, and Frankford in the finals, 61 to 42.

Marlinton will meet Union this Friday night at 7:30 in the Regional Tournament at Ronceverte. A mistake was made in the first announcement of their opponent. Meadow Bridge plays Braxwell on Thursday at 7:30. The championship game will be played Saturday night at 7:30.

At White Sulphur Saturday the team was awarded a large trophy and the twelve squad members and manager each received a small gold basketball.

Ivan Withers and Harry McCloud were named to the All Tournament Team of eight members and were awarded trophies. Freda Bolter received a trophy as one of six Outstanding Cheerleaders.

For the season, Ivan Withers is the leading scorer, with an average of 22 points per game. Teddy Dunbrack is second with 17 points, Jimmy Ervine is third with 16 points, Harry McCloud fourth with 15 points, and Tommy Clutter fifth with an average of 12 points. Regular substitutes have been Tiny Shinaberry, Joe White and Johnny Keaney. Marlinton averaged 86 points a game to their opponents' 60; they have won 21 and lost 2, including tournament play. They lost to Union by 9 points and to Meadow Bridge by 1; however in the Union game they were tied and then Union's team scored on seven straight fouls. These two teams are in the Regional competition this week. If Marlinton wins this week the team goes to the State Tournament at Charleston. Other coaches say these are the five most complete ball players they have ever seen on one team and Coach Friel says it is the best ball club since he has been here. All five boys are capable scorers. All five played first team of the football team which won the State Championship. Ivan Withers and Jimmy Ervine were first team All Staters and Harry McCloud and Tommy Clutter were second team All Staters.

Mr. Humphreys is a native of Greenville, Monroe County. His wife is the former Mary Ann Waddle, of Union, and they have two sons, Alvie, 17, and Robert, 6. His family will move here later.

The Pocahontas Times
Marlinton, W. Va.

I have read with much interest, in the January 25 issue of the Times, the column headed "Lumber Companies." Major operations in Pocahontas from 1900 to the 1930's.

Having worked for several of these operations in what we call upper Pocahontas, Deer Creek, Boyer, Hoovertown and Thornwood, 1912 through September 1918, I feel that I can give you a little information that may be of some help.

Boyer and later Nottingham was operated by M. P. Bock first, then H. J. Wilmoth & Sons I have no recollection of Virginia Lumber Company ever operating at Boyer, but do know that I was manager of the Boyer Company Store during 1913 and the company name then was Clark and McCullough, who also was interested in the operation at Olive on the C&I .

Dunlevie, later Thornwood, was operated by E. V. Dunlevie, who bought the timber which laid mostly in Highland County, on the Laurel Fork, Middle Mountain and straight fork section of Highland. Dunlevie operated from 1903 to 1906, then Flint Ervin and Stoner 1906 to 1911. Under not have listed was not a major one but worthy of mention. This was Ed Hoover, who was among the first and operated a body of timber just across the Greenbrier River, opposite the Pocahontas Tanning Company. This operation was under his name until finished in 1907 then was operated from 1907 through 1909 under the name Hoover and Yeager (William Yeager, son of Peter D. Yeager, Traveler's Repose). This timber was on the Allegheny side of the mountain from the Mack Yeager place near Bartow to the George Beverage place on Allegheny Mountain. This mill was at Hoovertown

Deer Creek, first Deer Creek Lumber Company, 1909 to 11 Range Lumber Company, also known as G. G. Stitzinger & Co. 1911 to 1919, finished. The operations on the west branch of the Greenbrier River were in this order leaving Durbin: Olive, Burner, Braucher, Wildell.

This was not a lumber operation. From 1915 to 1918, there was an operation between Cass and Deer Creek known as the Extract Plant. This plant manufactured what was known as Osage Orange Extract made from what was known as Osage Orange wood and shipped from the state of Oklahoma and was used for coloring cloth for soldiers uniforms during World War I.

I trust this might be of some help.

Very truly,
P. L. Mauzy

P. S. You don't mention Williams & Pifer who operated near Marlinton; possibly this was after 1930'. Most of the operations mentioned were by Pennsylvanians. The timber in Pennsylvania was mostly cut in the early 1900s and these companies moved into West Virginia.

(Editor's note: Williams and Pifer was incorporated in 1917. B. E. Smith was another name omitted. We hope readers will send more information.)

THURSDAY, MAR. 28, 1968

Dear Editor:

In reading the letter published two weeks ago written by Ruth Grimes Turner, we can truly say that we boiled, as she would put it. We don't see how our opportunities would be reduced in any way by having a consolidated school.

Having three class presidents instead of one is ridiculous, because a more intelligent one out of the three could be chosen. The three small teams could be combined together in one that is more powerful and can play more schools. There aren't any small teams left to play, and the little school wouldn't have a chance. So you see, we could write a book also.

A good school should be an educational plant. That's what they're for. In the story, "Thread That Runs So True," written by Jesse Stuart, his main ambition was to have a centralized school.

We are speaking strictly for ourselves, but we don't think that an "endless" bus ride would kill anyone. The student that Mrs. Turner calls eliminated because no teachers were available.

In opposition to Mrs. Turner's letter we shall ask one question. Do you want to deprive the Pocahontas County student of a good education that could lead to a prosperous career?

We think that old-fashioned ideas don't blend in with a modern world. The horse and buggy recalls a gay nostalgia also, but they won't get you where you want to go today.

We are positive that almost every student in the county will agree. Don't our wants and needs mean anything?

Sincerely,
Susan Chappell

Neither talking nor writing is my talent, but after reading Mrs. Turner's letter, I feel that I, too, must write. I am a newcomer, or, if you like, a "foreigner" in Pocahontas County. I am also from Iowa. I hope the readers will not hold these facts against me.

I'm afraid I cannot quite understand Mrs. Turner's feelings. However, everyone is entitled to his own opinion. Therefore, I am expressing mine.

Since coming to Pocahontas County as a teacher, a little over a year ago, I have become deeply involved, very concerned, and genuinely fond of Pocahontas County and its schools. However, the schools leave a lot to be desired. But this can be improved, and the

We are speaking strictly for ourselves, but we don't think that an "endless" bus ride would kill anyone. The student that Mrs. Turner calls a computer number will be get ting a good education.

We're sure that the modern, centralized school that Mrs. Turner saw materialize was a good one. The size of the school shouldn't be blamed for the teacher's actions.

The kind of thing that people are voting for is a good education and opportunity for the generation to come.

We are sorry to say but with the increase of population it would take a large number of one-room schools to educate Pocahontas County. We're sure that the little semblance of democracy our forefathers fought for won't be missed.

The "unit" system probably includes an explanation of how to set in sleeves. Be thankful that the class is available because the small schools may not be able to get a teacher.

The arithmetic in 1913 was probably as simple as it could be, and not too difficult to mem orize. If the times tables are the only thing we learn, we are going to be regarded as 1968 idiots. We shall say times have changed and so has math.

The first day of school is a memory for everyone, whether he has a teacher dressed in white or not. The teacher is there to supply knowledge, not love, which is up to the parents

Since coming to Pocahontas County as a teacher, a little over a year ago, I have become deeply involved, very concerned, and genuinely fond of Pocahontas County and its schools. However, the schools leave a lot to be desired. But this can be improved, and the best way to start is by building a new high school for the County.

Before coming to Pocahontas County, I had almost given up the teaching profession But here, I have found something that has made me want to continue. However, if the bond issue does not pass, I, along with many other teachers in the county, may be forced to resign. After all, if the parents and other people of the county, are not concerned about the improvement of their schools, it would seem rather futile for us, as teachers, to continue.

I realize that the land owners in the county are very concerned about their taxes being raised. I can understand this. I do not like to pay the taxes I pay, but this is a part of life in 20th Century America. I do not feel that money is that important. If I was concerned only about money, I obviously would not be teaching in Pocahontas County.

Perhaps the fact that the pupils will have to ride long distances on buses, and a few other facts, may be disadvantages. I do not see how the people of the county can let anything stand in the way of progress. The children's education and the future of the county are at stake.

The "unit" system probably includes an explanation of how to set in sleeves. Be thankful that the class is available because the small schools may not be able to get a teacher.

The arithmetic in 1913 was probably as simple as it could be, and not too difficult to memorize. If the times tables are the only thing we learn, we are going to be regarded as 1968 idiots. We shall say times have changed and so has math.

The first day of school is a memory for everyone, whether he has a teacher dressed in white or not. The teacher is there to supply knowledge, not love, which is up to the parents to provide. A teacher could supply so much love that the student would not learn a solitary thing.

If we have good education in high school, we can make it more easily to go through college.

Yes, maybe a few of the students of our county have made a good showing, but very few. They had to work their heads off, also. What about the remainder of the students?

Teachers' salaries have gone up just like everyone else's. Therefore, we get only the teachers that can accept the smaller salaries. They aren't always the best teachers available. If we have a large school, it will attract better educated and qualified teachers. The population of this county might start increasing instead of decreasing. This year our school's Vo-Ag classes were eras in the county are very concerned about their taxes being raised. I can understand this. I do not like to pay the taxes I pay, but this is a part of life in 20th Century America. I do not feel that money is that important. If I was concerned only about money, I obviously would not be teaching in Pocahontas County.

Perhaps the fact that the pupils will have to ride long distances on buses, and a few other facts, may be disadvantages. I do not see how the people of the county can let anything stand in the way of progress. The children's education and the future of the county are at stake.

If I, as a newcomer in the county, have any concern at all about the improvement of the schools and the county, I would only hope that the lifetime residents of the county would feel something akin to this.

Sincerely,
Marilyn Hanley

I read with both interest and misgivings the letter "Opinion" in the Pocahontas Times, under the date of March 14, 1968. The observations I shall make may seem a bit personal, but I can assure you they come as a result of personal experiences. I want to make it clear at the outset that I do not question the quality of instruction that is being done by the teachers of Pocahontas County, but I do question the quantity. The latter is not the fault of the teachers. I agree that we have had, through the years,

Silver Star

Mrs. Cora VanMeter, of Slatyfork, was presented the Army's Silver Star which was awarded posthumously to her son, Staff Sergeant Jacob Van Meter, who died in action in Vietnam, October 7, 1967. The presentation was made by Col. R. W. Healey, Commander of the Eastern Sector Command Corps, at the Pocahontas County Court House, Friday, March 15, 1968. Lieutenant Colonel Ora Underwood read the citation as follows:

For gallantry in action: Sergeant Van Meter distinguished himself by exceptionally valorous action on 7 October 1967, while serving as a squad leader with Company C, 1st Battalion, 8th Calvary, during a search and destroy mission near Bong Son, Republic of Vietnam. When his unit came under intense hostile fire, Sergeant Van Meter, disregarding his own safety, exposed himself to the heavy enemy fire as he directed his men into covered positions. He again exposed himself to the hostile fire to draw the fire away from his men. Observing several wounded comrades lying in an exposed area, Sergeant Van Meter moved through the open area and pulled the wounded soldiers to safety. While moving the men to a safe position, Sergeant Van Meter was wounded, but continued until he had completed his task. At this time, while delivering a high volume of covering fire for the wounded men, Sergeant Van Meter was mortally wounded. His gallant action was in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service, and reflects great credit upon himself, his unit, and the United States Army.

The Pocahontas County
Board of Education

Dear Mr. Cassell
and Members of the Board of Education:

At the March meeting of the Marlinton Junior Home Demonstration Club, it was voted to inform the Pocahontas County Board of Education of our total support of the forthcoming school bond issue, and to offer our cooperation in any way possible.

We are interested in our children, the children of Pocahontas County and in the progress of Pocahontas County. We pledge our support as a club and as individual members to this important project.

Sincerely yours,
Mrs. Richard Dombrosky,
President

After the great Central High School is voted on and if it does pass and they start the taxes on the already heavy burdened people, what is the man with three, four or five children to do, who takes home a pay check of less than $75.00? Lost—Lost

What's lost—9900 people in Pocahontas County. Lost where? In a sea of confusion. They are talking about a School Bond Issue, but the problem is "a School Bond necessity." They have not heard that the "price that people pay for indifference to public affairs is to be later taxed and ruled by evil men—for proof of this—Hitler, Stalin, Mussolini, Togo and now the latest member, Ho Chi Minh." A great majority of people look around; they see "Lazarus" (Pocahontas school children) at the gate; they say Lazarus needs help, I know, but I don't have time or the money to help; maybe Congress will pass a new law for new schools and I won't have to bother; after all, I don't have any children to educate and I will get my Social Security check before long, and if that isn't enough I may get some food stamps or join the welfare group. By the way, where does my Social Security check come from? I didn't pay in but a short time before I started getting a check. Some body, somewhere, must be paying "my" part now. Maybe I better get behind this "School Bond necessity" and get these children educated so they can get a job after graduation and keep my Social Security check coming in. Come to think of it, hundreds of children have graduated from schools the past 20 years in Pocahontas County and most every one of them had to leave the county to keep from starving to death. On second thought what does the present generation of people have to give as a heritage to anyone? Constant envy, sniping, griping, complaining at the very mention of progress is a daily routine. The most repeated statement one hears everywhere "I can find no one who wants to work."

He pays state income and federal income taxes, Social Security taxes, two dollars on every male, twenty one up to fifty or sixty years of age, that goes for schools and roads, or used to, called Capitation Tax; also Dog Tax; you name it, they charge it and get it. There is a lot of men who work on public works, and who don't draw D. P. A., who do not get enough to live on decently.

Now, wouldn't it be nice not to include the older people in this, who have labored so earnestly and faithfully to make a beautiful West Virginia, the place we love so dearly. They cleared the land, all of it that is cleared, and lived and schooled their families as best they could. I think God was their leader because they went to church and sang, shouted, and prayed; they didn't just have a form to do it by, they had religion. They didn't slam the old people or send them to homes, they kept them until the end. They were their families, their loved ones.

Now, isn't it a slap in the face for the many people that graduated from Green Bank, Marlinton and Hillsboro and went on to college; some came back, live and work here. I could name a lot of them. If you stop and think, the one horse room school wasn't a dumb house. The high schools could have been teaching better trades all along.

I think the government owes the people a lot more than they get from the men and boys that have to leave their families and fight a war there is no don't have any children to educate and I will get my Social Security check before long, and if that isn't enough I may get some food stamps or join the welfare group. The most repeated statement one hears everywhere "I can find no one who wants to work."

Just keep the present trend going for a few short years; the jaws of poverty are getting wider, the welfare and Social Security economy are moving in. Scenic highways that start nowhere—lead nowhere and end nowhere, costing $500,000 to 800,000 per mile are being built on top of our mountains so the tourist can drive through in a few years and look down on people in Pocahontas and say, "look, look—there are those people who didn't want to build a schoolhouse in 1968 to educate their children."

People of Pocahontas County, you can keep looking down and complaining, but just remember when you are looking down, five or six feet is as far as you can see, but if you will open your eyes and look up, there is no limit.

Now let us hear the conclusion of life itself—every man will be paid according to his works—Where do you stand?

A taxpayer with no children to educate but with pride to defend with my vote, and looking up.

After collecting the taxes they do from all, they certainly could help the widow and children with the burden the wife has to carry, or have you ever been a widow? Thank you.
